Featured on the inside front cover is Virginia Tech's indoor practice facility, now under construction on the east side of the Steve Johnson Practice Fields. The facility is scheduled to be completed before the 2015 season.

The inside back cover features the 2014 Hokie seniors, and the outside back cover shows head coach Frank Beamer and the Virginia Tech players taken in the 2014 NFL Draft.

WHAT IS A HOKIE?

That's a frequently asked question in Virginia Tech athletics, and the answer leads all the way back to 1896 when Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute. With the change came the necessity for writing a new cheer, and a contest for that purpose was held by the student body. Senior O.M. Stull won first prize for his "Hokie" yell which is still used today. Later, when asked if "Hokie" had any special meaning, Stull explained the word was solely the product of his imagination and was used only as an attention-getter for his yell. It soon became a nickname for all Virginia Tech teams and those people loyal to Tech athletics. The official school colors – Chicago maroon and burnt orange – also were introduced in 1896. They were chosen because they made a "unique combination" not worn elsewhere at the time.

OFFENSIVE LINE

HEADLINES

Key Losses: guard Andrew Miller

Key Returnees: center David Wang; guard Brent Benedict; guard Caleb Farris; tackle Jonathan McLaughlin; tackle Laurence Gibson

Wang, McLaughlin and Farris started every game last season, while Benedict started seven and Gibson five.

Point of Interest: Stacy Searels is the Hokies' third different offensive line coach in as many seasons. His message, however, is the same ... the best five guys are going to play.

Player to Watch: Augie Conte's determination showed in the weight room and on the practice field during the spring. He has put himself in position to start at right guard with a work ethic that is second to none.

TACKLE

Laurence Gibson (r-Sr.) – Started five games at right tackle last fall ... Mixes good athletic ability with talent and power ... Coaches want him to add some weight during the summer after dropping to 274 in the spring ... Has the frame to carry it.

Mark Shuman (r-Sr.) – Worked at different spots along the line during the spring ... Saw action in just three games in 2013 ... Has the size and physical ability to play tackle or guard but has been hounded by injuries ... Has an opportunity to step up when practice resumes.

Jonathan McLaughlin (So.) – An athletic, young player with outstanding potential ... Started all 13 games in 2013 ... Became the first true freshman to start a game at left tackle during the Beamer era ... Named second-team Freshman All-America by College Football News ... Has size and a desire to succeed.

Parker Osterloh (r-Fr.) – A young player with a big frame ... Needs to take advantage of the weight room and make a good summer preparation ... Moved around early in his first year with the Hokies ... Needs to show consistency.

GUARD

Wyatt Teller (r-Fr.) – Is a work in progress but has the potential to see a lot of action ... Works hard and always gives top effort ... Excels in the weight room ... Moved from tackle to guard ... Needs to concentrate on his techniques and assignments over the summer.

Augie Conte (r-So.) – Put himself in line for playing time with a good spring ... Was named the most improved offensive player of spring workouts ... Has the frame and work ethic coaches love ... A weight room warrior ... Moved to guard after a redshirt year at tackle in 2012.

Alston Smith (r-So.) – Is still adjusting after moving from defensive tackle to the offensive line early last season ... Missed time in the spring due to an ankle injury ... Is tough and quick ... His athleticism, football IQ and work ethic will be pluses as he competes for playing time.

Braxton Pfaff (Fr.) – A promising young player... Did not arrive in Blacksburg until January after suffering an injury during a high school all-star game ... Went through the offseason program ... Started spring as a tackle but settled in at guard.

Brent Benedict (r-Sr.) – A tough, hard working lineman who has seen a lot of action ... Started seven games at right tackle last fall and six at right guard in 2012 ... Missed the spring game in April with an ankle injury and his status for the fall is uncertain.

CENTER

Caleb Farris (Sr.) – Started every game at guard last season, playing the most snaps on the offensive line (930) ... Picked up five starts at center in 2012 ... Is smart, mature and tough ... Has benefitted from the strength and conditioning program ... Was honored for putting the team first during spring workouts ... Will be looked to for leadership.

David Wang (r-Sr.) – Will have a leadership role this season after starting every game at center last fall and 10 games at left guard in 2012 ... Has got to stay healthy ... Was in and out of the lineup during the spring ... Is smart, quick and athletic.

David Wang

COACH SEARELS ON THE OFFENSIVE LINE:

The thing I keep coming back to is we want consistency and a high level of competition every day regardless of the situation, whether we are behind or ahead. We want to play the same way every day. It all fits like a glove. You can't have individuals on the offensive line. We've all got to fit together.

RECEIVERS & TIGHT ENDS

WIDE RECEIVER

Joshua Stanford (r-So.) – A young guy who can make plays ... Possesses speed and runs good routes ... Was named the offensive MVP of the spring ... Has become more consistent ... Will be an important part of the offense after catching 40 balls last season.

Demitri Knowles (r-Jr.) – Is coming off a good spring ... Did a nice job getting behind the defense ... Also drew praise for the effort he showed when it came to blocking in the running game ... A speedster with big-play ability ... Caught a career-best 45 passes in 2013 ... Needs to have a big year.

Willie Byrn (r-Sr.) – Stepped up big-time last season ... Caught 51 balls after entering the season with one career catch ... Got better and better as the year went along ... A smart player who knows how to get open ... Will be used as the slot receiver ... Needs to fill a leadership role.

Deon Newsome (r-Fr.) – A tough, talented player with a good work ethic ... Picked up a better understanding of the offense during the spring and showed flashes of big-time ability ... Needs to continue polishing his game over the summer to become an everyday player.

Charley Meyer (r-So.) – Got a lot of reps in the spring ... Fits in as a backup to Byrn in the slot ...

Ryan Malleck

The kind of player you want in your program ... Runs good routes and is consistent ... Catches the ball naturally.

COACH MOOREHEAD ON THE WIDE RECEIVERS:

We've got to go from a group that's not just making the plays we're supposed to make to a group that's helping out the quarterback and making the plays that you're not supposed to make. We're hoping we have a nice vertical passing attack. We should be greatly improved, and as an offense, we need to have that to be successful.

TIGHT END

Ryan Malleck (r-Jr.) – Missed the entire 2013 season following a preseason shoulder injury that required surgery ... Was held out of scrimmage work in the spring but benefited from going through drills ... A big target who can get downfield ... Will be an important part of the Hokies' offense when he returns to form.

Kalvin Cline (So.) – A good athlete who was thrust into a starting role as a true freshman ... Responded by catching 26 passes ... Has excellent hand-eye coordination and adjusts to the ball well ... Concentrated on basketball in high school and played just one year of football ... Nursed a knee injury during the spring but still managed to get adequate work.

Darius Redman (r-Jr.) – Got some valuable work during the spring ... Gives the Hokies size and experience ... Fits into the role of a blocker in traditional pro-set formations, with an ability to catch passes when needed.

Bucky Hodges (r-Fr.) – Opened a lot of eyes during the spring with his transition from quarterback to tight end ... The measurables – 6-6, 245, runs 4.4 – speak for themselves ... Showed a willingness to be physical and mix it

HEADLINES

Key Losses: wide receiver D.J. Coles

Key Returnees: wide receiver Willie Byrn; wide receiver Demitri Knowles; wide receiver Joshua Stanford; tight end Ryan Malleck; tight end Kalvin Cline.

Byrn had a breakout season in 2013 with a team-leading 51 catches, while Knowles and Stanford contributed 45 and 40 grabs, respectively. True freshman Cline was one of the biggest surprises of the season, stepping in for the injured Malleck and contributing 26 catches.

Point of Interest: Redshirt freshman tight end Bucky Hodges and sophomore wide receiver Carlis Parker are two of the Hokies' top up-and-coming receivers. Ironically, both of them started their Tech careers as quarterbacks.

Players to Watch: Redshirt freshman Deon Newsome joined fellow freshman Hodges and sophomore Parker in turning heads during spring practice.

up ... Is still working on his footwork and running his routes ... Can be a weapon.

COACH STINESPRING ON THE TIGHT ENDS:

I really like the talent level of this group ... I love the depth of this group. I think in some regards we are in a better position than we've been in quite some time to have a good combination of talent, experience and depth. Between Bucky, Ryan and Calvin, they enable us to be flexible and be in different sets based on what they can do. That is a great commodity to have."

RUNNING BACKS & QBs

HEADLINES

Key Loss: quarterback Logan Thomas

Key Returnees: tailback Trey Edmunds; tailback J.C. Coleman; fullback Sam Rogers

The loss of Thomas leaves the Hokies with four inexperienced candidates and a transfer vying for the starting quarterback duties. Meanwhile, Edmunds returns to action at tailback after breaking his leg last season in the Virginia game.

Point of Interest: The Hokies' depth and talent levels at tailback and quarterback will increase come August with the return of starting tailback Trey Edmunds and prize freshman RB recruit Shai McKenzie from injuries and the arrival of QB prospects Michael Brewer, Chris Durkin and Travon McMillian.

Player to Watch: True freshman tailback Marshawn Williams drew plenty of attention after joining the Hokies straight from high school in January. His determined, punishing style of running was the talk of spring workouts.

TAILBACK

Trey Edmunds (r-So.) – A hard-nosed runner who led the team in rushing (709 yds.) and scoring (72 pts.) while starting 10 games in 2013 ... Combines power with speed ... Rushed for 132 yards against Alabama in his first collegiate game ... Made steady progress during the season ... Suffered a broken fibula at Virginia in the regular-season finale ... Is expected to be 100 percent in August.

J.C. Coleman (Jr.) – Took on a leadership role in the spring mentoring a stable of young backs ... Played with a lot of effort and energy ... Impressed the coaches with his consistency ... Was slowed by an injury early last season but did a nice job when he returned ... Had an outstanding off-season.

Marshawn Williams (Fr.) – A big, bruising tailback who entered school in December ... Is hard to bring down ... His balance and vision give him an uncanny ability to make people miss ... Picked up on the offense during the spring and was named the top offensive newcomer of the spring ... Needs to keep his weight down and make a good summer preparation.

FULLBACK

Sam Rogers (So.) – A walk-on who earned a starting job and a scholarship in a short amount of time ... Knows the offense and has versatility as a runner, receiver and a blocker ... Showed great leadership during the spring ... Makes plays ... One of Tech's better pure football players on offense.

Greg Gadell (r-Sr.) – One of just two seniors among the running backs ... Has worked hard to get in a position to play ... Is solid, dependable and dedicated to the weight room ... Works hard ... A good athlete who plays an important role on special teams.

Jerome Wright (So.) – Has shuffled back-and-forth between fullback and tailback ... Played tailback in the Sun Bowl and did a good job ... Catches the ball well and has good running skills ... Gives Tech some flexibility in the backfield.

COACH SHANE BEAMER ON THE RUNNING BACKS:

We've got a top three coming out of spring at tailback, and we want those top guys working with the first-group offensive line [in August], so they'll get the majority of the work. Then the rest of the guys will work with the next group. At fullback, Sam Rogers is going to get every single ounce out of his ability and body that he can. He's just a really good football player.

QUARTERBACK

Brenden Motley (r-So.) – Showed flashes of both talent and inexperience during the spring, while getting his first real reps ... Is athletic and can run the football ... Was 12 for 20 passing in one scrimmage for 163 yards and a touchdown ... Made improvement but will need to make more.

Mark Leal (r-Sr.) – A fifth-year senior ... Has the most reps of the returning QBs ... Has the ability to make all the throws ... Knows what it takes to play at Tech but has yet to put it all together.

Andrew Ford (Fr.) – Enrolled at Tech in January straight out of high school ... A smart player with a good work ethic and toughness ... Picked up valuable reps in the spring ... Completed 12 of 15 passes for 150 yards in one of the scrimmages ... Needs to work some on his technique and get bigger.

COACH LOEFFLER ON THE QUARTERBACKS:

We've got a lot of work to do to get where we need to be at the quarterback position. You can't rep five guys. I'd like to get down to two guys who I think have a shot and rep them to death and see where this thing goes. We want a guy who can first throw the football, but not just throw the ball. We want a guy who can throw, extend the play, have some athleticism to run some spread runs and go from there.

DEFENSIVE LINE

HEADLINES

Key Losses: tackle Derrick Hopkins; end James Gayle; end J.R. Collins

Key Returnees: tackle Luther Maddy; end Dadi Nicolas

Senior Luther Maddy has 29 career starts and is coming off his best season, but the rest of the returning linemen have a combined total of six collegiate starts.

Point of Interest: After battling back from injuries suffered his senior year in high school, and early time at Tech, end Ken Ekanem will finally get to show why he was such a highly rated recruit when he signed with the Hokies. Ekanem, at full strength for the first time in Blacksburg, came out of spring practice with a starting job at defensive end.

Player to Watch: Tackle Corey Marshall, who sat out last season, was named the defensive MVP of the spring and will be a welcome addition to a depth-shy front four.

Dadi Nicolas

END

Dadi Nicolas (r-Jr.) – Is expected to start at one end position ... Has freakish ability ... Is tough physically and mentally ... Plays the game with passion ... Coaches hope he will continue to get bigger ... Needs to be a little more consistent with his fundamentals and technique ... Was named the defensive player who had an exceptional spring.

Ken Ekanem (r-So.) – Really stepped up in the spring and moved into a starting role ... Impressed the coaches with his physical play and his approach to the game ... Has good size and mobility ... Can pressure the passer ... Needs to show he can sustain his energy and level of play over a season and be productive.

Dewayne Alford (r-So.) – A young player who is long and physical ... Quietly had a good spring ... Played in all 13 games last season, mostly on special teams ... Is coachable and plays with good effort ... Needs to keep working on his strength over the summer ... Has a chance to help this fall.

Seth Dooley (r-Fr.) – Has generated some buzz with his 6-foot-5 frame and athletic ability ... Is exactly what you are looking for body-wise at end ... Runs well and has a lot of ability ... Will need to be more consistent and play harder when fall rolls around ... If he does that, he can be a really good player.

TACKLE

Luther Maddy (Sr.) – Tech's most experienced lineman ... Started every game in 2013 and played at a high level ... Was fifth on the team in tackles (55) and tops in sacks (6.5) ... Named third-team All-ACC ... The more he plays, the better he gets ... Will be looked to for leadership.

Corey Marshall (r-Jr.) – An explosive player who provides a lot of playmaking ability inside ... Sat out the 2013 season but has experience with four starts at end in 2012 and one at tackle in 2011 ... Was the defensive MVP in the spring ... Showed a great attitude and was very team-oriented ... A key addition.

Nigel Williams (r-So.) – A valuable backup last season, seeing action in all 13 games ... Got off to a slow start in the spring, but finished strong ... Has the ability to be a starter ... Can run and make plays ... Is exactly what you are looking for at the position ... Must continue working on his upper body strength.

Woody Baron (So.) – Gave the Hokies good reps last season while seeing action in all 13 games ... Started on special teams and was a second-team tackle ... Underwent ankle surgery after the season and missed contact work during the spring ... Should be ready to go when practice resumes.

Vinny Mihota (Fr.) – A highly recruited player who entered Tech straight from high school in January ... Has already benefited from that decision ... Got his first look at end but the coaches felt tackle would be his best spot ... Is tough and athletic ... Runs well and plays hard ... Needs to get bigger.

COACH WILES ON THE DEFENSIVE LINE:

What we've got to get is more production out of our second unit. You see a lot of drop-off from the first group to the second group in terms of playmaking. That's my message to my guys. We need to make more plays. Don't be just a guy holding up in your gap. We've got to make more tackles and affect the game more. We're close, but there's still a dropoff there.

LINEBACKERS

HEADLINES

Key Losses: mike linebacker Jack Tyler; backer Tariq Edwards

Key Returnees: whip linebacker Ronny Vandyke; mike linebacker Chase Williams

Vandyke missed the entire 2013 season and worked on the side during the spring. Williams has the tough task of trying to replace Tyler, Tech's leading tackler the past two seasons.

Point of Interest: Replacing mike linebacker Jack Tyler will be one of the toughest tasks on the Tech defense this fall, but Chase Williams is ready to take on the challenge. Williams, who has put in his dues as a redshirt senior, had an outstanding spring.

Player to Watch: Coach Bud Foster believes Deon Clarke has the potential to be the next in a line of playmakers at the backer position. He labels Clarke as an explosive athlete and a dynamic speed rusher at a playmaking position.

Chase Williams

MIKE

Chase Williams (r-Sr.) – Is coming off of an outstanding spring ... Played really well and assumed a leadership role ... Has played both mike and backer positions ... Is fundamentally sound ... His knowledge of the defense is extremely valuable ... Does a good job of getting the defense lined up ... Has worked extremely hard to get where he is.

Andrew Motuapuaka (r-Fr.) – Was having a strong spring until suffering a fractured shoulder blade in the final scrimmage ... Learned a lot and made a strong push for playing time ... Has good foot quickness and change of direction ... Is physical in the running game but still picking up pass coverage ... Has lots of potential.

Devin Vandyke (r-So.) – Was really showing good signs and impressing the coaches last fall before suffering a torn ACL ... Limited to non-contact work during the spring ... Is tough, intelligent and athletic ... Coaches are hopeful he can return by fall ... Has a big upside if he can return to form.

BACKER

Deon Clarke (Jr.) – Really stepped up in the spring ... Has tremendous ability and can be explosive ... Was very active and made a lot of plays in the blitz game ... Is showing maturity ... May have gained a slight edge for the starting spot during the final week of the spring.

Dahman McKinnon (r-So.) – Has gotten some exposure to all three linebacker spots ... Battled for the backer job during the spring and made a lot of plays ... One of the fastest players on the team ... Is around the ball a lot ... Has the skills to be effective against both the run and the pass ... Will resume fighting for the top spot in the fall.

WHIP

Ronny Vandyke (r-Jr.) – A big, physical player who can cover slot receivers as well as blitz and pressure ... Is coming back from shoulder surgery performed last August ... Was limited during the spring ... Has shown improvement movement-wise ... Coaches look for him to work hard during the offseason and get himself ready to be a factor in the fall.

Josh Trimble (r-Jr.) – Started five games and got a lot of reps at the position during the fall ... Played faster in the spring and was more productive ... Is strong and physical enough in run situations and also good enough in coverage to handle tight ends.

Derek Di Nardo (r-Sr.) – A player the coaches like and trust ... Has worked at a number of positions and grown as a player ... His ability to do a lot of things makes him a valuable asset ... Has shown he can perform.

COACH FOSTER ON THE INSIDE LINEBACKERS:

Chase Williams had his best spring since he's been here. We've got him at the mike spot. He's played both positions, but having him at one spot and having him get all those reps ... he played really, really well. He did a good job of getting us lined up and being fundamentally sound. I'm pleased with where he is. At backer, we've just got to be consistent. I think we've got two really good players right there. Both of those kids can really run. We're going to keep it where it is right now as far as that competition.

COACH BROWN ON THE WHIP LINEBACKERS:

Josh (Trimble) and Derek (Di Nardo) are interchangeable, they trade out back and forth. They both give us good, consistent play. I'm also really encouraged about where Ronny Vandyke is right now. I look for him to work hard during the offseason and get himself ready to come back and contribute and be a factor on this defense.

DEFENSIVE SECONDARY

CORNERBACK

Kendall Fuller (So.) – Is coming off a great freshman year that saw him earn Atlantic Coast Conference Defensive Rookie of the Year honors ... Was a freshman A-A pick and earned second-team All-ACC recognition ... Had seven starts at corner and five as the nickel back ... Led the team with six interceptions and was fourth in tackles with 58 ... A leader and a good communicator on the field ... Is off the charts mentally, and has a good physical skill set that should continue to get better.

Brandon Facyson (So.) – Missed all but one practice in the spring due to a stress reaction in his left leg ... Is expected to be ready come August ... Started nine games as a true freshman and picked off five passes ... Has great ball skills and is both athletic and physical ... Should improve as a tackler as he gets stronger.

Donovan Riley (Jr.) – Picked up a lot of reps during the spring and exhibited much-improved consistency ... Showed he can be a playmaking cornerback ... Has athletic ability and toughness ... Excels in the strength and conditioning program ... Also a key contributor on special teams.

Chuck Clark (So.) – Played well as a true freshman, starting two games as the nickel back ... Had a lot thrown at him during his first year ... Worked at corner during the spring and has also seen some time at free safety ... Has a good mind and football IQ ... Will play a key role this fall.

FREE SAFETY

Detrick Bonner (r-Sr.) – Impressed the coaches with his play during the spring ... Put an emphasis on being a leader ... Does a good job of communicating on the field ... Has started 30

HEADLINES

Key Losses: cornerback Kyle Fuller; cornerback Antone Exum

Key Returnees: rover Kyshoen Jarrett; safety Detrick Bonner; cornerback Kendall Fuller; cornerback Brandon Facyson

The four top returnees combined for 47 starts last season. Kendall Fuller was a first-team freshman All-America pick and the ACC Defensive Rookie of the Year.

Point of Interest: Coach Torian Gray's top eight returning players have been a productive group, having combined for 18 interceptions and 64 passes defended. Even better news for the Hokies is that only two of the players are seniors.

Players to Watch: Gray liked what he saw from cornerbacks Donovan Riley and Chuck Clark during the spring and is looking for good things from both. Riley showed he can be a playmaking corner, while Clark continued to display his versatility, backing up Kendall Fuller and piling up a bunch of reps as the fifth back in the Hokies' nickel package.

games over the past three seasons ... Possesses excellent speed and is good in coverages.

Desmond Frye (Jr.) – One of the most improved players in the secondary ... Has seen brief playing time at free safety and rover over the past two seasons ... Held down the starting duties at rover this past spring ... Made the most of his reps and held up well in run support despite being long and lanky ... A smart player who can be productive.

ROVER

Kyshoen Jarrett (Sr.) – Missed the entire spring following shoulder surgery in January ... Has started 26 consecutive games at the rover position ... Was second on the team in tackles (83) in 2011 and third (71) last season ... Coaches know what he can do ... Already has a lot of reps and will be sharpe mentally ... Expected to be ready to go in the fall.

Der'Woun Greene (r-So.) – Worked at free safety last season ... Moved to corner during the spring and showed a good feel for the position ... Is tough and has the ability to make plays ... A versatile player who has improved his technique and fundamentals ... Is slated to be at rover when practice resumes.

COACH GRAY ON THE SECONDARY:

I'm pleased with the depth and the direction we're headed. Hopefully, we can get everyone healthy at one time, but you never know. That may not happen. We were never healthy last year, but obviously the young guys played a huge role for us. You have a different caliber of players, but I think our depth would be able to sustain a couple of injuries if that were to happen like it did last year.

SPECIAL TEAMS

HEADLINES

Key Losses: place-kicker Cody Journell; holder Trey Gresh

Key Returnees: punter A.J. Hughes; snapper Eddie D'Antuono; punt returner Kyshoen Jarrett; kickoff returner Demitri Knowles

Hughes, a second-team All-ACC pick last fall, gives Tech a weapon in the punting game, but the Hokies will have to find someone new for the all-important place-kicking duties.

Point of Interest: None of the kickers have separated themselves from the pack, which will make the competition all the more interesting when a pair of freshmen are added to the mix in August.

Player to Watch: Senior Michael Branthover was the top kicker on the depth chart for much of spring practice and booted a 52-yard field goal in the final scrimmage. If he can improve his consistency, he might return to that top spot.

PLACE-KICKER

Michael Branthover (Sr.) – A contender for the place-kicking and kickoff duties ... Possesses a strong leg but has struggled to maintain consistency ... Was 4 for 5 on field goals during the last two spring scrimmages, including one from 52 yards ... He missed his only attempt in the spring game ... Had 17 kickoffs last season for an average of 62.1 yards.

Mitchell Ludwig (So.) – Handled the majority of the kickoffs last season ... Had 39 kicks, including 13 for touchbacks ... Averaged 61.5 yards per kickoff ... Has some pop in his leg ... Made both of the field goals he attempted in the two major spring scrimmages ... Also in line to be the backup punter.

Remington Hinshaw (r-Jr.) – Competed for the job in the spring after transferring from the University of Richmond and sitting out the fall

... Saw some action during his two seasons at UR ... Was 15 of 22 on FGs and made all four of his PATs ... Made two of his three field goal tries in Tech's last two scrimmages.

Eric Kristensen (So.) – A walk-on who joined the team at mid-season last fall and was pressed into action in the Maryland game ... Started two games and was 4 for 5 on field goals and made all four of his PAT attempts ... Made two of three field goals in major spring scrimmages and booted a 28-yarder in the spring game.

PUNTER

A.J. Hughes (Jr.) – One of the top punters in the nation ... A two-year starter who was named second-team All-ACC last season ... Averaged 44.1 yards on 78 punts in 2013 ... Had 22 punts of 50 or more yards and 24 downed inside the 20.

SNAPPER

Eddie D'Antuono (r-So.) – Won the snapping duties last fall ... Gives the Hokies a bigger guy on field goals ... Needs to concentrate on his snap placement ... Will have competition in the fall.

Joe St. Germain (r-Sr.) – Handled all the snapping duties during the 2012 season ... Saw only brief action last fall ... Really worked hard in the offseason ... Is back in the thick of the battle this season.

HOLDER

A.J. Hughes (r-Jr.) – handled all of the snaps during the spring and is expected to continue this fall ... Mark Leal will handle the backup duties.

RETURN MEN

Kyshoen Jarrett (Sr.), Willie Byrn (r-Sr.), Demitri Knowles (r-Jr.), Deon Newsome (r-Fr.), J.C. Coleman (Jr.), Der'Woun Greene (r-So.), Chris Mangus (r-So.) – Jarrett returned a team-high 26 punts last season and ranked ninth nationally in punt returns the year before ... Knowles ranks sixth all-time in kickoff return yards at Tech with 1,075 ... He had an 88-yard return against Maryland last fall ... Beamer is looking for return men who can catch the ball, take a quick step and go.

COACH FRANK BEAMER ON THE SPECIAL TEAMS:

None of the kickers have separated themselves, and that's what I was hoping would happen. All of them have had their moments and all of them are good kickers, but none of them have set themselves apart. You want that guy who can't wait to celebrate. If we've got that guy, then we'll be OK. We've got two coming in here this summer, and I'll give them a chance to separate themselves. If a kicker has it, he can come in and play quickly.

MEET THE COACHES

HEAD COACH FRANK BEAMER

COACH HAS LED HOKIES
TO 21 CONSECUTIVE BOWL APPEARANCES

STAFF

When Frank Beamer accepted the job as head football coach at his alma mater in 1987, his goal was for the Virginia Tech football program to reach a consistent level of excellence. The Hokies have come a long way since then, and, along the way, Beamer has become one of the most respected and successful coaches on the college football scene. Now in his 28th campaign in Blacksburg, Beamer is the winningest active coach in the FBS with 266 career wins.

Under Beamer, Tech football has enjoyed unprecedented success with 21 consecutive bowl appearances, four ACC titles, five ACC Coastal Division crowns, three BIG EAST Conference titles, six BCS appearances, two "major" bowl victories and a trip to the national championship game. Under his guidance, the Hokies have finished in the Top 20 in 16 of the past 21 seasons, including four top-10 finishes during the last 10 years.

The Hokies couldn't have asked for anyone better to guide their football program into the ACC. In 2004 – Tech's first season in the league – Beamer and his staff led a young team picked to finish sixth in the league to an ACC title and a BCS Bowl. That team also won the league's 2004 Fall Sportsmanship Award for football, yet another tribute to the program Beamer and his staff have built. A year later, the Hokies produced an 11-2 record, won the ACC Coastal Division title, earned a spot in the inaugural league championship contest and appeared in a bowl game. Beamer was named the ACC Coach of the Year both seasons.

After the 2006 squad went 10-3 with a bowl appearance, Beamer's 2007 Tech team won the conference title and played Kansas in the Orange Bowl. Beamer was named the 2007 Southeast Coach of the Year by Sports Unlimited magazine and was a finalist for both the Paul "Bear" Bryant and Eddie Robinson Coach of the Year awards.

The Hokies went 11-3 and finished ninth in the final national polls.

The 2008 season may have been Beamer's finest effort as he took one of the youngest teams in his tenure, played one of the toughest schedules and, despite several setbacks and disappointing losses, led the Hokies to an ACC title and a 20-7 win over Cincinnati in the FedEx Orange Bowl. In 2009, the Hokies kept rolling, winning 10 games including an impressive victory over Tennessee in the Chick-fil-A Bowl.

In 2010, after an unexpected 0-2 start, he led Tech to 11 wins, an ACC title and a berth in the Discover Orange Bowl to cap off another impressive season. He was also named the winner of the inaugural Joseph V. Paterno Coach of the Year Award, recognizing Beamer for his team's performance on the field, in the classroom and in the community.

In 2011, Beamer led the Hokies to 11 wins and an appearance in the ACC championship game after capturing another Coastal Division crown. The Hokies finished with an 11-3 overall mark, including a berth in the Allstate Sugar Bowl against Michigan, Tech's eighth "major" bowl game appearance. In 2012, the Hokies won their final three games, including a victory over Rutgers in the Russell Athletic Bowl, to finish with their 20th-straight winning season and last year, Beamer led Tech to a berth in the Hyundai Sun Bowl after the Hokies won eight games in the regular season.

Beamer, who was the consensus National Coach of the Year in 1999, is the active leader among Division I FBS coaches in victories with 266 wins over 33 seasons as a head coach. Now in his 28th year at the Tech helm, his overall record as the head man of the Hokies stands at 224-109-2. He became Tech's winningest football coach during the 1997 campaign. Counting six years as head coach at Murray State prior to joining the Hokies, Beamer's overall record is 266-132-4.

A spot in the Nokia Sugar Bowl to play top-ranked Florida State for the national championship focused widespread attention on Virginia Tech and its football program following the 1999 season. Although the Hokies fell short in their bid for the national title, they proved that they belong among the top teams in the college ranks.

For his part in the Hokies' magical 1999 season, Beamer earned eight national coach of the year awards. He was named the Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year, the GTE Coach of the Year, the Eddie Robinson Coach of the Year, the Paul 'Bear' Bryant Coach of the Year, The Associated Press Coach of the Year, the Walter Camp Football Foundation/Street & Smith's Coach of the Year, the Maxwell Football Club Coach of the Year and the Woody Hayes Coach of the Year. He also was named the BIG EAST Conference Coach of the Year for the third time.

Tech won the BIG EAST title in 1995 and 1999 and shared it in '96. Beamer was voted BIG EAST Coach of the Year by the league's coaches each of those seasons.

There have been plenty of other accolades for the Hokies' coach. Prior to the 2005 season, a Seattle Times poll of more than 40 coaches voted Frank Beamer as the current head coach for whom they had the most respect. When BIG EAST Conference football celebrated its first 10 years of existence in 2000, Beamer was voted the Coach of the Decade by the league's media. In 1997, he was inducted into The Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame.

The rise of the Tech football program has made Beamer a man in demand. It has opened doors to places he may never have dreamed of as a youngster growing up in Southwest Virginia.

In September 2000, Beamer was invited to the White House where he joined a select group that stood in the Rose Garden behind then-President Bill Clinton as he made remarks on the Conservation and Reinvestment Act. Beamer was one of the keynote speakers at the American Football Coaches Association Convention in 2000; and, in April 2001, he joined former Prime Minister of Great Britain Lady Margaret Thatcher as one of the featured speakers at SUCCESS 2001, one of the nation's most popular business seminars.

In April 2004, Beamer was presented with a Humanitarian Award by the National Conference for Community and Justice for his contributions to fostering justice, equity and community in the Roanoke Valley. An avid NASCAR fan, Beamer has been the official starter for races at Bristol Motor Speedway and Richmond International Raceway.

In 1990, Beamer received a new contract and a substantial pay raise. He refused the raise, however, until a time that all classified and faculty employees of the university could have the same opportunity for pay raises. Most state salaries had been frozen at the time. When offered a pay increase in 2006, he did not sign the agreement until his assistant coaches were taken care of first.

Another indication of Beamer's love for the university came on the night he was inducted into The Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame. He called it the biggest honor of his entire career. With the induction, he became the first active coach at the university to be honored in that fashion.

The 65-year-old Beamer, the first alumnus to guide the Hokies since the 1940s, took over the Tech reins from Bill Dooley in January 1987. He began work a few days after the Hokies had beaten North Carolina State in the Peach Bowl. It took a while for him to get the Hokies moving in the right direction because the football program was hit with NCAA sanctions at the time.

But everything came together in the 1990s. The Techmen finished 9-3 in 1993 after beating Indiana, 45-20, in a wild Independence Bowl game. Tech followed up with an 8-4 season in 1994, losing to Tennessee, 45-23, in the Gator Bowl.

The Tech teams in 1995 and 1996 were among the best in school history. The 1995 team swept the BIG EAST Conference championship outright, and the 1996 club tied for the title with Syracuse and Miami.

The 1995 team was 9-2 during the regular season and then came up with a stirring 28-10 victory over Texas in the Sugar Bowl. The 1996 team went 10-1 during the regular season and lost to powerful Nebraska, 41-21, in the Orange Bowl after giving the Cornhuskers a fierce battle for three quarters.

The Hokies fell to 7-5 in 1997 and were beaten badly by North Carolina in the Gator Bowl, 42-3. But they came right back with a 9-3 mark in 1998 that included an impressive 38-7 victory over Alabama in the inaugural Music City Bowl in Nashville, Tenn.

The two winningest seasons in school history followed in 1999 and 2000 with the Hokies posting back-to-back 11-1 records. Tech registered its first-ever 11-0 regular-season record in '99 before losing its national championship battle with FSU.

In 2000, the Hokies' only blemish was a loss at Miami in the ninth game of the season. Both seasons, Tech climbed as high as No. 2 in The Associated Press poll, finishing No. 2 in '99 and No. 6 in 2000. The Hokies climbed as high as No.

STABILITY AT THE TOP EQUALS SUCCESS

One of the keys to the continuing success of Virginia Tech football has been the stability of the program. That stability begins at the top with head coach Frank Beamer, whose 27 years at the Hokie helm have helped the program develop a sense of the stability and consistency currently enjoyed by just a handful of other Division I-A schools. None of the 125 Division I-A head football coaches has been at their current schools consecutively longer than Beamer, who enters his 28th season at the helm of the Hokies.

COACHING EXCELLENCE

Virginia Tech defensive coordinator Bud Foster won the prestigious Broyles Award as the nation's top assistant coach following the 2006 season. Foster was a finalist for the award in 1999, 2001 and 2005. He was also named the No. 1 defensive coordinator in Division I-A by rivals.com prior to the 2005 season.

THE HIGHEST COMPLIMENT

In a Seattle Times poll of more than 40 Division I-A head football coaches prior to the 2005 season, Virginia Tech's Frank Beamer was picked as the most respected coach among current I-A head coaches.

Coach Frank Beamer reads to youngsters to promote the power of reading and literacy across the commonwealth of Virginia through Herma's Readers, a non-profit organization he formed as a tribute to his late mother, Herma Beamer.

5 in the 2001 AP poll and finished 18th. In 2002, Tech was ranked as high as No. 3 in the AP poll after posting consecutive wins over nationally ranked LSU (14th), Marshall (16th) and Texas A&M (19th). The Hokies' youthful team finished the season ranked 18th.

During the 2003 season, the Hokies ended No. 2 Miami's 39-game regular-season winning streak with a 31-7 victory. The 'Canes were the highest-ranked opponent Tech had ever beaten on the gridiron. The Hokies climbed as high as No. 3 in the polls before falling victim to inconsistent play during the final month of the season. Still, Tech earned eight wins for the 10th time in 11 seasons.

The 2004 season saw the Hokies bounce back to win their last eight games of the regular season, including victories against three nationally ranked teams – No. 6 West Virginia, No. 16 Virginia and No. 9 Miami.

Beamer's early Tech teams also registered many exciting victories. One of the most impressive came in 1990 when the Hokies capped the year with a 38-13 victory over arch-rival Virginia. During the 1989 season, Tech knocked off ninth-ranked West Virginia, 12-10, in Morgantown.

During his undergraduate days at Tech, Beamer started three years as a cornerback and played on the Hokies' 1966 and 1968 Liberty Bowl teams.

He received a B.S. in distributive education from Tech in 1969 and a master's in guidance from Radford in 1972. Then came the start of the Beamer coaching career.

He began as an assistant at Radford High School from 1969 through 1971. Then, after one season as a graduate assistant at the University of Maryland, he went to The Citadel where he worked five seasons under Bobby Ross and one year under Art Baker. His last two years at The Citadel, Beamer was the defensive coordinator. In 1979, he went to Murray State as the defensive coordinator under Mike Gottfried. He was named head coach at MSU in 1981 and went on to compile a six-year record of 42-23-2.

The Tech coach was born in Mt. Airy, N.C., and grew up in Hillsville, Va. At Hillsville High, he earned 11 varsity letters as a three-sport athlete in football, basketball and baseball.

Beamer is married to the former Cheryl Oakley of Richmond, Va. They have two children, Shane, a former member of his dad's football team at Tech and now the associate head coach at Virginia Tech; and daughter Casey, a 2003 graduate of Tech. He has two granddaughters, Sutton and Olivia, and a grandson, Hunter, all children of Shane and his wife, Emily.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Frank Beamer, the first Tech alumnus to guide the Hokies' football program since the 1940s, has won more games at Tech than any other head football coach. Prior to Beamer, no other grid coach in Virginia Tech history had served more than 10 seasons as head coach. Beamer is also the most-tenured active FBS head coach, having been at his current school consecutively longer than any other coach in the nation.

With last season's visit to the Hyundai Sun Bowl, head coach Frank Beamer has led the Hokies to 21 straight bowl games, making him one of four coaches all-time in college football history to accomplish that.

TECH OFFENSE

“The guys have got to understand exactly where they’re at and what we need to do to improve. The great football teams that I’ve been on and been a part of, the senior leadership grabs that group, and they find a way to get better. We’ve got to get to the point as an offense where we’re playing every game like the Miami game last year. The run game has to get going and then the passing game is easy after that. In college football, it’s hard to have six 13-play drives, so we have to make some explosive plays. Turnovers, running the football and making big plays, that’s what we’ve got to change.”

Scot Loeffler, in his second year as Virginia Tech's offensive coordinator, brings 16 years of coaching experience on the collegiate and NFL levels to the Hokies' staff. Loeffler, who served as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Auburn in 2012 and in the same role at Temple in 2011, has tutored seven college quarterbacks who went on to play in the NFL: Tom Brady, Tim Tebow, Brian Griese, Chad Henne, Drew Henson, John Navarre and Logan Thomas.

In Loeffler's first year in Blacksburg, Thomas finished off a stellar career by breaking career records for passing yards, attempts, touchdown passes and rushing touchdowns by a quarterback and a young wide receiving trio became the first group of receivers in program history to each record 40 or more receptions in a season. Thomas was drafted in the fourth round of the 2014 NFL Draft by Arizona.

At Auburn, his pro-style offense produced a 1,000-yard rusher in Tre Mason, who started six games after mid-season. Under Loeffler, Mason became the first non-QB to lead Auburn in total offense for a season since Bo Jackson in 1985.

At Temple, Loeffler guided the 9-4 Owls' offense that was seventh nationally in rushing averaging 256.5 yards per game and 39th nationally in scoring (30.6 ppg). Running back Bernard Pierce was sixth nationally in rushing, averaging 123.4 yards a game.

Loeffler spent the 2009 and 2010 seasons at Florida as the quarterbacks coach. He led a Florida quarterback unit that led the nation in pass efficiency (167.3) in 2009, after they passed for 3,305 yards for 28 touchdowns with just five interceptions. In his first season at Florida, the Gators ranked second in the SEC in passing offense with an average of 236.1 yards per game. Loeffler guided Tim Tebow in his final season at Florida, during which he passed for 2,895 yards and 21 touchdowns, finishing his senior year with a passing efficiency of 164.17. Tebow left Florida with five NCAA, 14 SEC and 28 UF records.

Loeffler spent the 2008 season with the NFL's Detroit Lions, where he guided a quarterback unit that threw for 2,960 yards.

For six seasons (2002-07), Loeffler coached the quarterbacks at Michigan, his alma mater, including second-round NFL draft pick Chad Henne, who became the first true freshman quarterback to lead his team to a Big Ten title and start in a BCS bowl game. Henne set school marks in career passing yards (9,715), touchdowns (87), completions (828) and attempts (1,387). Loeffler also helped develop John Navarre into Michigan's first All-Big Ten first-team quarterback since 1997. The quarterbacks he coached at Michigan have gone on to play in 318 regular-season NFL games, including 291 starts and four Super Bowl rings as pros.

Loeffler served as Central Michigan's quarterback coach for two seasons in 2000-01.

A quarterback for the Wolverines from 1993-96, Loeffler received his bachelor's degree in 1996. As a student and graduate assistant coach at Michigan, he worked with two future NFL quarterbacks in Tom Brady and Brian Griese and was part of the Wolverines' 1997 undefeated national championship season.

Loeffler, a native of Barberton, Ohio, and his wife, Amie, have two children, son Luke and daughter Alexis.

Former Virginia Tech long snapper and receiver Shane Beamer is in his fourth season on the Hokies' coaching staff as the associate head coach and running backs coach after spending four seasons at the University of South Carolina.

In his first year back in Blacksburg, he provided mentorship to David Wilson, who broke the school's single-season rushing record and was named both an AP All-American and the ACC's Player of the Year and went on to be taken in the first round of the NFL Draft by the New York Giants. Last year, his group of running backs didn't fumble the ball in 350 combined attempts, marking the first time under head coach Frank Beamer's tenure that feat has happened.

Beamer coached several spots for the Gamecocks, including the spurs and strong safeties, as well as serving as the special teams coordinator in both 2009 and 2010. Beamer was also Carolina's recruiting coordinator, duties he took on following the conclusion of the 2008 regular season.

In 2009, Beamer's special team units recorded five blocked kicks, tying for the SEC lead and tying for the eighth-highest total in the nation. Beamer helped coach a defense that ranked third in the SEC and 15th in the country in total defense and second in the league and eighth in the land in passing defense.

Beamer's first class as the recruiting coordinator (2009) was ranked the nation's 12th-best class by both Rivals.com and Scout.com and the 2010 and 2011 recruiting classes were again ranked among the nation's top 25. Beamer was nominated for the 2009 Frank Broyles Assistant Coach of the Year award following the season.

Beamer joined the South Carolina staff in 2007, coaching the outside linebackers and serving as the co-coordinator of special teams in his first season in Columbia. He worked with the cornerbacks in his second campaign. That 2008 unit was one of the most productive on the field as they were part of a defensive squad that finished the regular season ranked second in the nation in pass defense and 13th in total defense.

Beamer went to South Carolina after spending the previous three seasons at Mississippi State University. He was hired by Sylvester Croom in January 2004 to coach the Bulldog cornerbacks under defensive coordinator Ellis Johnson. In his first two seasons at MSU he guided three defensive backs to Freshman All-SEC accolades. He made the move to running backs coach in the spring of 2006. He also served as the program's recruiting coordinator.

Beamer went to Mississippi State from the University of Tennessee, where he spent three seasons as a graduate assistant helping with the cornerbacks, coaching the place-kickers, punters and long snappers and assisting in all special teams areas.

He also oversaw game opponent scouting while at UT and earned a master's degree in sport science in December 2003.

Prior to joining the staff at Tennessee, Beamer worked one season (2000) as a graduate assistant at Georgia Tech, helping with the Yellow Jacket quarterbacks and wide receivers.

Beamer earned his bachelor's degree from Virginia Tech in 1999 and was the Hokies' starting long snapper for three seasons. He also contributed as a wide receiver. He played on four bowl teams and three Big East Conference championship squads.

He concluded his college playing career by helping the 1999 Hokies to a No. 2 final regular-season ranking and a berth in the national championship game played against Florida State in the Sugar Bowl.

Born in Charleston, S.C., Beamer is the son of longtime Virginia Tech head football coach Frank Beamer. He is married to the former Emily Gladney, a Starkville, Miss., native. The couple has two daughters, Sutton and Olivia, and a son, Hunter.

Former Illinois standout and Super Bowl champion Aaron Moorehead is in his second season on the Virginia Tech coaching staff after spending the previous three seasons as an offensive assistant at Stanford.

Handed a young and inexperienced group when he arrived in 2013, Moorehead worked tirelessly to turn the group into one that could be counted on for big plays. Joshua Stanford, Willie Byrn and Demetri Knowles became the first trio in program history to each record 40 or more receptions in a season. Byrn finished with 51 catches, tied for the fifth-most in program history, and Stanford was named a freshman All-American.

At Stanford, Moorehead worked with the wide receivers, helping coach a team to three-straight BCS games, including wins in the Orange and Rose Bowls. Under his tutelage, the duo of Doug Baldwin and Ryan Whalen combined for 99 catches for 1,296 yards and 10 touchdowns in 2010, leading to NFL roster spots for both. Additionally, Chris Owusu was picked up by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 2012 following his senior season at Stanford and Drew Terrell was second on the team in touchdowns catches in 2012 for the Cardinal.

Prior to his time at Stanford, Moorehead spent the 2009 season as a graduate assistant coach at the University of New Mexico, where he worked with the wide receivers.

Following his collegiate career at Illinois, Moorehead spent five seasons (2003-07) in the NFL with the Indianapolis Colts, including an appearance in Super Bowl XLI when the Colts beat the Chicago Bears. In five seasons with the Colts, Moorehead appeared in 36 games, including one start, catching 31 passes for 330 yards and one touchdown.

Moorehead's father, Emery, played 12 seasons (1977-88) in the NFL with the New York Giants, Denver Broncos and Chicago Bears and was part of the Bears Super Bowl-winning team following the 1985 season. The Mooreheads are the only father-son combination to play in, and win, a Super Bowl.

A four-year letterwinner at Illinois from 1999-2002, Moorehead caught 85 passes for 1,293 yards and nine touchdowns.

A native of Deerfield, Ill., Moorehead attended Deerfield High School where he participated in football, baseball and track, finishing fourth in the state 110-meter high hurdles as a senior. He is the cousin of Brad Daugherty, the former North Carolina and NBA standout.

@SSearels

Stacy Searels, the former offensive line coach at Texas, Georgia and LSU, and an All-America offensive lineman as a player at Auburn, was named the offensive line coach at Virginia Tech in January, 2014. Just prior to the 2012 Alamo Bowl, Searels was promoted to assistant head coach for the Longhorns.

In 2013, his final season in Austin, Searels' line enabled the Longhorns to finish 36th in the country in rushing offense and 17th in sacks allowed per game. In 2012, the offensive line, which was without a senior starter, allowed the opposition to post just 4.1 tackles for loss per game, which ranked tied for third in the country.

During his first season at Texas, Searels helped the Longhorns rank 21st nationally and third in the Big 12 with 210.4 rushing yards per game.

Searels joined the Longhorns after coaching the offensive line at Georgia for four seasons (2007-10). He added the duties of running game coordinator in 2009. During his time in Athens, the Bulldogs ranked in the top 25 in the nation in fewest sacks allowed three times, including ranking sixth and leading the SEC in 2009 with just 12.

Searels arrived at Georgia in January 2007, after serving four years coaching the offensive line at LSU from 2003-06. During that time, the Tigers won a National Championship (2003), a SEC Championship (2003), and two SEC West titles (2003 and 2005), while compiling a 44-8 record.

Searels made a habit of producing All-America linemen for LSU. He coached two first-team All-Americans in Stephen Peterman and Rimington Award winner Ben Wilkerson and a second-team All-America selection in Andrew Whitworth. Five of his Tigers' linemen earned spots on NFL rosters.

Searels joined the staff at LSU after a two-year stint as offensive line coach at Cincinnati. Prior to joining Cincinnati, Searels served as an assistant coach at Appalachian State from 1994-2000, helping the I-AA Mountaineers to five playoff appearances and a pair of Southern Conference titles. While at Appalachian State, Searels was presented with the NCAA Award of Valor, recognizing him for his act of courage following a head-on collision involving a van carrying members of the Mountaineers' football team and support staff on Sept. 30, 2000.

Searels got his start in coaching as a graduate assistant at Auburn in 1992, working with a Tigers squad that posted a perfect 11-0 mark in 1993.

A three-year starter on the offensive line at Auburn, Searels earned first-team All-America honors from both The Associated Press and Football News as a senior in 1987. He blocked for Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson in 1985 and All-American Brent Fullwood in 1986 before becoming a fourth-round draft pick by the San Diego Chargers in 1988. He played two seasons with the Chargers before moving to the Miami Dolphins in 1990, where they made the playoffs that season. He ended his professional career in 1991 with the New York/New Jersey Knights of the World League of American Football.

A native of Trion, Ga., Searels graduated from Auburn with a degree in marketing and transportation in 1990. He added a master's degree in higher education administration from Auburn in 1995.

Searels is married to the former Patricia Hale, and they have two daughters, Taylor and Savannah.

Bryan Stinespring, an integral member of the Virginia Tech staff as both a coach and recruiter, is in his second season as recruiting coordinator at Virginia Tech while also overseeing the tight ends.

Stinespring was Tech's offensive coordinator from December 2001 through the end of the 2012 season.

The 2014 season marks Stinespring's 22nd year as a full-time coach on Frank Beamer's staff at Tech. In 2006, he returned to coaching the tight ends after eight seasons as the offensive line coach.

After losing a reliable veteran in the preseason last year to a season-ending injury, Stinespring took a raw true freshman in Calvin Cline and made him into a receiving threat as he finished the season with 26 receptions, tied for the second-most under head coach Frank Beamer for a tight end.

During his time as the offensive line coach, one of Stinespring's star pupils, center Jake Grove, won the 2003 Rimington Trophy and became the university's third unanimous All-American. He was the first center taken in the 2004 NFL Draft.

In 2011, junior tailback David Wilson broke the school's single-season rushing record en route to ACC Player of the Year honors and becoming an NFL first-round draft pick. His offense also featured the top two receivers in school history and Jacobs Blocking Trophy recipient Blake DeChristopher at tackle.

In 2010, Stinespring's offense flourished and was led by ACC Player of the Year Tyrod Taylor who quarterbacked the Hokies to an ACC title. In 2009, Ryan Williams led a rushing offense that ranked 14th in the country; and, in 2007, Stinespring had four players from his offense taken in the NFL Draft, including offensive tackle Duane Brown in the first round. In 2005, three of his linemen were named to the All-ACC team with two of them earning first-team honors.

Stinespring took over the offensive line duties in the spring of 1998 and helped mold Tech's young line into a unit that showed steady improvement during the '98 season. Two members of that line – tackle Derek Smith and guard Dwight Vick – went on to sign with NFL teams.

In 1999 and 2000, the offensive line helped clear the way as the Hokies set new BIG EAST rushing marks in back-to-back seasons. Center Keith Short, guard Matt Lehr and tackle Dave Kadela all earned second-team All-BIG EAST honors in '99. Lehr repeated as a second-team pick in 2000, while Kadela moved to first team. In 2002, tackle Anthony Davis earned all-conference honors as the offensive front cleared the way for record-setting tailbacks Lee Suggs and Kevin Jones, who combined for over 2,100 yards.

Prior to taking over the O-line duties, Stinespring coached Tech's tight ends and assisted with the offensive line for five seasons. He was the Hokies' recruiting coordinator for eight years (1994-2001) and continues to be instrumental in helping attract top high school talent to campus. In 2001, he served as Tech's assistant head coach along with his other duties.

Stinespring initially joined the Tech staff in 1990 as a graduate assistant coach and spent two seasons in that capacity helping with the offensive line. After serving as the director of sports programs in 1992, he was elevated to a full-time coaching position prior to the 1993 season.

A native of Clifton Forge, Va., Stinespring was a walk-on player for James Madison University in the early 1980s. He is married to the former Shelley Franklin of Richmond, Va. Bryan and Shelley have a son, Daniel, twin daughters, Caroline and Olivia, and another daughter, Ella.

TECH DEFENSE

“I really thought, as a defense, we made strides in a lot of areas and at a lot of positions coming out of spring practice. We had a lot of holes to fill defensively (going into spring practice). We got to replace five of our front six. They were all playmakers. Our first-line guys have really come along, and I’m pleased with them. I feel real good about where we’ve come from. I think we’re faster than what we were a year ago. We’re not as deep in some spots, but may be a little bit more athletic. Sometimes, the greatest teacher is that experience. I’m sure there will be some growing pains as we gain experience, but as far as ability, I like where we are right now.”

Regarded as one of the top defensive minds in the game, Bud Foster is in his 28th season at Virginia Tech. The 2006 Broyles Award winner has helped mold nationally ranked defenses on a yearly basis during his 19 years as a coordinator.

Foster, who was a finalist three previous times (1999, 2001, 2005) for the award given to the nation's top assistant football coach, has gained a well-deserved reputation as one of the nation's most respected defensive coaches while serving on Frank Beamer's football staff at Tech.

Foster's 2013 unit was one of his best team units, finishing fourth in the country in total defense and finishing in the top 15 of six other major team categories. A pair of All-Americans and the league's defensive rookie of the year helped lead a unit that placed eight players on one of the two All-ACC teams.

After an off year by Foster's standards in 2010, the Hokies roared back to form in 2011 despite starting nine freshmen or sophomores for most of the season after injuries claimed three starters for the year. His defense finished seventh in the country in scoring defense and 10th in total defense. The 2012 squad finished the season strong, placing 14th in pass efficiency defense and 18th in total defense.

In 2008, despite losing seven starters to NFL camps from the 2007 team, his young and inexperienced group finished seventh in the nation in total defense and in the top 20 of five other categories. In 2009, his group rounded into form late and finished 12th in the country in total defense and was led by All-American Cody Grimm. His young group led the nation in 2010 in turnover margin and tied for second in the country in passes intercepted (23) with All-American Jayron Hosley leading the way as the Hokies claimed another ACC title.

The 2007 group was also among the nation's elite, featuring a pair of first-team All-Americans in Brandon Flowers and Xavier Adibi, along with six all-conference selections.

The 2006 unit led the nation in total defense for the second straight year. The unit also led the nation in passing and scoring defense. The 2005 squad led the country in total defense and ranked among the top three teams in three other categories. It produced two first-team All-Americans along with four all-conference players. Tech's 2004 defense ranked in the top five nationally in total defense, pass defense, scoring defense, interceptions and turnovers gained.

After helping Tech to the national championship game in 1999, Foster was recognized as the 2000 Division I-A Defensive Coordinator of the Year by American Football Coach magazine. Tech's 1999 defensive unit led Division I-A in scoring defense and ranked third in two other categories.

Following numerous seasons, Foster has been pursued by big-time programs for their defensive coordinator position, but he has opted to continue his long-standing football association with Beamer. That association dates back to 1979 when Foster was a strong safety and defensive end at Murray State and Beamer was the defensive coordinator. Foster began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at MSU in 1981, Beamer's first season as the head coach.

Since coming to Tech in 1987, Foster has worn several coaching hats. He coached the inside linebackers for one year in 1987, then tutored the outside linebackers for the next five seasons. Foster assumed responsibility for both sets of linebackers prior to the 1993 season and also took over special teams coaching that year. The following year, he coached the inside linebackers and special teams. Foster assumed the position of co-defensive coordinator in 1995 and took over as the sole defensive coordinator in '96. The inside linebackers continue to be his primary responsibility.

A 1981 graduate of Murray State, Foster was an outstanding strong safety and outside linebacker from 1977 to 1980. After two years as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Foster was elevated to a full-time staff position. The Nokomis, Ill., native coached outside linebackers for three seasons before taking over the inside and outside linebackers in 1986. He also served as MSU's recruiting coordinator and worked with special teams.

Foster and his wife Jacqueline have three children: Amy Porter, Grant and Hillary. Daughter Amy has a 6-year-old daughter, Jaiden Olivia.

Former Virginia Tech All-American and Tech Sports Hall of Fame member Cornell Brown is in his fourth season on the Hokies' coaching staff, working with the outside linebackers and helping out with the defensive ends.

Last season, in limited action, Josh Trimble started five games at outside linebacker and recorded 20 tackles and a sack for a defense that finished fourth nationally in total defense and in the top15 of six other major team categories.

The Lynchburg, Va., native joined the coaching ranks in 2005 as a coaching assistant working with linebackers for the Cologne Centurions in the NFL-Europe League. Brown became a full time defensive line coach for the Frankfurt Galaxy the following year and helped the team to back-to-back World Bowl appearances, winning the league title in 2006. While coaching the defensive line, he helped develop free-agent tackle Remi Ayodele of the Super Bowl Champion New Orleans Saints.

NFL-Europe's schedule allowed Brown to also work as a graduate assistant coach at Virginia Tech during the Hokies' 2006 and 2007 seasons. He helped develop defensive units that led the nation in total defense and scoring defense in '06 and were ranked third and fourth, respectively, in those categories in 2007. He had a helping hand in developing draft choices Chris Ellis, Carlton

Powell and Jason Worilds.

Brown attended Virginia Tech and played defensive end from 1993 through 1996, helping the Hokies to a bowl game each season.

Brown became the first Virginia Tech football player to gain consensus All-America honors as a junior when he was named to five first teams in 1995. Brown was a first-team A-A pick by AP, UPI, the Football Writers Association, The Sporting News and Football News. He finished the year with 103 total tackles, including a BIG EAST-leading 14 sacks.

He was selected National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News and was one of five finalists for the Defensive Player of the Year. In 1996, Brown missed three games, but still earned first-team honors from Walter Camp and second-team recognition from AP. He posted eight sacks, five other tackles behind the line, 19 quarterback hurries and 58 total tackles during the '96 season.

Brown had his Tech jersey retired on Nov. 20, 2002, during the West Virginia game. He was also inducted into the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame in April of 2013.

A sixth-round draft pick of the Baltimore Ravens, Brown played seven seasons in the NFL and was a member of the Ravens' Super Bowl XXXV championship team.

Former Virginia Tech defensive standout and NFL product Torrian Gray, who is in his ninth season as the Hokies' defensive secondary coach and second season as the passing game coordinator, has made a big impact on Tech's defense.

The 2013 season may have been Gray's finest as he relied on a pair of true freshman for most of the season as his seniors were sidelined with injuries. The duo of Kendall Fuller and Brandon Facyson combined for 11 interceptions and finished first and second, respectively, in the ACC Defensive Rookie of the Year voting. Despite missing almost all of the final five games, Kyle Fuller was named a second-team All-American and helped lead a group that finished fifth nationally in pass efficiency defense, sixth in interceptions and eighth in passing defense. Kyle Fuller was the 14th overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft by the Chicago Bears and Antone Exum was selected in the sixth round by Minnesota.

In 2011, all four members of his secondary made the All-ACC squad. That secondary helped Tech finish 14th in the country in pass efficiency defense and tied for 18th nationally in passes intercepted. Kyle Fuller led the team with 14.5 tackles for loss and the secondary combined for 10 of Tech's 16 picks. In 2012, the secondary helped pace a defense that finished 14th in pass efficiency defense once again and 24th in passing defense.

In 2010, the defense – led by first-team All-American Jayron Hosley – finished tied for second in the country in passes intercepted. Hosley led the nation with nine picks and combined with Rashad Carmichael for 13 total interceptions, the most in the nation for a cornerback combo. Carmichael went on to be drafted by the Houston Texans in 2011 and Hosley was taken by the New York Giants in the third round of the 2012 Draft.

His 2009 group finished 11th in the country in pass defense and eighth in pass efficiency defense and was led by eventual NFL Pro Bowler Kam Chancellor. In 2008, led by All-American Victor Harris, Gray's secondary was ranked among the nation's leaders in pass defense (129.1 ypg) and interceptions (20).

In 2007, Gray oversaw a pass efficiency defense ranked fifth in the country, led by three All-ACC performers in Harris, Brandon Flowers and D.J. Parker. Flowers thrived under Gray, earning All-America honors for the second time, including first-team honors en route to becoming a second-round pick in the NFL Draft. In 2006, Gray led a secondary that ranked as the nation's No. 1 pass defense and the No. 2 team in pass efficiency defense.

Prior to coming to Blacksburg, Gray spent the previous two seasons as assistant defensive backs coach with the NFL's Chicago Bears. During the 2005 season, the Bears ranked fifth in the NFL in passing defense and finished tied for second in interceptions (24) as defensive backs Nathan Vasher and Mike Brown were both elected to the Pro Bowl.

Gray began his coaching career at the University of Maine, serving as defensive backs coach for two seasons (2000-01). Gray spent the 2002 and 2003 seasons as defensive backs coach at the University of Connecticut.

During his playing career at Virginia Tech (1992-96), Gray helped the Hokies to four consecutive bowls for the first time in school history. He played on 97 percent of the Hokies' defensive plays over his last three seasons, starting at rover in 1994 and '95, and handling the starting free safety duties in 1996.

Gray was named All-BIG EAST all three seasons and helped Tech to conference championships his last two years. He shared the team lead in interceptions in both 1993 and 1994 and was named the Hokies' Outstanding Defensive Back in 1996. Gray earned a bachelor's degree in consumer studies from Tech.

He was drafted in the second round of the 1997 NFL Draft (49th overall) by the Minnesota Vikings. He started five games as a rookie, including two playoff contests. He contributed as a starter in the nickel package and as a special teams player before retiring in the spring of 2000 due to a knee injury. The Vikings advanced to the playoffs in each of his three seasons.

A native of Lakeland, Fla., Gray has a daughter, Tori.

Charley Wiles, a former All-America player for Frank Beamer at Murray State, has produced five All-Americans of his own since joining Beamer's Virginia Tech staff as defensive line coach in 1996. Last year, he added the title of running game coordinator for a defense that has been stout against the rush, finishing in the top 30 nationally the past three seasons.

Among the top players Wiles has helped develop during his 19 seasons directing the Tech line are ends Corey Moore and Cornell Brown.

In 2012, he started four underclassmen for the most part along the line, and that group played a big part in finishing 19th in the country in sacks per game and tied for ninth in tackles for loss per game. Last year, tackle Derrick Hopkins earned All-America honors and helped lead a group that finished 10th nationally in rushing defense, seventh in sacks and 15th in tackles for loss.

In 1999, Moore won the Mike Fox/Bronko Nagurski Award as the nation's best defensive player and the Lombardi Award as the best lineman. He also became Tech's second unanimous All-American and was chosen the BIG EAST Defensive Player of the Year two consecutive years. Brown was a two-time All-America pick, taking consensus honors as a junior in 1995 when he was named the National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News and the BIG EAST Defensive Player of the Year.

In 2005, Wiles helped mold end Darryl Tapp into a first-team All-America selection, a first-team All-ACC selection, and a Hendricks and Lott Awards finalist. Tapp now plays on Sundays for the Detroit Lions.

Wiles also coached John Engelberger, who was named to the second team on The Associated Press All-America team, and tackle David Pugh, who was a third-team All-America pick by The Sporting News. In 2008, end Chris Ellis and tackle Carlton Powell were both taken in the NFL Draft. In 2009, Jason Worilds flourished under his guidance and was drafted in the second round by the Pittsburgh Steelers. Two other players also signed NFL free agent deals.

In all, 22 of Wiles' players have won all-conference honors, including Tapp, who was a first-team All-ACC pick during each of the Hokies' first two seasons in the league. In 2013, eall four starting linemen made one of the two All-ACC squads.

During the 1999 season, Wiles coached a veteran line which he helped mold into what The Sporting News rated as the best Division I-A defensive line in the college ranks prior to the season. That line helped the Hokies finish first in the nation in scoring defense and third in rushing defense and total defense. Tech's 2001 defensive line was rated as the fourth-best in Division I-A by The Sporting News.

Wiles is on his second tour of duty at Tech. He originally joined Beamer's Tech staff as a graduate assistant in 1987 and worked in that capacity for two years. Wiles first had a player-coach relationship with Beamer, when Beamer was the head man at Murray State. Wiles won Kodak Division I-AA All-America honors as an offensive lineman in 1986.

When he left Tech after the 1988 season, Wiles spent a year on the staff at East Tennessee State. He then returned to Murray State for a six-year coaching tenure, winding up as the Racers' co-defensive coordinator. In 1995, he helped coach the Racers to an 11-0 regular-season mark and a berth in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs. Wiles also served as MSU's recruiting coordinator, helping land many of the Racers' top players.

When Wiles rejoined Beamer at Tech in 1996, he fulfilled a goal he had set during his first stint in Blacksburg. The Hokies have competed in bowl games during each season since he rejoined the staff.

A native of DeLand, Fla., and a three-sport star at DeLand High School, Wiles is married to the former Andrea Wilder of Booneville, Ind. They have a daughter, Kendell, and a son, Eric.

ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR FOR FOOTBALL OPERATIONS

The Virginia Tech athletics department could choose no better person to head up football operations than associate athletics director for football operations Dr. John Ballein, whose rich history with the university makes him the perfect person for the job. Ballein, who received his doctorate of education from Virginia Tech in 2006 and worked on Coach Frank Beamer's first Virginia Tech staff in 1987 as a graduate assistant coach, handles all administrative and operational duties dealing with the football program and is considered Coach Beamer's right-hand man.

Ballein served as departmental recruiting coordinator prior to being promoted to assistant director of athletics for football operations in 1996 and, in 2000, received another promotion to his current position for his excellent work throughout the years with Tech football.

A native of Bentleyville, Pa., Ballein's accomplishments as a multifaceted athlete at Bentworth High School in football, baseball and wrestling, led to his 2013 induction into the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame (Washington-Greene Chapter). Ballein excelled at football where he starred on the defensive side of the ball, setting several Bearcats records, including single-game tackles, single-season tackles and most points earned on defense for tackles, assists and interceptions. Ballein was named Bentworth's Outstanding Defensive Player, and was a Tri-County all-star and the winner of the Paul Silver All-Around Athlete of the Year award in 1979.

Ballein went on to play linebacker at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, where he graduated with a degree in health and physical education in 1983. He later earned his master's in education from Old Dominion University in 1987. In 1983-84, Ballein served as a teacher and a football coach at Woodrow Wilson High School in Portsmouth, Va., and then at Western Branch High in Chesapeake, Va., in 1985-86.

What makes Ballein so important is the rapport he has with all the players. His office, adjacent to Coach Beamer's, is a preferred hangout for the players, and he is one of the most beloved and respected members of the staff.

"It can be intimidating making the transition from high school to college," said former Hokie cornerback and 2014 first-round NFL Draft pick Kyle Fuller. "But something my brother [Vincent] told me stuck with me. He said that if I had any issues, whether it was football-related, academics, private life or if I simply just needed somebody to talk to, find John Ballein. I promise you that I was in his office more than once. The players respect John because they know he cares, and that he wants what's best for them as people. My brother Kendall is still in the program, and now that I'm gone, I told him that if he had any concerns at all, find John Ballein!"

Ballein is married to the former Stephanie Green, a Hokie basketball player in her undergraduate days, now the senior woman administrator/associate athletics director at Radford University. They have two daughters, Jordan Gray, 18, and Jalyn Ann, 16.

Bruce Garnes, a 1994 graduate of Virginia Tech, is in his 16th year assisting with operations for the Hokies' football office and his third as deputy director.

For 15 years, he has served as the liaison between the academic community and football and has helped the Hokies with their recruiting efforts. Garnes also assists Dr. John Ballein, the associate athletics director for football operations, with Tech's coaching clinics.

A native of Martinsville, Va., Garnes graduated from Tech with a bachelor's degree in sport management. He received a master's at Tech in counseling education in 1996.

A 1989 graduate of Magna Vista High School in Ridgeway, Va., Garnes, 43, was married to the former Ashleigh Waddle this past summer and enjoys golf, jogging and watching all Virginia Tech athletic teams compete.

GIVING COACHES AND PLAYERS AN EDGE IN PREPARATION

To help prepare athletes for game day, the video office equips Hokie football players and coaches with everything required to scout opponents and to improve personal performance.

Virginia Tech's XOS Technology, a system also utilized by NFL teams, gives the coaching staff a wealth of information at its disposal in a matter of seconds. The department gathers video of Tech practices and games in addition to opponent footage and labels every play in terms of down, distance, formation, protection and end result. This information is matched with video and then entered into a computer database accessible to coaches and players at any time.

"Players at this level have to realize that there is a lot more involved than just playing the game," Tech defensive coordinator Bud Foster said. "(The XOS Technology) has been a great tool. Besides the quality, it's right there at your fingertips."

Every meeting room is equipped with high-definition laptops and projectors to provide the best quality video for the team. Each meeting room is connected to the computer database, giving coaches and players 24-hour, easy access to information. All of the coaches' offices are also equipped with computers, so that each member of the staff can instantaneously pull up footage of any scenario. In addition to the video provided in the meeting rooms, the players and coaches also have access to video of practice, teaching tapes and opponent games via iPads, which allows them to study video anytime and anywhere.

"The greatest teaching tool is the ability to show someone what they're doing, right or wrong," head coach Frank Beamer said. "With our video equipment, we can do that quickly. The ease with which we can do these things and the way we can put certain plays and scenarios together makes us more efficient in preparing for games on Saturday."

The video staff is also responsible for the stadium video display, HokieVision, which was installed in 2013, replacing a 13-year-old structure in the north end zone of Lane Stadium. Complete with a new Daktronics line array sound system, this true 19mm 1080i high-definition Panasonic video board measures 45-by-95 feet with a video board that takes up approximately 4,275 square feet to make it the 11th-largest video board for an on-campus stadium.

A production studio with state-of-the-art equipment was built in Merryman Athletic Center for the use of the staff to run the video board in Lane Stadium, plus the two boards in Cassell Coliseum.

The video staff can use the LED display for on-field presentations, graduation ceremonies and other stadium events.

The video display in Lane Stadium is operated from a production studio in Merryman Athletic Center.

WALK-ONS AT VIRGINIA TECH

From walk-on to NFL draftee. Sound improbable? Not at Virginia Tech, where it's happened numerous times.

Take John Engelberger for example. The San Francisco 49ers selected Engelberger as the 35th overall pick in the 2000 NFL Draft.

Engelberger, who arrived in Blacksburg as a walk-on in 1995, was following in the footsteps of tight end John Burke, who graduated from Tech's walk-on program as a fourth-round draft pick to the New England Patriots in 1994.

Seven years ago, Will Montgomery was taken by the Carolina Panthers in the seventh round and ended up starting four games at offensive guard as a rookie and almost every game for the Washington Redskins in each of the past four seasons. He'll suit up for the Denver Broncos in 2014.

And in April of 2010, Cody Grimm completed his fairy tale story by being selected in the seventh round by Tampa Bay. He arrived at Tech as an undersized walk-on who played special teams for three years, earning a scholarship along the way for his hard work. But he had a breakout senior season, one in which he earned All-America honors and caught the eyes of NFL scouts in the end. He started several games at safety for the Bucs in his first three seasons, returning an interception for a touchdown.

Walk-on players are an important part of Virginia Tech football. With scholarship reductions, not all high school football players earn scholarships to compete in college. But that doesn't mean there isn't an opportunity for those individuals, especially at Virginia Tech, where walk-on athletes have a history of contributing.

The walk-ons at Virginia Tech are treated in the same first-class manner as the rest of the squad. Former walk-ons have eventually earned scholarships, earned starting positions, gained all-conference and All-America honors and some eventually played pro football.

"The important thing for a walk-on is to know he's going to be given a chance," Tech head coach Frank Beamer said. "The way you track that is to look at programs around the country to see how many scholarships are given to walk-ons.

"We're one of the top two or three programs in the country in that category. So for a guy who's interested in walking on, there's not a better place than right here at Virginia Tech. We give people a chance and we treat them the same as everybody else."

Engelberger was a recruited walk-on, meaning he was invited to try out for the team. He arrived in Blacksburg in 1995 as a 6-foot-4, 210-pound tight end and got into the weight room, transforming his body into that of a big-time college football player. After his redshirt year, he earned a scholarship for his tireless work ethic. Thanks to endless hours of work on the practice field and in the weight room, Engelberger finished his career as one of the best defensive ends in Tech history. His dedication to the game paid off as he played nine years in the NFL as a starting defensive end for the San Francisco 49ers and Denver Broncos.

Burke walked on in 1989 and eventually earned a starting position for the Hokies. He was a four-year letterman at Virginia Tech (1990-93) where he caught 21 passes for 303 yards and two touchdowns. Burke was drafted by the New England Patriots in 1994 and was a member of the Patriots' 1997 Super Bowl XXXI team. He also saw action with the New York Jets, the San Diego Chargers and the Oakland Raiders.

Burke, Engelberger, Grimm and Montgomery aren't the only Hokies to excel in the walk-on program. Tech had five walk-on players start or see playing time in the 1996 Orange Bowl against Nebraska. All five of those former walk-ons earned scholarships and paid big dividends for Tech in the 1996 season.

None of these players would have lived their dream and reached their potential if Virginia Tech hadn't extended the opportunity they were seeking. Their eventual success has become a cherished part of the Hokie football tradition and heritage.

"Our walk-on program is so successful for two reasons," said Dr. John Ballein, the associate athletics director for football operations, who directs the program. "First, our coaches work at it. When they're out on the road, they're looking for players who can fit into our program. Secondly, we have a head coach in Coach Beamer who is loyal to each player in this program."

Tech's walk-on program has provided countless young men a chance to play collegiate football and prove that the evaluation and recruiting process is far from flawless. It allows a young man to mature physically, improve his football skills and contribute to the success of Virginia Tech football.

"No one really knows the difference between a walk-on and a scholarship player because each person is treated exactly the same," Ballein said. "Players know they have an opportunity to earn a scholarship and that they'll be in the best weight program in the country. Combine all those factors and you have the reason why Tech's walk-on program has been successful."

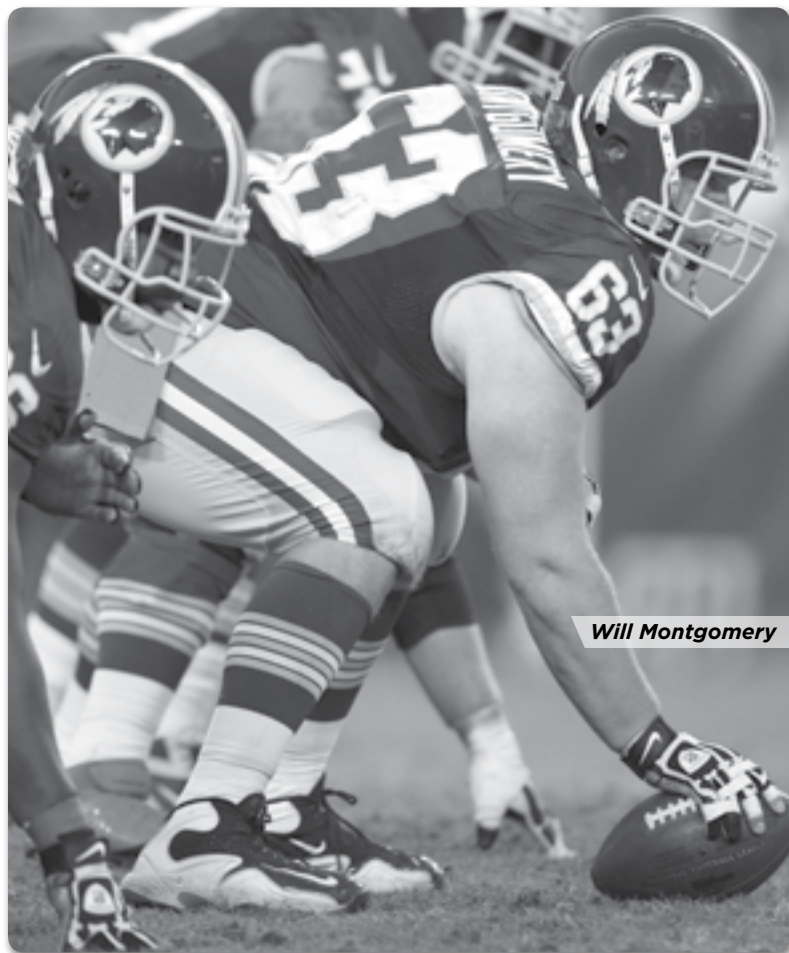

There are two types of walk-ons at Virginia Tech: the invited walk-on and the true walk-on. The invited walk-ons are players recruited by coaches to come into the Tech program. The true walk-ons are students already enrolled at Tech who try to earn a spot in the program. Tech has two workouts (one in the spring and one in the fall) for these players. From there, some are invited back to try and earn a spot on the team.

Hokie walk-ons not only get the chance to play in one of the best programs in the nation, they get a chance to play for one of the best coaches in college football as well.

"I think our walk-on program is successful because we work at it," Beamer said. "We work at recruiting guys who will have a chance to be a player in our program. We evaluate them very carefully. We only have so many spots for walk-ons now and so it is very important that we get kids who have a chance to earn a scholarship.

"I've always liked walk-ons because a lot of them have something to prove and they work harder and they go right by some scholarship guys as far as playing time."

The success of the Tech walk-on program continues to grow right along with the success of the football program. This year the Hokies will welcome another class of walk-ons who are anxious to prove they could be the next great walk-on story at Virginia Tech.

STUDENT SERVICES

STUDENT-ATHLETE ACADEMIC SUPPORT SERVICES

PROVIDING TOOLS FOR ACADEMIC SUCCESS

Student-Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS) is committed to providing a comprehensive academic and personal development program with counseling and advising for student-athletes, offering academic counseling to ensure students receive a complete system of support consistent with university and NCAA policies.

Student-athletes have access to the department's spacious facilities, located in the West Side of Lane Stadium. Opened during the 2006-07 academic year, the SAASS suite, located in the Quillen Family Academic Center, features 17 private tutor rooms, a state-of-the-art classroom, a 36-station computer lab with printer access, a conference room, three quiet areas for reading and studying and a reference library. To accommodate the busy schedules of all of Tech's student-athletes, the SAASS office is open and available for students to access from 8 a.m., until 10 p.m., during the weekdays and from 6 p.m., to 10 p.m., on the weekends. The SAASS office offers a tutor program available to Tech's student-athletes in both individual and group settings. Tutor services are available six days a week and the staff assures options for nearly every subject a student-athlete could request assistance in. The collection of SAASS programs housed in Lane Stadium guarantees that all student-athletes achieve success during their time at Virginia Tech.

Tech's football student-athletes have always seen great success in the classroom much in part to the help of the SAASS office. Since 2001, over 93 percent of Hokie seniors have earned their degree, and the 2013-14 academic year saw the football team earn its highest score ever in the Academic Progress Rate (APR). Tech has also graduated at least 70 percent of its football class in 11 of the past 13 years, with former Hokie standouts Danny Coale and Chris Drager earning Academic All-America honors following the 2011 season.

Amongst FBS schools, Tech has ranked in the top three nationally over the past two years in number of graduated players on a current roster. Current Tech seniors Laurence Gibson and David Wang help highlight these impressive numbers as both enter their final season at Tech having each already earned two undergraduate degrees.

OFFICE OF STUDENT-ATHLETE DEVELOPMENT

FOCUSING ON PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

At Virginia Tech, student-athletes don't just play sports. With help from the Office of Student-Athlete Development, Hokie student-athletes work outside the athletic venue to develop into responsible adults who are assets to their communities.

Led by the Virginia Tech Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, Hokie student-athletes volunteered countless hours in the local community last year. In addition, almost 400 Virginia Tech student-athletes and support group members earned a 3.00 grade-point average during one or both semesters, while achieving great success within athletics as well.

Inspired by the NCAA Student-Athlete Affairs commitment areas, the Office of Student-Athlete Development creates programs designed to enhance student-athletes in five areas: athletic excellence, academic excellence, personal and leadership development, community outreach and career development. In 2006, the program was recognized as a Division I-A "Program of Excellence" for establishing student welfare as the cornerstone of its operating principles.

STUDENT-ATHLETE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) is a committee made up of student-athletes assembled to provide insight on the student-athlete experience. It also offers input on the rules, regulations and policies that affect student-athletes' lives on NCAA member institution campuses. Two members of each sports team serve on SAAC each academic year.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

The Office of Student-Athlete Development aims to help student-athletes lead balanced lifestyles, encouraging emotional well-being, personal growth and decision-making skills. Each team is required to attend two personal development programs during the year to educate student-athletes.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Virginia Tech student-athletes go through their collegiate athletic experiences with the understanding that they will need to secure a job upon graduation. The Office of Student-Athlete Development works to enhance student-athlete career development by collaborating with the Virginia Tech Career Services Office. Student-athletes also receive assistance in learning about majors and minors, preparing for career fairs, and obtaining postgraduate scholarships and internships.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

The Office of Student-Athlete Development is also responsible for nominating student-athletes for academic honors and awards. Athletes are nominated for on-campus, Atlantic Coast Conference and national awards. Student-athletes with a 3.0 GPA are rewarded and honored on the Athletic Director's Honor Roll. In 2013-14, 378 student-athletes and 153 members of support groups were named to this prestigious list, which was a large increase from the 395 who were honored during 2012-13.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

Virginia Tech student-athletes are now involved more than ever in the local community. In conjunction with the mission of the Office of Student-Athlete Development and the Ut Prosim motto, student-athletes are encouraged to volunteer throughout their college experience. Each team partners with a local community organization and volunteers time at community-wide events. Along with large volunteer efforts, student-athletes engage in community support with visits to local hospitals and elementary and middle schools. Community organizations can also request Tech student-athletes to attend local outreach events. Involvement in this program helps maintain and improve the positive relationship between student-athletes and the surrounding community.

In 2013-14, the Virginia Tech football team once again partnered with The United Way of Montgomery, Radford and Floyd to raise funds for local programs and services, with Trey Gresh attending the annual Campaign Kick-Off event.

Student-athletes Ronny and Devin Vandyke, Antone Exum, Kyshoen Jarrett, Luther Maddy and T.J. Shaw visited students at the New River Valley Juvenile Detention Home in July. As has been tradition in recent years, the team assisted the more than 9,000 students and their families move into the campus residence halls during move-in week in August through Hokie Helpers move-in campaign. Members of the team also visited pediatric patients at the El Paso Children's Hospital prior to competing in the 2013 Hyundai Sun Bowl.

At the Sept. 7 home game against Western Carolina, fans donated new and used books to Herma's Readers, a non-profit organization formed as a tribute to head coach Frank Beamer's late mother that promotes the power of reading and literacy to youngsters. Those books, along with proceeds from a helmet auction and a personal donation from Beamer, made it possible for over 20,000 books to be donated to elementary school children across Virginia.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

ONE OF THE NATION'S TOP PROGRAMS HELPS STUDENT-ATHLETES GET BIGGER, FASTER AND STRONGER

Before the lights ever come on, before the players run out of the tunnel for the first game and before the first touchdown is ever scored, college football players work on getting themselves physically and mentally prepared for the rigors of a five-month season. Crucial to this process is the athletic performance program, which includes strength and conditioning, sports nutrition and sport psychology.

Thanks to the direction of Associate Athletics Director for Athletic Performance Mike Gentry, the Virginia Tech athletic performance program is among the best in the nation, helping to make the football program one of the best as well.

One of the main support centers of Tech football is the strength and conditioning program. The results of hard work by the staff and the student-athletes have paid huge dividends as the Hokies have pushed their streak to 21 consecutive bowl game appearances.

The Tech football strength program centers around four major lifts. The bench press and squat are lifts for building all-around strength; the push jerk and power clean help players develop explosive power. Gentry's program also includes conditioning and speed development, which the players do in the speed and agility room, Rector Field House (Tech's indoor practice facility) and on the Hokies' track facilities.

Each player has personal goals which he works to achieve. The team is broken down into four groups based on positions relevant to the players' body size. The players work to progress from Maroon, Orange, Hokie, Iron Hokie and Super Iron Hokie status to the Excalibur Award.

The Excalibur Award was created in 2000 in order to recognize the elite performers in a comprehensive battery of physical performance tests. These tests include: the previously mentioned weightlifting exercises, as well as 10- and 40-yard sprints, vertical jump, stand and reach flexibility test and the five-ten-five yard shuffle. All players are evaluated in this system during each evaluation period and ranked from superior to poor in each event. Players achieving a mean score of superior across all events earn the Excalibur Award.

Assisting Gentry in the weight rooms this year are seven full-time assistant strength and conditioning coaches. Former football players Jarrett Ferguson and Keith Short serve as the director and coordinator, respectively, of strength and conditioning for football. The graduate assistants for football's strength and conditioning program are Nick Acree and Brian Jardine.

DR. MIKE GENTRY ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR FOR ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

Responsibilities: As associate athletics director for athletic performance, Gentry's duties include overseeing the strength and conditioning training of athletes in all 22 varsity sports at Virginia Tech, and he is directly involved in training the football team. Gentry also supervises the sports nutrition and sport psychology programs.

Joined VT Staff: 1987; 28th season.

Record at Virginia Tech: Gentry was inducted into the USA Strength and Conditioning Coaches Hall of Fame in 2010. He was named the second-annual Samson Strength & Conditioning Coach of the Year in the March 2005 issue of American Football Monthly.

In May 2003, Gentry was honored by the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches when he was named a Master Strength and Conditioning Coach. Gentry was one of only 36 coaches in the country to have received the CSCC's highest award when he was honored. In 1995 and 1996, Gentry was recognized by the National Strength and Conditioning Association as a finalist for the National Strength and Conditioning Professional of the Year.

Prior to Virginia Tech: Gentry worked as an assistant strength coach at UNC and as the head strength and conditioning coach at East Carolina University prior to coming to Virginia Tech in February 1987.

Education: Western Carolina, 1979 (physical education); UNC Chapel Hill, 1981 (master's degree); Virginia Tech, 1999 (doctorate; curriculum and instruction with emphasis in motor behavior).

Family: Gentry has a son, Roy Christopher (Bo), a former member of the Hokie football team from 2008-2011. Gentry is married to the former Wendy Ann Williams.

The football strength staff for 2014: (l-r) Brian Jardine, Keith Short, Jarrett Ferguson, Mike Gentry, and Nick Acree.

THE FOOTBALL PROGRAM BOASTS TOP-OF-THE-LINE FACILITIES AND TRAINING PROGRAMS

- The team trains in the 17,000-square foot training center on the first level of the Merryman Athletic Center. The weight room facility features free-weight equipment, a full line of Hammer Strength equipment, 12 platforms and a 6,000-square foot state-of-the-art speed and agility room.
- Tech also uses a 10-by-40-yard sand pit located outdoors and adjacent to the weight room for resistive running drills to improve speed. The Hokies also have the practice fields for use in running drills.
- Players can also train in a new, state-of-the-art weight room located on the second floor of Cassell Coliseum. The new weight room, opened in 2012, is a two-level, 7,800-square foot facility that cost $1 million to build. It features 10 weight stations, a new sound system, televisions, a plyometrics and agility platform, new offices and the latest in weight room flooring. With the two facilities, the Hokies have more than 24,800-square feet of strength and conditioning training space.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS HIGHLIGHT THE SUMMER FOR STRENGTH AND NUTRITION FACILITIES

Keeping Tech among the best in the nation in facilities and student-athlete care, the Athletic Performance department has made several upgrades over the past year. The Nutrition Oasis has moved into a bigger space, now occupying the front two-thirds of the former football lounge area. The newly renovated Nutrition Oasis acts as a fueling station for athletes to “bookend” their training with pre-exercise and recovery fuel. By upgrading and quadrupling in size, this space offers a smoothie bar, recovery beverages, fresh fruit, nuts, bagels and Gatorade products, as well as space for nutrition education and food demos.

The strength and conditioning department has also made improvements. Tech replaced the floors in the 17,000 square foot training center to match that of the W.A. and Mae Street Olympic Sports Complex that opened two years ago in Cassell Coliseum. Everlast UltraTile is the latest in weight room flooring and now covers the floor and weight rack areas of both of Tech’s weight rooms. The Hokies now have more than 30,000 square feet of strength and conditioning space through the two performance centers and a 6,000 square foot agility room, which had a new Mondo turf floor installed to revamp the room and change the color and design as well. This is the first time that either area has been resurfaced.

SPORT PSYCHOLOGY

The Virginia Tech Athletics Department contracts with the Thomas E. Cook Counseling Center to provide psychological services for its student-athletes through the Sport Psychology Office. Dr. Gary Bennett coordinates the sport psychology department, which offers psychological and performance enhancement services for student-athletes. The mission of the sport psychology office is to promote student-athlete learning and development. Consistent with the university's mission to "educate the whole person," the Sport Psychology Program promotes the academic, intellectual, social, emotional, athletic, and personal development of student-athletes.

On average, Bennett conducts over 50 individual sessions per week and meets weekly with teams as the need arises.

The response to the sport psychology program has been positive. The student-athletes are very receptive to the services offered by the doctors. The sport psychology office reaches out to student-athletes who may not have considered going to the counseling service that is offered to all students at Virginia Tech.

DR. GARY BENNETT

SPORT PSYCHOLOGIST

Responsibilities: Bennett meets with student-athletes on an individual basis for personal counseling and to discuss the mental aspects of the game. He also works on team building, communication and performance enhancement. Bennett has taught and supervised pre-doctoral level interns.

He is certified as a sport psychology consultant by the Association of Applied Sport Psychology and is a member of Division 47 (exercise and sport psychology) of the American Psychology Association.

Personal: Bennett lives in Blacksburg and enjoys playing golf and basketball, as well as hiking and skiing, in his spare time.

SPORTS NUTRITION

Eating healthy and making food functional for athletic performance are important aspects of a Virginia Tech student-athlete's life, and that's why the athletics department implemented the sports nutrition program in July of 2002. Jennie Zabinsky is the department's director of sports nutrition.

The sports nutrition program offers a wide variety of services that aim to enhance the performance of each student-athlete. Services include individual assessments, team talks, body composition analysis using the Bod Pod, grocery store tours, supplement management and education, disordered eating counseling, travel meal arrangements, and football training table menu planning and management. Zabinsky works closely with coaches, team physicians, athletic trainers, strength coaches and the sport psychologist to address any performance concerns. She directs the nutrition and performance committee that meets monthly to discuss student-athletes of concern.

The sports nutrition staff manages two facilities, the Nutrition Oasis and Fueling Station, that provide athletes fuel in between workouts, classes and meals. Each facility provides recovery beverages, Gatorade products, smoothies, and a variety of high performance snack options as well as nutrition education resources.

JENNIE ZABINSKY, MAEd, RD

SPORTS MEDICINE

PROVIDING THE HOKIES WITH EXPERIENCED, PROFESSIONAL CARE

The Sports Medicine Department at Virginia Tech is constantly evolving to incorporate new ideas utilizing state-of-the-art resources for the betterment of all Hokie student-athletes. Under the leadership of Associate Athletics Director for Sports Medicine Mike Goforth, the department is constantly improving and developing new strategies to provide the most current and comprehensive care.

The team of certified athletic trainers, orthopaedic surgeons, Board Certified primary care physicians, chiropractors, physical therapists, acupuncturists, brace consultants, sport psychologists, nutritionists, massage therapists and orthotists are available on site to manage the health care needs of Tech athletes. The staff continually looks for ways to enhance the services provided for its athletes as evidenced by its participation in local and national projects pertaining to related topics such as concussion management, hypertension, platelet rich plasma, prevention of antibiotic resistant types of staph infection (MRSA), high ankle sprains and collegiate health care management strategies. Research is considered instrumental to the sports medicine department. The department has participated in several projects with the College of Engineering and the School of Education.

Following the 10th full year in the 4,300-square-foot Eddie Ferrell Memorial Training Room, the space was expanded in 2013 to create a facility that unites the training and medical staffs in a centralized area to care for the needs of all Virginia Tech student-athletes. The new space converted the current training room into a functional rehabilitation space for preventative and post-injury care, adding doctors' offices adjacent to a new treatment area. There is top-of-the-line equipment and a unique style of architecture, developed by Glenn Reynolds, AIA and Larry Perry as the consulting engineer.

Tech now has more than 10,000 square feet dedicated to sports medicine, placing it in the top five percent nationally. The addition of the rehabilitation area makes Tech the first school to install the new Pavi Gym Customized flooring and X-Lab Fitness Rack, while also adding numerous pieces of equipment to address strength, flexibility, proprioception and cardiovascular endurance. This space is directly joined with the new training area that is home to dozens of training tables, two cold tubs, whirlpools, an underwater treadmill and a Biodex System 3. The training room now has offices for the staff, as well as a fully functional physician suite equipped with four state-of-the-art exam rooms, X-ray, diagnostic ultrasound and fluroscan equipment.

In addition, a training room has been constructed in Rector Field House to serve the football team when it practices indoors, and the Gordon Family Mobile Sports Medicine Unit is a portable training room that can be transported to various venues.

Athletes have many options to help prevent or protect them from injuries. The sports medicine staff takes great pride in treating athletes year-round. Special attention is paid to offseason activity. The staff will analyze past injury data from each participant and construct a preventative program that is followed over a nine-week period between the end of the season and the beginning of spring practice. This same procedure is followed during the summer.

A vital part of student-athlete medical services is access to the LewisGale Hospital at Montgomery's SWVA Center for Orthopaedics and various specialty services offered through HCA Southwest Virginia and its affiliated hospitals.

"We are privileged to have access to the finest physicians and services that HCA has at its disposal," Goforth said. "It is comforting knowing that our local hospital has the best care available in this region of the country for our student-athletes."

If physical therapy is needed, student-athletes can be seen in the Ferrell Training Room by physical therapists Chris Rogers, Erin Gibson, Jen McCrady, Jordan Chang and Kelly Wilson, who play a large role in the overall program developed to return an injured athlete to 100 percent. Team chiropractor, Dr. Greg Tilley, provides Tech athletes with specialized treatment for spine-related conditions and plays a huge role in performance enhancement through various chiropractic techniques.

"As certified athletic trainers, for us to have the resources of folks like Erin Gibson, Chris Rogers, Mario Travis, Jen McCrady, Jordan Chang, Kelly Wilson, Greg Tilley and Gary Bennett is a tremendous asset," Goforth said. "The knowledge and skills that they bring are invaluable."

VIRGINIA TECH LEADING THE WAY IN HEAD IMPACT RESEARCH

In 2003, Virginia Tech was the first school to use the HIT System to monitor head impacts experienced by its football players. The HIT System consists of a sensor array that integrates into existing football helmets. This device measures head acceleration for every impact that players experience during each game and practice that they participate in. After each impact is recorded, data is sent to a computer on the sideline for real-time feedback.

While researchers have used the HIT System to better understand the biomechanics of concussion and head impact exposure in football, the athletic training and medical staff have used the system as another tool improve concussion identification in athletes. The 2014 football season will be the 12th year that Virginia Tech has collected head impact data from its players. To date, over 200,000 head impacts have been collected and analyzed. The head acceleration data collected at Virginia Tech using the HIT System has allowed researchers to quantify the head impact exposure that collegiate football players experience. In addition, these data have produced valuable insight to the head accelerations associated with concussion.

Beginning in 2013, the sports medicine staff started a new study looking at different biomarker levels found in the blood of its athletes. These levels are measured before and after the season, as well as in the unlikely event of a concussion being diagnosed. Researchers are looking for correlations between the force each of these athletes sustain over the course of a season (through using the HIT System) and the changes they find in the levels of these specific biomarkers.

Knowing the location, severity, and frequency of head impacts experienced during a season of collegiate football, Virginia Tech researchers developed the STAR, an acronym for the Summation of Tests for the Analysis of Risk, Evaluation System. This system evaluates the ability of football helmets to reduce the probability of concussion, and disseminates the results to the public so that consumers can make informed decisions when purchasing helmets.

The STAR Evaluation System involves a series of 20 drop tests consisting of different impact locations and energies that represents impacts experienced by collegiate football players. Each drop test is weighted based on how often a player experiences that impact scenario throughout a season of play. For each test, risk of concussion is determined based on the head acceleration produced by each helmet.

As part of his research, biomedical engineering professor Stefan Duma tests football helmets to reduce the risk of concussions to players.

An overall predicted incidence of concussion is calculated for each helmet for the given impact exposure to assess helmet performance. This is the first tool to assess helmet performance and make the results available to the public, allowing consumers to make informed decisions when purchasing a new helmet. Led by Dr. Stefan Duma, this work has resulted in a paradigm shift in the way consumers purchase helmets, as well as how helmets are designed. Duma's work and data has been featured nationally on ESPN and NBC, as well as in the New York Times and other nationally recognized media outlets.

2013 SEASON IN REVIEW

HOKIES EXTEND STREAK OF WINNING SEASONS TOPPED BY BOWL GAMES

Virginia Tech began its season against the No. 1-ranked team in the country in front of a packed Georgia Dome and finished the year with a berth in the Hyundai Sun Bowl, continuing its streak of winning seasons and bowl appearances.

The season kicked off with excitement as the Hokies battled top-ranked and two-time defending national champion Alabama in the Chick-fil-A College Kickoff Game in Atlanta. Tailback Trey Edmunds rushed for over 100 yards in his collegiate debut, but the Tide's special teams and defense help spark Alabama to the 35-10 win. Edmunds had the play of the game for the Hokies when he busted a 77-yard touchdown run early in the game on his way to 132 rushing yards, the most ever for a Tech player in his first game.

Looking to bounce back, Virginia Tech played its home opener against Western Carolina a week later, earning a 45-3 win. In the lop-sided affair, Tech allowed only 162 yards of total offense, compared to its 462 yards and three forced turnovers. The Hokies' rushing attack recorded 237 rushing yards and defensive back Detrick Bonner had two interceptions, one of which he returned for a touchdown.

In search of back-to-back wins, the Hokies traveled to Greenville, N.C., to face East Carolina on Sept. 14. The back-and-forth game was sealed when James Gayle got a sack in the end zone for a safety to extend the lead and eventually give the Hokies a 15-10 win. Gayle was named the Atlantic Coast Conference Defensive Lineman of the Week for his stellar effort. Logan Thomas and the offense had to battle back after going down seven early, but the senior quarterback delivered when the Hokies needed him, finishing the game with 258 yards passing and two touchdowns. Demetri Knowles also contributed 99 receiving yards on eight catches.

In the last non-conference game of the season, the Hokies returned home to face Marshall in heavy rain at Lane Stadium. Big plays and three overtimes allowed Tech to sneak past the Thundering Herd, 29-21. The Hokies' offense struggled for most of the game, but Tech drove the field in the final minutes of regulation and scored on a fourth-and-goal touchdown pass to Willie Byrn. Tech's offense finished with 382 total yards on the day, led by Edmunds who rushed for 110 yards, while Tech's defense allowed no points in the second half or overtime.

After a short week, the Hokies traveled back to Atlanta to play Georgia Tech to open ACC play in a primetime Thursday night game. Led by defensive takeaways and returns, the Hokies gained the lead early and never let go en route to a 17-10 win. Thomas passed for 221 yards and a touchdown and added 58 yards on the ground to pace the Hokies' rushing attack that finished with 276 yards. Following the win, Andrew Miller was named the ACC

Offensive Lineman of the Week, Derrick Hopkins was named Defensive Lineman of the Week, and Brandon Facyson earned Co-Rookie of the Week honors after recovering a fumble and intercepting a pass.

Looking to extend the four-game winning streak, the Hokies returned home to battle North Carolina on Oct. 5. Thomas became Virginia Tech's all-time passing leader after throwing for 293 yards and three touchdowns to give Tech a 27-17 win. Byrn led the Hokies in receiving with a career-high 123 yards.

Moving into the rankings, No. 24 Tech hosted Pittsburgh in another ACC showdown. The Hokies picked up a 19-9 win after the defense recorded eight sacks and kicker Cody Journell hit four field goals, including one from 48 yards. Journell's effort earned him ACC Specialist of the Week honors. The defense allowed just 23 rushing yards, stifling Pitt and giving Tech its sixth straight win.

After a huge jump in the rankings, the No. 16 Hokies remained at home to play ACC foe Duke. Despite the 13-10 loss, Tech out-gained Duke 387 yards to 198 yards and held the ball for 39 of the 60 minutes. Kendall Fuller recorded three interceptions, becoming the first Tech freshman to have five in a single season. Fuller was named Co-Defensive Back of the Week by the ACC for his performance.

Looking to bounce back, the Hokies went on the road to face Boston College. Plagued by 17 points off turnovers, Tech lost its third game of the season, 34-27. The Hokie offense finished with 446 total yards, led by Thomas, who threw for a career-high 391 yards, and Joshua Stanford, who had a career-high 171 receiving yards.

In a Coastal Division clash, Tech headed south to face No. 14 Miami in what would prove to be Tech's best game of the year. Notching a season-high 549 yards of total offense, the Hokies knocked off the Hurricanes 42-24 at Sun Life Stadium. Edmunds and J.C. Coleman combined for 142 yards rushing while Thomas passed for 366 yards and became Tech's all-time leader in touchdown passes with 50 in his career. Thomas was named ACC Offensive Back of the Week, David Wang was named Offensive Lineman of the Week, and Stanford was named Co-Receiver of the Week.

The Hokies then returned home for Senior Day to face Maryland. The overtime thriller ended when the Terrapins scored a late touchdown to earn a hard-fought 27-24 win. Thomas finished with 210 yards and two touchdowns and Edmunds tallied 66 rushing yards, but it was Maryland signal caller C.J. Brown who ended it with a 3-yard scamper in the extra frame.

Hoping to retain the Commonwealth Cup, Tech traveled to take on Virginia in the regular season finale. The Hokies picked up their 10th straight win against Virginia by a 16-6 score after Tech's defense led the way, holding Virginia scoreless in the second half. Knowles tallied a career-high 101 receiving yards and Miller was named ACC Offensive Lineman of the Week while Kendall Fuller earned ACC Defensive Back of the Week honors after recording eight tackles and his team-leading sixth interception of the year to set a new Tech freshman record.

Battling No. 17 UCLA in the Hyundai Sun Bowl, the Hokies fell 42-17. Tech had a great drive end in a Coleman touchdown run in the first quarter to tie the game at seven, but after an injury to Thomas and some big plays from UCLA quarterback Brett Hundley, the Hokies didn't muster much offense and the Bruins took control in the fourth quarter, outscoring Tech 28-0 in the final quarter. With the loss, the Hokies finished the season with an 8-5 record for their 21st consecutive winning season.

2013 SUN BOWL

GAME 13 Hokies Fall to UCLA in Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Texas – Virginia Tech saw its quarterback go down with an injury in the second quarter, and the Hokies never recovered, falling 42-12 to 17th-ranked UCLA in the Hyundai Sun Bowl.

With the loss, the Hokies finished the season with an 8-5 record. UCLA closed its season with a 10-3 mark.

Tech quarterback Logan Thomas made his 40th consecutive start and had been as durable as any Tech player in his career, but he took a shot from UCLA linebacker Jordan Zumwalt in the second quarter and did not return.

Tech trailed 14-7 at the time of Thomas' departure, and while the Hokies cut the lead to 14-10 in the third quarter, the Bruins pulled away with 28 points in the fourth stanza.

The Hokies' normally stout defense couldn't contain UCLA quarterback Brett Hundley in the first half, and for the game, the Hokies allowed 197 yards rushing. Hundley rushed for 168 yards on just six carries in the first 30 minutes. He scored on a 7-yard run less than two minutes into the game, and in the second quarter, he gave UCLA the lead for good on an 86-yard touchdown run. The 86-yard run by Hundley was the longest run from scrimmage against the Hokies in a bowl game.

Hundley finished with 161 yards on 10 carries for the game. He also threw for 226 yards and two touchdowns.

Playing in just his third game of the season, Mark Leal completed 12 of 25 passes for 130 yards with two interceptions.

Offensively, Tech finished with 319 yards. Thomas led the Hokies in rushing with 49 yards on three carries. He completed 3 of 11 passes for 46 yards in the final game of his Tech career.

VIRGINIA TECH'S UNANIMOUS ALL-AMERICA SELECTIONS

JIM PYNE
Center • 1993

In 1993, Jim Pyne achieved something even Bruce Smith failed to do – earn unanimous All-America honors. Pyne helped pave the way for an offensive unit that set school season marks for total offense and scoring in 1993.

The Hokies averaged 444.1 yards and 36.4 points per game and finished 14th nationally in total offense, 11th in scoring offense and 10th in rushing.

Pyne was named first-team All-America by the AP, UPI, Walter Camp, the Football Writers Association and the Football Coaches Association (Kodak). He was one of the 12 semifinalists for the Lombardi Award, which goes to the nation's top lineman.

In four seasons at Tech, Pyne played more than 2,700 snaps and allowed just one quarterback sack. He started 35 consecutive games and 41 of the 42 games in which he played.

NATIONAL HONORS

JAKE GROVE WON THE RIMINGTON TROPHY IN 2003

Jake Grove arrived on the Virginia Tech campus as a lightly recruited guard from Forest, Va. He left as a unanimous All-American, winner of the Rimington Trophy as the nation's top center and a second-round draft pick of the Oakland Raiders.

Heading into his junior season, Grove made the switch over to the center position and became a natural fit. By the time he headed into his final season, he was gaining headlines and recognition for his play. He was rewarded by being named to all five major All-America first teams. He was awarded the Dave Rimington Trophy, given to the nation's top collegiate center.

COREY MOORE EARNED THE LOMBARDI AND NAGURSKI AWARDS IN 1999

In three years on campus, Corey Moore amassed 35 sacks for losses, totaling 292 yards. He left Tech as the most decorated player ever to put on the Hokie uniform. He won the 1999 Bronko Nagurski Award as college football's Defensive Player of the Year. Moore also won the 1999 Lombardi Award as college football's lineman of the year. He became Tech's second-ever unanimous All-American, joining Jim Pyne. Moore won the Dudley Award as the top college player in Virginia, the BIG EAST Defensive Player of the Year award and was selected as Football News' Defensive Player of the Year.

MICHAEL VICK WON AN ESPY AS THE NATIONAL PLAYER OF THE YEAR IN 1999

When Michael Vick took to the field against James Madison on Sept. 4, 1999, little did people in attendance or watching on television realize they would be witnessing the beginning of the most exciting two years in Virginia Tech football history.

In 1999, Vick led the Hokies to a perfect 11-0 regular season and a berth in the national championship game, both firsts in school history. The Hokies lost that game to Florida State, but all the talk was about the performance the redshirt freshman put on in that game.

For his accomplishments that year, he was awarded an ESPY by ESPN, given to the nation's top college football player. Vick was awarded the trophy at the ESPY ceremonies on Feb. 14, 2000, in Las Vegas as he mingled with some of sports' all-time greats.

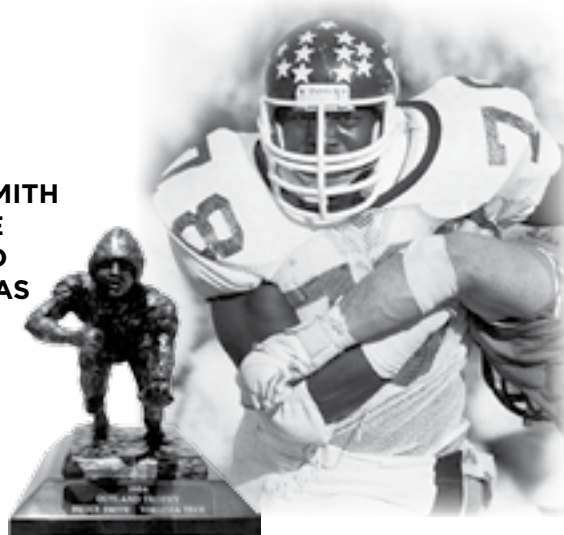

BRUCE SMITH WON THE OUTLAND TROPHY AS THE TOP LINEMAN IN 1984

Bruce Smith, "The Sack Man" of Virginia Tech football, capped his sensational college career in 1984 by winning the Outland Trophy as America's top lineman.

The big announcement was made by Wilt Browning at a press luncheon in Tech's Bowman Room. Browning, a sports columnist of The Greensboro Daily News and a committee member of the Football Writers' Association of America, began by reading a long list of former Outland Trophy winners. He then said, "Add to that list today, the 1984 winner – Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech."

"The one thing though, that stuck in my mind was the statistic on his tackles for losses," Browning said. "In four years at Virginia Tech, he accounted for losses totaling more than five times the length of a football field (504 yards). That's amazing."

Smith was a consensus All-American and was the first Virginian to win one of the national awards (including the Heisman and the Lombardi).

RETIRED NUMBERS & JERSEYS

84 CARROLL DALE

A native of Wise, Va., Carroll Dale entered Virginia Tech in 1956 as an offensive and defensive end. After seeing varsity action as a reserve in the first game of the '56 season, Dale went on to start the remaining 39 games of his college career and became Tech's first bona fide All-American. As a junior in 1958, he was named the Southern Conference Player of the Year. In 1959, Dale was captain of the Tech team and earned first-team A-A honors. Dale led the Hokies in pass receiving each of his four seasons and finished his Tech career with 67 catches for 1,195 yards and 15 touchdowns. He went on to a pro football career that lasted more than a decade and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1987. His Tech jersey was the first to be retired.

78 BRUCE SMITH

Known as "The Sack Man" of Virginia Tech football, Bruce Smith capped his sensational college career in 1984. As a Tech player, Smith had a career total of 71 tackles behind the line of scrimmage for losses totaling 504 yards. Smith had 46 career quarterback sacks, including 22 during his junior season in 1983 when he was named first-team All-America. In 1984, the Norfolk, Va., native won the Outland Trophy as America's top lineman and was a consensus All-American. Smith was the No. 1 player picked in the 1985 National Football League draft. During his pro career, he established himself as one of the greatest defensive players ever to play the game. He ended his career in 2003 as the NFL's all-time sack leader with 200.

10 FRANK LORIA

Despite his 5-9, 175-pound frame, Frank Loria was one of the most tenacious football players ever to play for Virginia Tech. Loria, who started every game at safety from 1965-67, rapidly established himself as one of Tech's all-time greats. During his junior year, he earned first-team All-American honors. As a senior in 1967, Loria became Tech's first consensus All-American, making seven first-team All-American squads. He finished his Tech career with seven interceptions and a number of punt return records. He went on to coach at Marshall. In 1970, at age 23, he died in an airplane tragedy that claimed the lives of the Marshall football team and staff. He was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1999. His number was retired prior to the 1971 season.

73 JIM PYNE

Center Jim Pyne became Virginia Tech's first unanimous All-American when he made all five major teams that were selected in 1993. In addition to All-America honors, Pyne was named winner of the Dudley Award as Virginia's Player of the Year. During his four seasons at Tech, he established himself as one of the Hokies' top linemen of all time, leading the charge for the 1993 team that rewrote the school record books for scoring and total offense. Pyne started 35 consecutive games and 41 of the 42 Tech games in which he played. He allowed just one quarterback sack by the man he was assigned to block during more than 2,700 career snaps. Pyne spent nine seasons as an NFL lineman before becoming an assistant coach in the pro ranks.

BEAMER AMONG FIVE WHO HAVE HAD JERSEYS RETIRED

In 2002, the Virginia Tech Athletics Department developed a new policy on retiring football jerseys. This special honor is bestowed to acknowledge an individual who has won an established national award in their sport, while allowing the number to continue to be worn by others. Tech no longer retires numbers. That year, three jerseys were retired in ceremonies. The jerseys of Frank Beamer, Cornell Brown and Michael Vick were the first to be honored. In 2006, Jake Grove had the same honor bestowed upon him. Corey Moore's jersey has been retired since 2009.

BEAMERBALL

- During the Frank Beamer era at Tech, putting points on the scoreboard has always been a team effort – the offense, the defense and the special teams. It's called BeamerBall, and what sets it apart are the contributions of the defense and special teams.
- During Beamer's time at Tech, a player at every position on the defensive unit has produced at least one touchdown, and 38 different players have scored touchdowns while playing on Tech's special teams. Altogether, the defense and special teams have combined for 134 TDs since Beamer arrived in 1987, including 117 in Tech's past 258 games.
- Under Beamer, Tech's defense has scored 83 TDs, with 55 coming on pass interceptions, 26 on fumble returns and two on fumble recoveries. The special teams have added 51 TDs, including 18 on blocked punts, 19 on punt returns, nine on kickoff returns, four on blocked field goals and one on a fumble recovery.
- Fittingly, the trend started in Beamer's first game as Tech's head coach when true freshman Jon Jeffries returned a kickoff 92 yards for a touchdown against Clemson. It was the Hokies' first TD under Beamer, and it was the first of many scored by the special teams.
- Under Beamer, 85 different players on defense and special teams have scored TDs. Twenty-three of those players – Don Stokes, Jock Jones, Roger Brown, Lawrence Lewis, Antonio Banks, Jim Baron, Keion Carpenter, Pierson Prioleau, Anthony Midget, Cory Bird, Kevin McCadam, Willie Pile, Jimmy Williams, Roland Minor, Vince Hall, D.J. Parker, Brandon Flowers, Chris Ellis, Vincent Fuller, Eric Green, Rashad Carmichael, David Wilson, Jayron Hosley – scored twice.
- Eddie Royal, Xavier Adibi, Jason Lallis, Ike Charlton and Ricky Hall each had three scores; André Davis had four; Victor Harris had five, and DeAngelo Hall had seven.
- Since the start of the 1993 season, Tech is 77-15 in games it scores at least one TD on defense or special teams. Tech is 81-25 under Beamer when scoring a non-offensive touchdown.

BEAMERBALL II

- Tech's tradition for blocking kicks is another part of BeamerBall. It was carried to new heights in 1998 with 10 blocks during the regular season and two more in the Hokies' Music City Bowl game against Alabama.

Derek Di Nardo became the 85th different player on defense or special teams to score a touchdown with this return against Marshall.

- Tech now has 131 blocks in Frank Beamer's 335 games as the head coach. The Hokies have blocked 65 punts (18 returned or recovered for TDs), 39 field goals and 27 extra points.
- The most prolific kick blockers under Beamer have been defensive lineman Bernard Basham (7 kicks) and safety Keion Carpenter (6 kicks). Basham blocked three field goals and four PATs, while Carpenter blocked six punts.
- Tech blocked more kicks in the 1990s than any other Division I-A team. The Hokies blocked 63 kicks during the decade – 31 punts, 18 PATs and 14 FGs. Tech had 46 blocks in the last decade.
- During the Beamer era, Tech has blocked two kicks in a game 23 times, winning 17 of those games. Tech blocked two kicks against four different teams in 1998.

Tech has blocked 131 total kicks under head coach Frank Beamer.

TECH'S BOWL HISTORY

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP APPEARANCE HIGHLIGHTS BOWL STREAK FOR THE HOKIES

The Virginia Tech bowl tradition dates back to 1947 when the Hokies first appeared in the Sun Bowl. In the 67 years since, well over one million fans have passed through the turnstiles to witness Tech compete in 27 bowl games in 13 different stadiums across seven states. The closest distance Tech has traveled for a bowl game was to Atlanta, Ga., which is 413 miles from Lane Stadium, while in 2003, the Hokies traveled to San Francisco for their farthest game, 2,440 miles away.

No matter the mileage, members of the Hokie Nation have always shown up in droves to show their support. Tech's invitation to the Hyundai Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas, extended its bowl appearance streak to 21 consecutive years, the second-longest active streak in the country.

1947 SUN BOWL

The first bowl bid that Tech received followed the 1946 season, when the Hokies played Cincinnati in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas. An early snow covered Blacksburg that year and threatened to end all football practices. Bulldozers and snowplows were used to clear a practice area on the Drillfield and the Hokies got in their bowl preparations. The Tech team encountered more snowy weather when it reached El Paso. The Cincinnati team handled the weather and the Hokies, winning 18-6.

1966 LIBERTY BOWL

It was not until 1966 that Tech received another bowl bid. The Hokies were chosen to participate in the Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn., against Miami (Fla.). The Hokies were 8-1-1 entering the contest and were led by All-American defensive back Frank Loria.

Miami, ranked ninth nationally, won 14-7 in a hard-hitting defensive struggle. The Hokies scored first on a 2-yard plunge by Tommy Francisco, but the Miami defense held Tech to only one first down in the last three quarters.

1968 LIBERTY BOWL

Tech returned to the Liberty Bowl two years later in 1968 and squared off against Mississippi. The Hokies were 7-3 after a rocky 2-3 start and were led by another defensive All-American, linebacker Mike Widger. Ole Miss had a quarterback by the name of Archie Manning and he sparked the Rebels to a 34-17 victory after Tech had taken a 17-0 first-quarter lead.

Chris Kinzer's 40-yard field goal as time expired in the 1986 Peach Bowl gave Virginia Tech its first bowl victory.

A member of Tech's 1966 and '68 bowl teams was none other than current head coach Frank Beamer, who was a starting defensive back. He was credited with three tackles in the 1968 game.

1980 PEACH BOWL

Tech next went bowling against Miami following the 1980 season and lost 20-10 in a hard-fought Peach Bowl contest. That Hokie team sported an 8-3 record and featured one of the finest defensive units in college football.

Tech tailback Cyrus Lawrence emerged as one of the biggest stars of the game. He rushed for 134 yards and scored the lone Hokie touchdown. Ashley Lee, then a freshman linebacker, had 15 tackles for the Techmen.

INDEPENDENCE BOWL

In Tech's first trip to the Independence Bowl in 1984, Outland Trophy winner Bruce Smith led Tech against the Air Force Falcons. Tech's powerful defensive unit held Air Force to only three first downs in the first half, but the Falcons got rolling in the second half. Quarterback Bart Weiss, named the game's Most Valuable Player, was the ringleader as Air Force won the battle, 23-7.

1986 PEACH BOWL

Who will ever forget "The Kick"? It ended perhaps the most stirring bowl game of the 1986 season as Virginia Tech's Chris Kinzer booted a 40-yard field goal to vault the Hokies past North Carolina State in the New Peach Bowl. The 25-24 victory came with no time showing on the clock and provided Tech with one of its top moments in football history.

INDEPENDENCE BOWL

Almost as dynamic was Tech's 45-20 win over Indiana of the Big Ten Conference in the 1993 Independence Bowl game.

The last minute of the first half of the Independence Bowl will be most remembered for its unbelievable action-packed ending. Virginia Tech was leading Indiana, 14-13, with only 35 seconds left until halftime. Indiana had the ball on the Tech 49-yard line, when DeWayne Knight exploded through the IU offensive line to cause a fumble. That is when Lawrence Lewis got "the world's greatest bounce," returning the loose ball 20 yards for a touchdown to give Tech a 21-13 lead over the Hoosiers.

The Hokies, however, were not finished with their dramatics. Tech's Jeff Holland blocked a Hoosiers' field goal try with no time left in the first half and Antonio Banks settled under the ball and raced 80 yards for a score to give the Hokies a 28-13 halftime lead.

1994 GATOR BOWL

At the end of the 1994 season, the Hokies fell to a tough Tennessee team, 45-23, in a transplanted Gator Bowl contest that was held at Florida Field in Gainesville.

The high-powered Volunteer offense totaled 495 yards in the affair behind another Manning, this time Archie's son Peyton, and highly touted tailback James (Little Man) Stewart. Stewart, Tennessee's all-time leading rusher, ran for three touchdowns and threw for another score en route to earning the game's Most Valuable Player award.

Tech's Dwayne Thomas would not be outdone, dazzling the 62,200 fans in attendance by rushing 19 times for 102 yards and one touchdown. Thomas had a 1-yard burst for a score in the second quarter and rambled 27 yards to set up Maurice DeShazo's 7-yard touchdown run in the third quarter.

1995 NOKIA SUGAR BOWL

Tech's 28-10 Nokia Sugar Bowl victory over Texas in 1995 stands alone as the Hokies' biggest win in football postseason play.

1993 Independence Bowl

Bryan Still was named MVP of the 1995 Sugar Bowl after Tech beat Texas 28-10 and the Hokies jumped into the national limelight.

The 1995 Sugar Bowl was special, indeed. It was, at the time, the most prestigious bowl appearance for the Hokies and they made the most of it. Tech overcame a 10-point deficit to beat Texas and earn one of the most stirring victories in the school's athletic history.

The momentum changed dramatically when game MVP Bryan Still returned a punt 60 yards for a Tech touchdown with 2:34 left in the first half.

Tech gained a lead in the third quarter (14-10) on a 1-yard plunge by Marcus Parker. Then Still hauled in a 54-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jim Druckenmiller on a play that spelled doom for the Longhorns.

It was Tech's defense that accounted for the team's final touchdown with 5:06 left in the game. All-American Cornell Brown picked up his second sack of the game, causing a fumble, and tackle Jim Baron scooped up the ball and ran 20 yards to score.

1996 FEDEX ORANGE BOWL

In 1996, the Hokies played Nebraska in another Alliance bowl, the FedEx Orange Bowl. That game, too, was a pressure cooker from start to finish. Nebraska won, 41-21, but led by only three points at 24-21 late in the third quarter.

A crowd of 51,212 at Pro Player Stadium saw Tech quarterback Jim Druckenmiller throw three touchdown passes despite a fierce rush by Cornhusker defenders.

1998 GATOR BOWL

The Hokies made their second trip to the Gator Bowl following the 1997 season to face North Carolina.

The Tar Heels impressed a crowd of 54,116 at Alltel Stadium by holding Tech to a total of 185 yards, its lowest total of the season, and beating the Hokies, 42-3. Tech's only points came on a 40-yard field goal by Shayne Graham late in the third quarter.

1998 MUSIC CITY BOWL

Tech bounced back strong in 1998 by capping a 9-3 season with an eye-opening 38-7 victory over Alabama in the inaugural Music City Bowl in Nashville. A sellout crowd braved freezing rain and a wind chill that dipped below 15 degrees to watch Tech post its first ever win against the Crimson Tide.

Tech clung to a 10-7 lead at halftime before pulling away in the second half behind the defensive and special teams play of bowl MVP Corey Moore. The junior defensive end forced an interception that set up a Tech touchdown midway through the third quarter. Minutes later, he blocked an Alabama punt to pave the way for another Hokie TD. Tech went on to secure the win with two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

2000 NOKIA SUGAR BOWL

In the 1999 season, after a perfect 11-0 regular season campaign, the Hokies returned to the Nokia Sugar Bowl – this time to play for the national championship.

Tech once again put on a great show after a furious comeback led by quarterback Michael Vick. The Hokies led heavily favored Florida State heading into the fourth quarter before falling to the top-ranked Seminoles, 46-29.

2001 GATOR BOWL

For the second time in school history, the Hokies appeared in the same bowl back-to-back when they made the trip to the Gator Bowl in both 2001 and 2002.

Nearly 20,000 Hokie faithful watched Vick play his last game in a Tech uniform in the 2001 game in Jacksonville, Fla., against Clemson. Tailback Lee Suggs ran for three scores and the defense limited the Tigers to 88 yards rushing as the Hokies earned the fifth bowl win in school history. Tech capped its 10-1 season with 41-20 victory over Clemson.

2002 GATOR BOWL

Despite André Davis' 158 receiving yards in his final game as a Hokie, Tech was unable to hold off Florida State and lost the 2002 Gator Bowl, 30-17. The senior class that joined Davis in its last game at the Gator Bowl went down as the winningest class in school history, at the time, with a 39-9 record.

2002 DIAMOND WALNUT SAN FRANCISCO BOWL

The Hokies took their show to the West Coast following the 2002 season and captured a win in the Diamond Walnut San Francisco Bowl. Tech's 20-13 victory over Air Force gave the Hokies a 10-4 final record and marked the third time in four years that Tech had posted 10 or more victories. Tech quarterback Bryan Randall was named the game's most valuable offensive player. He completed 18 of 23 passes for 177 yards and did not have any turnovers.

2000 Nokia Sugar Bowl

2003 INSIGHT BOWL

Following the 2003 season, the Hokies made the trip out to Arizona, where they were downed by the California Bears 52-49 in the 2003 Insight Bowl, which was held in front of 42,364 fans at Bank One Ballpark in Phoenix. Cal kicker Tyler Frederickson made a 35-yard field goal on the final play of the game that lifted the Bears past the Hokies. The Hokies, who were playing in their 11th consecutive bowl game, finished the season 8-5 overall.

The loss overshadowed a brilliant game by Tech's offense. Randall had four touchdown passes and a rushing TD, while Keith Willis became the first Tech player ever to catch two touchdown passes in a bowl game. Ernest Wilford broke Antonio Freeman's career mark for receptions, and Kevin Jones, who played in his final game as a Hokie before heading to the NFL, led the Hokie rushing attack with 16 carries for 153 yards and a touchdown.

2005 NOKIA SUGAR BOWL

In the 2004 season, Tech capped its improbable run to the Atlantic Coast Conference title by beating Miami, which led to a berth in the Nokia Sugar Bowl for the third time. Like in 1995 and 1999, Tech fans came out in droves to support their Hokies as the game was a sellout and resulted in an economic impact of $209.92 million for the city and state.

Randall had a pair of touchdown passes, but the third-ranked Auburn Tigers held on for a 16-13 win over the Hokies in a hard-fought battle in New Orleans. Randall's final toss, an 80-yarder to freshman Josh Morgan, broke the Tech career touchdown passing mark. The loss couldn't take away from a dream season which saw the Hokies win the ACC title in their first year in the league while posting a 10-3 mark and a final national ranking of No. 10.

2006 TOYOTA GATOR BOWL

Although the Hokies got off to a slow start in the Toyota Gator Bowl after the 2005 campaign, they twice rallied from an 11-point deficit to beat Louisville, 35-24, on Jan. 2, 2006, to break a two-game bowl losing streak.

TECH'S BOWL HISTORY

The high-powered Cardinals' offense scored on both of its first two possessions to take a 14-3 lead, but Tech cut that margin to 17-10 at the half. Louisville built the lead back to 11 at 24-13 before the Hokies scored 22 fourth-quarter points – capped by an interception return for a touchdown by linebacker James Anderson – to rally for the win. Cedric Humes was named the game's MVP, and the defense gave up 343 yards of total offense to finish the season ranked No. 1 in the nation in total defense.

2006 CHICK-FIL-A BOWL

The Chick-fil-A Bowl matchup with Georgia on Dec. 30, 2006 was a tale of two halves, with the Bulldogs emerging by a score of 31-24 to halt the Hokies' six-game winning streak. At the intermission, it looked as if Tech might waltz to an easy victory after holding Georgia to 47 yards of offense while building a 21-3 lead.

The Hokies collapsed in the second half, however, as their opponent racked up 28 unanswered points and Tech turned the ball over on four straight possessions. Despite the loss, the Hokies ended the season with at least 10 wins for the ninth time in their history, and finished as the nation's top-ranked defense for the second-straight year.

2008 FEDEX ORANGE BOWL

After winning the ACC championship, the Hokies were awarded a bid to the 2008 FedEx Orange Bowl, their 15th consecutive bowl game. Tech trimmed a 17-point first-half deficit to three points in the second half, but couldn't quite get over the hump, falling to the Kansas Jayhawks 24-21.

With the loss, Tech's season ended at 11-3 overall, and the Hokies saw their five-game winning streak snapped.

It certainly was not the best of evenings for the Hokies. Tech turned the ball over three times and those three turnovers led to 17 Kansas points. The Hokies also had a field goal blocked, allowed a first down on a fake punt that ultimately led to a score, and gave up five sacks.

Even with the loss, Tech's 20 seniors finished as the winningest class in school history, recording a 42-11 overall record.

2009 FEDEX ORANGE BOWL

The Hokies earned a return trip to the FedEx Orange Bowl after beating Boston College for the second straight season in the ACC Championship Game. This time Tech approached its bowl preparation in a different manner and it paid off with a convincing 20-7 victory over No. 12 Cincinnati.

After giving up a touchdown on UC's first drive, Tech manhandled the BIG EAST champion Bearcats for the final 57 minutes of the game. The Hokies controlled the football for nearly 40 minutes, piling up 258 yards on the ground.

Redshirt freshman tailback Darren Evans spearheaded the rushing attack, carrying the football 28 times for 153 yards on the way to MVP honors in the game. Evans and quarterback Tyrod Taylor ran for touchdowns, while kicker Dustin Keys contributed a pair of field goals.

The defense stalled the high-powered Cincinnati offense and intercepted a Tech bowl-record four passes. One of those interceptions, a pick by end Orion Martin at the UC 10-yard line early in the fourth quarter, was the play of the game for the Hokies.

The win capped a 10-4 season for the Hokies and vaulted them to No. 15 in the final AP poll.

2009 CHICK-FIL-A BOWL

Tech played a near-flawless second half on the way to an impressive 37-14 victory over the University of Tennessee in the Chick-fil-A Bowl. The win capped a late-season run that saw the Hokies win their final five games to finish 10-3 and earn the No. 10 spot in the final AP poll.

Record-setting tailback Ryan Williams helped Tech bolt to a 14-0 lead early in the game with a pair of short touchdown runs. The Volunteers managed to tie the game in the second quarter, but with just 18 seconds remaining in the half, the Hokies stole the Vols' momentum. With the ball at its own 33-yard line, Tech gambled, and quarterback Tyrod Taylor connected with end Jarrett Boykin on a 63-yard pass that set up a Matt Waldron field goal as time expired.

Taylor's play set the tone for what would be a dominating second half for the Hokies. Williams carried the football on seven straight plays on Tech's opening possession of the second half. On the eighth play, Taylor scored from a yard out to give Tech a 24-14 lead.

The Hokies' offense scored on four of five second-half possessions, with Waldron booting two more field goals and true freshman David Wilson adding a final touchdown. Waldron's three field goals were a Tech record for a bowl game.

Defensively, the Hokies were relentless, posting six QB sacks, intercepting a pass, causing and recovering a fumble and holding UT to just 240 total yards. Tennessee managed only 5 yards rushing on 31 attempts and converted just four third downs into first downs. The Tech defense finished the season without allowing a point in the second half of the final five games.

2011 DISCOVER ORANGE BOWL

Stanford scored touchdowns on its first four possessions of the second half to break open a close game and down the Hokies 40-12 in the Discover Orange Bowl played in front of 65,453 fans at Sun Life Stadium. The loss snapped an 11-game winning streak, leaving Tech with an 11-3 overall record.

Stanford quarterback Andrew Luck led the Cardinal attack, which posted 534 yards of total offense. Luck completed 18-of-23 for 287 yards and four touchdowns.

Tech's lone touchdown came early in the second quarter. Trailing 7-2 at the time, the Hokies went 75 yards in 10 plays in a drive that ended with a miraculous play by Tyrod Taylor. The senior from Hampton, Va., scrambled to his left, avoided a Stanford defender, made a pirouette, and fired an 11-yard touchdown pass to tailback David Wilson, who managed to get a foot down before falling out of bounds. Taylor completed 16 of 31 passes for 222 yards, with a touchdown and interception.

Tech's other scores came on a safety and a field goal by Chris Hazley right before halftime. The Hokies trailed just 13-12 heading into the second half but a pair of missed opportunities by Tech, coupled with a number of long plays by the No. 5 ranked Cardinal, quickly put Stanford in charge.

2012 ALLSTATE SUGAR BOWL

Michigan kicker Brendan Gibbons booted a game-winning 37-yard field goal in overtime, as the Wolverines knocked off Virginia Tech 23-20 in a wild Sugar Bowl game played at the Superdome.

The game certainly wasn't without its share of controversy, but the biggest call of the night went against the Hokies.

Tech lost the coin flip in overtime, and Michigan decided to play defense first. On third-and-5 from the Michigan 20, Tech quarterback Logan Thomas appeared to have thrown a touchdown pass to receiver Danny Coale in the corner of the end zone. Officials originally ruled the play a touchdown, but reviewed it, and then reversed the call, saying Coale didn't maintain control of the ball.

The reversal forced Tech to attempt a field goal, and Justin Myer, subbing for starting kicker Cody Journell, pushed a 37-yard attempt wide right. That meant Michigan only needed a field goal to win.

The Wolverines (11-2) ran the ball three straight times to set up Gibbons' attempt. He nailed it, giving Michigan the victory.

For the Hokies, it marked a bitter end to a game in which they dominated statistically. They finished 377 yards of offense and held the Wolverines to just 184. Tech's defense kept elusive Michigan quarterback Denard Robinson under wraps. Robinson rushed for just 13 yards and completed only 9 of 21 attempts, though he did throw two touchdown passes compared to one interception.

Still, the Hokies showed resiliency, coming back to tie the game twice. Trailing 17-6, Tech got a field goal from Myer with 4:48 left in the third and a 1-yard touchdown from Thomas with 10:22 left in the game. Thomas' pass to Marcus Davis gave the Hokies the needed two points to tie the game at 17.

2012 Russell Athletic Bowl

2012 RUSSELL ATHLETIC BOWL

Virginia Tech kicker Cody Journell drilled a 22-yard field goal in overtime, and Rutgers kicker Nick Borgese misfired from 42-yards out on the Scarlet Knights' possession, enabling the Hokies to rally for a 13-10 overtime victory in the Russell Athletic Bowl played at the Florida Citrus Bowl.

Plagued by an inconsistent, struggling offense, Tech entered the fourth quarter down 10-0 and with just 79 yards of offense. But the Hokies' defense got stop after stop in the second half, and both sides of the ball came up with huge plays.

The first came when Logan Thomas completed a 32-yard pass to Dyrrell Roberts and followed that with a 25-yard completion to Corey Fuller. Those two plays set up a 25-yard field goal from Journell that cut the Rutgers lead to 10-3 with 12:14 left in the game.

The second – and arguably the biggest – came moments later when cornerback Antone Exum intercepted a pass by Rutgers quarterback Gary Nova and returned it 32 yards to the Rutgers 21. The interception marked the fifth of the season for Exum, who was named the game's MVP.

Tech capitalized on the Exum interception. On third-and-10 from the 21, Thomas threw a perfect pass to Fuller toward the corner of the end zone, and Fuller hauled it in for the touchdown. Journell's extra point tied things at 10 with 10:56 left in the game.

Journell nearly won the game in regulation for the Hokies, but his 51-yard attempt with 2:20 remaining came up just short, and the game ultimately went into overtime.

2013 SUN BOWL

Virginia Tech quarterback Logan Thomas went down with an injury in the second quarter, and the Hokies never recovered, falling 42-12 to 17th-ranked UCLA in the Sun Bowl played at Sun Bowl Stadium in El Paso, Texas.

Tech trailed 14-7 at the time of Thomas' departure, and while the Hokies cut the lead to 14-10 in the third quarter, they got no closer as UCLA pulled away in the fourth quarter.

UCLA quarterback Brett Hundley rushed for 161 yards and two scores, including an 86-yard scramble to give the Bruins the lead for good. He also threw for 226 yards and two touchdowns.

Offensively, Tech finished with 319 yards. Thomas led the Hokies in rushing with 49 yards on three carries. Mark Leal completed 12 of 25 passes for 130 yards in relief of Thomas as the Hokies finished the season 8-5.

FOOTBALL LOCKER ROOM

In November of 2010, the Virginia Tech football team moved into its new locker room – a locker room that ranks as one of the best in the nation.

The $18 million building is nearly 42,000 square feet. The locker room, which is on the first floor of the building and was named in honor of longtime coach Frank Beamer thanks to the generosity of several donors, is 14,800 square feet and has lockers that are among the biggest in the nation. The lockers, which are 42 inches wide and made of wood, include a ventilation system to keep football pads and helmets dry, as well as individual safes for players to store valuables. Each locker also has electrical outlets for cell phone chargers and other electrical equipment.

At the entrance to each small hallway of lockers are words that define the Virginia Tech football program. These words include family, loyalty, trust and consistency.

The locker room also includes showers, a cold tub, a hot tub, a steam room and a sauna that is used extensively to help players recover from injuries and everyday aches and pains. The coaches also have their own locker room, which is adjacent to the large room with the hot and cold tubs, and the steam room and sauna.

The locker room has a definite Virginia Tech feel to it. It features a time clock and a lunch pail as soon as a player walks through the main entrance. These two things signify hard work and that one needs to put in the time to reap the rewards.

The second floor of the building is 12,900 square feet and includes a players' lounge and a study room. The lounge area has multiple 65-inch high definition televisions, pool tables and couches for players to sit and re-hydrate after practice. The study area features 12 study stations, with a computer at each station.

Adjacent to the lounge area is a 2,900 square-foot balcony that overlooks the Steve Johnson Practice Fields. Grills on the balcony allow for team cookouts, while also providing an area for recruits to gather on game day.

The building contains a third floor, but that floor was constructed for the wrestling program, which uses it as a wrestling room for practices. The floor also holds the wrestling team's locker room and coaches' offices.

STEVE JOHNSON PRACTICE FIELDS

The Virginia Tech football practice fields, located between Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum, were renamed the Steve Johnson Practice Fields in recognition of the accomplishments and philanthropy of alumnus Steve Johnson of Bristol, Va.

A standout tight end for the Hokies in the mid- and late-1980s, Johnson earned a bachelor's of secondary education from Virginia Tech in 1988. Following his college career, Johnson played for the Dallas Cowboys and New England Patriots, and currently serves as president and owner of Bristol, Va.-based Johnson Commercial Development, one of the largest commercial developers in the southeastern United States. Johnson Commercial Development is currently developing the Pinnacle, a 1 million-square-foot upscale retail development under construction in Bristol, Tenn.

Johnson is a generous supporter of the under-construction Virginia Tech indoor practice facility, having made a $1 million pledge toward construction. He previously contributed to the university to support construction of the Merryman Athletic Facility, which includes a room for speed and agility training that also bears his name. Johnson is a member of the Ut Prosim Society, a select group of Virginia Tech's most generous supporters.

The new indoor facility, located on the east side of the practice field, is under construction and will be completed in time for the 2015 preseason.

HOME OF THE HOKIES

LANE STADIUM/WORSHAM FIELD

Rising high into the mountainous sky of the New River Valley, Virginia Tech's Lane Stadium enters its 50th year of football competition in 2014. The Tech football team has enjoyed over two decades of success, going to 21 straight bowl games and winning 10 or more games eight straight seasons from 2004-11. A big part of that success is the home-field advantage the Hokies enjoy at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field.

Billed as the toughest place in college football for opponents to play by Rivals.com in 2005 and one of the scariest places to play by ESPN.com in 2007, the Hokies play not only on one of the best playing surfaces in the nation, but with the south end zone and west side additions, the Hokies compete in one of the best stadiums in the nation.

Sitting at roughly 2,057 feet above sea level, the stadium is the second-highest among all FBS schools in the eastern United States, trailing only Appalachian State (3,300).

Completed in 1965, Lane Stadium/Worsham Field has gone through numerous changes, renovations and additions. But through it all, it has always been regarded as one of the finest places to watch – and toughest places for opponents to play – a college football game.

A TOWERING NEW LOOK

The third in a series of upgrades was completed at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field prior to the 2006 season, finishing off a magnificent project on the west side of the stadium.

Ground was broken in November of 2004 for the project and crews began building around the former press box, laying the above and below ground settings, as well as removing the two light towers on that side of the stadium.

At the conclusion of the 2004 season, the old press box was removed and the structure was filled in to match what was built up during the 2004 season.

A new press area on the west side, toward the south end zone, with a dining area and improved overall facilities, were a few of the additions.

Additional luxury suites, a new President's area, four private club seating areas, new concession stands, a ticket office, athletic fund offices, an athletics memorabilia area and a new student academic services area were also included in this project.

In addition, the fencing that surrounded the stadium was removed and the area on the west side exterior of the newly renovated stadium was landscaped with walkways and a weekday parking lot for ticket patrons and Hokie Club visitors. A flag plaza was installed near the southwest entrance. Dedicated to former football player and current Hokie Club supporter John Moody, it is a terrific meeting place with the U.S. flag flying alongside the commonwealth of Virginia flag and a Tech flag.

In the summer of 2003, $1.9 million was raised to fund the ongoing planning of the west side expansion, allowing for the ground breaking of the west side project.

In 2005, the inside of the stadium was also given a new look as Hokie Stone was added to the walls in each of the end zones, so there's no question as to where the game is being played for fans watching on television.

With continuous additions and improvements, Lane Stadium has kept up its reputation as one of the best places for college football.

THE SOUTH END ZONE

Prior to the 2002 season, Tech added 11,120 seats in the south end zone to enclose that end of the stadium. The double-deck structure is similar to the Cleveland Browns' "Dawg Pound" section and has bleacher, bench-back and club seats. The structure is enclosed, but has gaps between the existing structure and the new one. This is because of new building codes and a desire to get fans closer to the field.

Below the south end zone stands are several features: A football visitor's locker room which can be divided and used for other sports' visiting teams in the winter and spring.

The June Oblinger Shott Media Center, which houses a press room, two press conference areas, three radio rooms, a photo work room and several storage rooms.

The outside of the facility also received a new look, making the entrance more inviting. Walkways and landscaping give the south and west sides a more appealing entrance for fans and teams.

Another addition to the facility is the turf and drainage system that was replaced in the summer of 2001 as Tech became the first collegiate football team to have a new state-of-the-art GreenTech ITM natural Bermuda grass sports field system. It provides excellent drainage with irrigation lines and a vacuum system that can handle up to 16 inches of rain an hour. In the winter of 2003-04, a heating system was installed to keep the grass at an optimum temperature during the winter months.

This innovative system is in place in just a handful of other stadiums in the world and makes Worsham Field one of the finest playing surfaces around.

A WINNING TRADITION

On Sept. 22, 1994, Tech won its 100th game in Lane Stadium in memorable fashion before a national television audience on ESPN with a 34-6 win over rival West Virginia.

On Nov. 1, 2003, Tech upset No. 2 Miami 31-7 to pick up its 150th all-time win at Lane Stadium, marking the highest-ranked opponent the Hokies have ever defeated.

Tech's overall record at Lane Stadium is 205 wins, 72 losses and six ties in 49 years of play. The Hokies are 131-35-1 at home during Coach Frank Beamer's tenure at Virginia Tech and more impressively, are 113-21 in Blacksburg during the last 21 seasons.

Since joining the ACC prior to the 2004 season, Tech has accumulated a record of 55-10 at home, including a conference mark of 31-9. The Hokies went 32-9 at Lane Stadium/Worsham field while a member of the BIG EAST.

A large part of that impressive record is the home-field environment created by the fans at Lane Stadium was sold out for 94 consecutive games, starting with the final home game of the 1998 season against Virginia and running through last season.

LANE AND WORSHAM

On Sept. 5, 1992, Worsham Field was officially dedicated in honor of Wes and Janet Worsham, longtime Hokie supporters from Kilmarnock, Va. The Worshams pledged $1 million to the university's Second Century Campaign. The Campaign raised over $18.6 million, almost $1.7 million more than the original goal, thanks to the support of people like the Worshams.

The stadium is named for the late Edward H. Lane, a graduate of the university and a former member of the Board of Visitors. Lane headed an educational foundation project which raised more than $3 million for the original construction. Lane's personal donation was the first received by the fund.

The original cost was $3.5 million, compared with $3.2 million spent for the addition on top of the east stands. The stadium's original capacity was 40,000, but the addition, completed in 1980, raised that number to 52,500. The relocation of bleacher seats dropped the total capacity to under 50,000.

Lane Stadium, featuring a modern lighting system and a seating capacity of 65,632 for this season after a new section of club seats were replaced on the west side in 2012, ranks as one of the nation's finest collegiate football facilities.

Before moving to Lane Stadium, Tech played its home games in Miles Stadium, which had a seating capacity of 17,000. The late Stuart K. Cassell proposed the new stadium as a part of a general plan for a number of new facilities for the school.

THROUGH THE YEARS

Original construction of Lane Stadium began in April, 1964 and was completed four years later. The Hokies did not wait for completion, playing their first game in the stadium on Oct. 2, 1965. Tech defeated William & Mary, 9-7, that day with only the west stands and the center section of the east bleachers completed. Official dedication ceremonies took place Oct. 23 before a 22-14 win over Virginia.

Through the years, the stadium has seen several changes and renovations. In 1982, the lighting system was added to the facility. The system was first used in Tech's nationally televised 21-14 Thanksgiving Day victory over Virginia that season. The game was broadcast on WTBS and was the first nationally televised game from Lane Stadium.

Prior to the 1989 season, Lane Stadium

HOME OF THE HOKIES

underwent further improvements. Tech received a donation of 16 flags with the "VT" logo for the stadium. Lane Stadium also received a new paint job which included the addition of maroon and orange stripes around the inner walls of the facility.

In 1991, a new scoreboard bearing BIG EAST Conference logos replaced the old scoreboard at the south end of the stadium, while a new auxiliary scoreboard was placed at the north end. In the spring of 1994, renovations were completed on seven lower sections of the east stands. Renovations included replacing concrete risers and the addition of wheelchair seating.

Before the 1994 season, plaques bearing retired jerseys of Tech heroes Bruce Smith, Carroll Dale, the late Frank Loria and Jim Pyne were added to the wall in the north end zone. With the addition of the north end zone seats, the four retired numbers now fly on flag poles above those stands.

In 2002, three more flags – those bearing the names and numbers of Frank Beamer, Michael Vick and Cornell Brown – were added, retiring their jerseys, but not their numbers. In 2006, a banner for center Jake Grove was added to that collection, as well as one for Corey Moore in 2009.

In 2008, banners were placed on both the east and west sides on beams honoring conference player of the year and national award honorees, including Bronko Nagurski Trophy and Lombardi Award winner Corey Moore and Outland Trophy honoree Bruce Smith.

Prior to the 1998 season, the oldest bleachers were replaced with new locust wood and the stands were waterproofed and top coated. On the east side, the roof on the former visitors' locker room was replaced along with the wooden bleachers in the three sections above the dressing room. Also, additional handicapped seating was added.

In addition to the seats in the north end zone constructed before the 1999 season, the interior block walls and concourse tunnels were seal-coated to match the exterior of Cassell Coliseum and the Merryman Center.

Before the 2000 season, a new scoreboard, complete with "HokieVision" was installed behind the north end zone bleachers. That board was replaced by a massive structure prior to the 2013 season.

The south end zone construction project eliminated the old wooden bleachers in that area. But the north end zone bleachers were expanded down to the field, adding close to 600 new, permanent seats to make the north end zone look similar to the new south end zone. This is where The Marching Virginians – one of Tech's two marching bands – sit. These moves cut the capacity to 53,662.

Prior to the 2000 season, approximately 3,000 permanent bleacher seats were added in the north end zone, and, prior to the 1999 season, 2,100 permanent seats were added in the same end zone. In 2003, permacaps were installed over all the wooden seats to enhance fan comfort.

In the 2013-14 academic year, a distributive antennae system (DAS) was erected behind the east stands as part of a campus-wide upgrade of cellular phone service. It increases cell phone capacity across campus and particularly on game days when nearly 60,000 people – many with smart phones – enter the stadium.

50 YEARS OF LANE

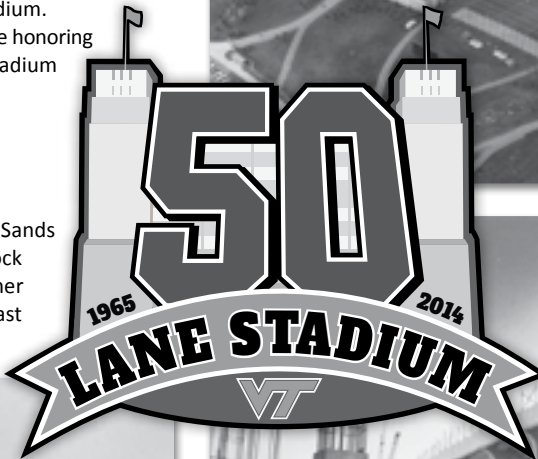

On Oct. 2, 1965, Virginia Tech played the first varsity football game in Lane Stadium, a 9-7 win over William & Mary. While it doesn't look quite the same as it did half a century ago, Lane Stadium will play host to the Hokies and William & Mary on Aug. 30 of this year as Tech will open its 50th season in the legendary stadium.

Ironically, the first game ever in Lane Stadium was a freshman game against Maryland on Sept. 24 that featured then-freshman Frank Beamer. He'll lead the Hokies out of that famous tunnel again this year as the Hokies open up the 50th season of play inside Lane Stadium.

Throughout the season, the athletics department will be honoring the great moments and players who have made Lane Stadium special over the past 50 years.

HALL OF FAME MUSEUM

Since the start of the 2008 football season, fans have had the opportunity to visit Virginia Tech's Hall of Fame museum located on the west side of the football stadium. Covering two stories, the museum features all Hokie sports with galleries, display cases and interactive screens. Individual athletes honored include All-Americans, Academic All-Americans and Tech's Hall of Fame members. Fans can review the history of Tech athletics through a photo timeline. The museum is open to the public Monday through Friday between 9 a.m., and 3 p.m. It is closed on weekends and on game days.

MERRYMAN FOOTBALL MEMORABILIA ROOM

Overlooking the Steve Johnson Practice Field, the football memorabilia room offers visitors several exciting exhibits on Virginia Tech's proud past. Among the many displays are spots dedicated to Tech's rich bowl history, legendary coach Frank Beamer, the Hokies' uniforms, the program's standout players and trophies from championships and awards earned over the years.

PRIDE AND JOY OF VIRGINIA TECH FOOTBALL

Special teams are an integral part of Hokie football and one of the units is called "Pride and Joy." These NFL players and Tech support staff are also a source of pride and joy due to their commitment to Virginia Tech on and off the field. Virginia Tech has a prominent display in the Hall of Legends in the Merryman Athletic Center to honor such former players.

John Engelberger was a dominating defensive end who went from walk-on, to four-year starter at Tech, to second-round NFL Draft pick, earning All-America honors and his college degree along the way.

Waddey Harvey was a standout who started three seasons at defensive tackle and won the coveted Williams Award for leadership and character before joining the Buffalo Bills. Frank and Cheryl Beamer sponsored Harvey for recognition on the Pride and Joy display.

Before starting an NFL career, Jim Pyne, a powerful center in the early 1990s, started 41 games and allowed just one sack in over 2,700 snaps on his way to becoming the Hokies' first unanimous All-American.

Michael Vick was an electrifying quarterback who made a lasting impact on college football while helping Virginia Tech to a national championship game and back-to-back 11-1 seasons before becoming the top NFL Draft pick in 2001.

A two-time All-American, Cornell Brown became the first Virginia Tech football player to gain consensus All-America honors as a junior when he was named to five first teams in 1995. He was selected National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News in 1995.

Lester Karlin is a veteran member of the Virginia Tech staff who made his first contribution to Hokie athletics as a student assistant in the football equipment room from 1971-73 and then as the equipment manager from 1978 until retiring in 2014.

Pierson Prioleau saw action on more than 2,000 plays at rover and on special teams, while starting 36 consecutive games for the Hokies from 1995 through 1998. After helping Tech to two bowl championships, Prioleau began a productive NFL career that included a Super Bowl title with New Orleans in 2010.

Mickey Fitzgerald was a bruising tight end and fullback at Virginia Tech in the late 1970s who earned the nickname "The Incredible Hulk" with his physical style of play. In 1977, Fitzgerald became the first Tech back of the modern era to rush for over 100 yards in each of his first four starts as a running back.

Shayne Graham is a local product out of Dublin, Va., who earned All-BIG EAST honors as a place-kicker. He helped lead the Hokies to the 1999 National Championship game, kicking a game-winner as time expired to beat West Virginia and keep the perfect season alive. He has gone on to become one of the most accurate kickers in NFL history.

Nick Cullen played in 35 games as a wide receiver over a four-year career from 1987-1990 for the Hokies. In his senior season, he flourished, catching 37 passes for 568 yards and three touchdowns, including 13 passes in a single game against Southern Miss, which still stands as a school record for most receptions in a single game.

Steve Johnson is a long-time contributor to the Tech program and has the practice fields named in his honor. The tight end had eight touchdown catches in his Tech career and played two seasons in the NFL with the New England Patriots.

NCAA COMPLIANCE

VIRGINIA TECH ATHLETICS: WINNING THE RIGHT WAY

INFORMATION FOR PROSPECTS AND THEIR PARENTS

Compliance with NCAA rules is a never-ending process that requires diligence on the part of the Virginia Tech Department of Athletics and the entire university community. Below is a brief summary of the basic issues that may face a potential student-athlete during his/her recruitment by a Division I college or university.

1. For NCAA rules purposes, you become a "prospective student-athlete" – commonly referred to as a prospect – once you have started classes for the ninth grade (seventh grade for men's basketball).

2. A "representative of an institution's athletics interests" (commonly referred to as a booster) is defined by the NCAA as anyone who:

- Is now, or previously has been, a member of any organization promoting the institution's intercollegiate athletics program;
- Has made a financial contribution to the athletics program or an athletics booster organization;
- Has helped arrange any employment for a student-athlete;
- Has been involved, in any way, in the promotion of the athletics program.

3. Please be aware that any former Virginia Tech student or former or current member of the Hokie Club is automatically considered a Virginia Tech booster. According to NCAA rules, once an individual is identified as a booster, he/she retains that status forever.

4. A booster may not solicit the enrollment of a prospect with the goal of athletics participation in any manner (no phone calls, letters or in-person encounters). On those occasions when a booster unavoidably comes into contact with a prospect, conversation must be limited to normal civility. The conversation must conclude quickly, and no recruitment may occur.

5. It is not permissible for you (or your family) to receive any benefit, inducement or arrangement such as cash, clothing, cars, improper expenses, transportation, gifts or loans to encourage you to sign a National Letter of Intent or to attend any college.

6. A "contact" is any off-campus, face-to-face encounter between you or your parent(s) or a legal guardian and a member of a college coaching staff during which any dialogue occurs beyond an exchange of greeting. NCAA rules do not permit contacts until July 1 prior to a prospect's senior year. (In men's and women's basketball, contact is permitted on a prospect's first day of classes their junior year.)

7. An "evaluation" is any off-campus activity by a member of a college coaching staff designed to assess your academic qualifications or athletic ability, including any visit to your high school (during which no contact occurs) or the observation of any practice or competition in which you participate.

8. The timing for phone calls depends on the sport that is recruiting you. Football coaches may begin on April 15 of the prospect's junior year (one call between April 15 and May 31 is permitted). After May 31, regular calls not to exceed one per week may begin for football on September 1 of their senior year.

If you are a prospect, unlimited calls to you or your family may be made under the following circumstances:

- During the five days immediately before your official (paid) visit to a collegiate institution;
- On the day of a coach's off-campus contact with you;
- During the time beginning with the initial National Letter of Intent signing date in your sport, through the two days after the signing date; and
- In the sport of football only, during the 48 hours prior to and 48 hours after 7 a.m., on the initial signing date for the National Letter of Intent.
- In the sport of football, baseball, men's & women's basketball, cross country/track & field, women's lacrosse, softball and volleyball, during the permissible off-campus contact periods.
- The calendar day after you sign a National Letter of Intent or Virginia Tech's written offer of admission and/or financial aid; or Virginia Tech received a financial deposit in response to your offer of admission.
- In men's basketball, coaches may make unlimited phone calls at any time starting June 15 after a prospect's sophomore year.
- In women's basketball, coaches may make unlimited phone calls at any time starting September 1 at the beginning of a prospect's junior year.

Coaches also may accept collect calls, and athletics departments are permitted to utilize a toll-free number to receive telephone calls from you (or your family) on or after July 1 following your junior year. You or your family may call a college coach at your expense at any time.

9. In all sports except men's and women's basketball, letters to you from coaches are permitted beginning September 1 at the beginning of your junior year in high school. A Division I school may provide you with any nonpersonalized, unbound materials that are 8½ x 11 or less in size. These materials must be sent via regular first-class mail service and may include any of the following:

- General correspondence, including letters, U.S. Postal Service postcards and institutional note cards;
- Game programs which may not include posters and one Student-Athlete Handbook;
- NCAA educational information;
- Pre-enrollment information after signing a National Letter of Intent or other written commitment to the university;
- Official academic, admissions and student services publications published or videotapes produced by the institution and available to all students;
- Schedule and business cards;
- Questionnaires which may be provided at any time; and
- Camp brochures, which may be provided at any time (provided it is not at a competition).

10. An "Official Visit" is a visit by a prospect to a college where the college pays for some or all of the prospect's expenses. These expenses may include transportation, lodging, meals and/or entertainment. Official Visits are permissible once a prospect has started classes for their senior year.

The purpose of the Virginia Tech Compliance Office is to help make you aware of relevant NCAA rules and assist you in guarding your eligibility. Ultimately, however, you are responsible for protecting your eligibility. This page is provided as a quick-reference guide to give you a basic understanding of NCAA recruiting rules. We encourage you to visit our webpage at www.athletics.vt.edu/compliance for additional information and links providing comprehensive guidance concerning the full range of NCAA regulations. Also, please feel free to call or e-mail any member of the Hokie Compliance Team if you have any questions.

@VTSandsman

TIMOTHY D. SANDS

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Timothy D. Sands joined Virginia Tech as its 16th president on June 1, 2014. His distinguished academic career includes faculty and leadership positions at several leading American universities.

"I am delighted and honored to serve this great university. There is so much here that Virginia and the nation needs. I'm excited to have the opportunity to serve a university that's been on an upward trajectory over the last decade or more and is well positioned for even greater success," said Sands.

Only in his position for a short time, Sands is not yet ready to articulate a new course direction for Virginia Tech. When appointed by the board of visitors last year, Sands noted that, "Virginia Tech has so much momentum. It is an institution that is not happy with the status quo. I want to build on that and keep it moving forward."

In differentiating Virginia Tech, President Sands quickly observed one special Hokie attribute, "I remain impressed with the spirit of Ut Prosim. I find it everywhere – among students, faculty, and alumni. This commitment to service is unique among major universities. It truly sets us apart and I hope to find ways in which we can leverage even more this noble distinction."

Sands also finds that his new employer is ideally positioned to address modern society's needs, a model of the 21st century land-grant university. "If you look at what is needed in the community, what's needed in the commonwealth, what's needed in the nation, and also what the world needs, Virginia Tech is the kind of institution that you would create today for the 21st century. And I don't say that lightly. ... When I look at Virginia Tech, I see the image of an institution that is exactly what is needed now," says Sands.

Sands was drawn to the purpose of the land-grant institution as first expressed in the 1862 Morrill Act: to prepare citizens from all classes of society to be active participants in our democracy and to prepare students to perform research and engage the community in order to advance economic prosperity. "Nothing's really changed," Sands said. "It's as relevant today as it was back in the 1860s."

In championing those aims, Sands said, Virginia Tech took an unusual track. "Matter of fact, I only count six or seven institutions that went this route—and that was to maintain the strength of the engineering and science disciplines but to carefully balance them with the arts, the social sciences, and the humanities. If you really think back to the Morrill Act, you've got to achieve that balance. A lot of institutions really strayed along the way, at least in my view, maybe going one way or the other. Virginia Tech maintained that balance, and we're very well positioned."

Before taking the helm at Tech, Sands, 56, served as Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Indiana. He served as Purdue's acting president during the Fall semester of 2012.

As Purdue's chief academic officer, Sands led efforts to elevate student success, resulting in the highest first-to-second year retention and four-year graduation rates in Purdue's history. He initiated a move toward full-year utilization of facilities that will enhance opportunities for student internships while allowing students to maintain academic progress during the summer.

Sands launched Purdue's online teaching and learning platform known as Purdue NExT, a modular approach that emphasizes interactive learning for advanced undergraduate and beginning graduate-level courses. NExT focuses on creating computation-rich and simulation-rich learning environments that cannot be duplicated in the traditional classroom setting.

Throughout his administrative leadership positions, Sands remained connected to his profession and his students. While Purdue's Provost he continued to advise graduate students. "Based on Virginia Tech's high alumni satisfaction rankings, students are treated with respect here, and I want to be part of that. Plan to see Laura and me in the dining halls and actively engaged with students," he said. Look for tweets from @VTSandsman.

After gaining his doctorate, Sands began his professional career in 1984 at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and later became an industry fellow at the lab doing advanced materials research. He spent nine years as a member of technical staff and as a research group director with Bell Communications Research, Inc. (Bellcore), the research arm of the "Baby Bell" telecommunications companies, in Red Bank, N.J.

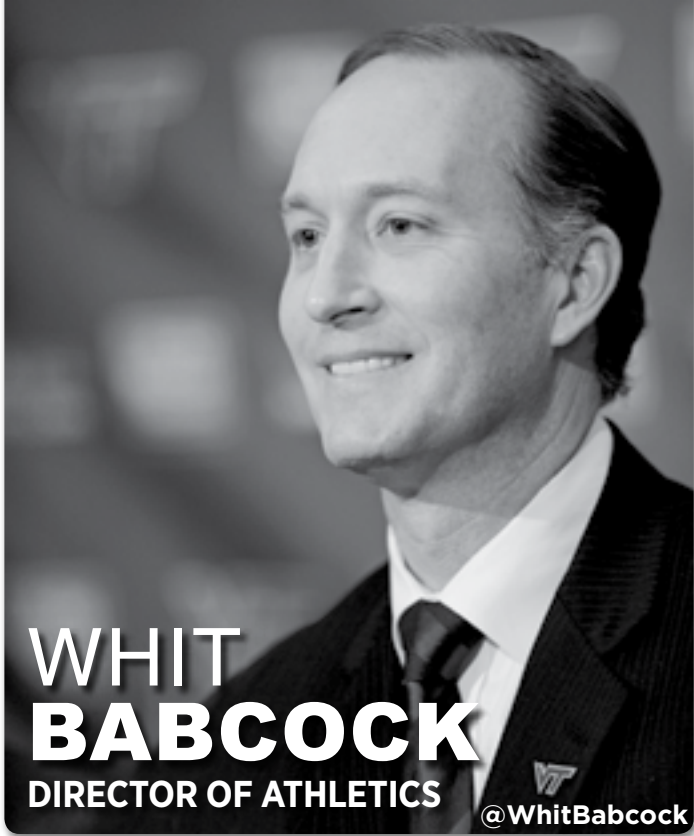

He returned to his alma mater, the University of California, Berkeley, in 1993 as a professor on the faculty of the Department of Materials Science and Engineering. He later served Berkeley in leadership roles including executive committee chair of the Applied Science & Technology Graduate Group and the director of the Integrated Materials Laboratory.

Sands joined Purdue University in 2002 as the Basil S. Turner Professor of Engineering and later became director of the university's Birck Nanotechnology Center, an interdisciplinary center encompassing 12 academic disciplines. He became Purdue's chief academic officer in 2010.

Dr. Sands holds a B.S., in engineering physics (1980) and M.S., and Ph.D in materials science and engineering, all from the University of California, Berkeley. He has published more than 250 papers and has been granted 17 patents in the areas of metal/semiconductor contacts, heteroepitaxy, thermoelectric materials, ferroelectric and piezoelectric materials and devices, semiconductor nanostructures, laser processing and heterogeneous integration. He is a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), the Materials Research Society (MRS), and a charter fellow of the National Academy of Inventors (NAI).

President Sands is joined in Blacksburg by his wife, Laura, an accomplished academic herself, who will have a half-time appointment as a researcher in the Center for Gerontology with tenure in the Department of Human Development. The Sands have four adult children, three of whom have graduated from Purdue University and one who is a senior.

For clearing his mind, Sands plans to continue his regimen of early-morning pick-up basketball, a clue to his trim shape. Both Sands were raised around the northern California mountains and they plan to begin exploring Virginia's mountain outdoor opportunities soon.

Academic Progress Rate report – and two other teams finished with scores higher than 990 (men’s tennis and men’s cross country). The football program recorded its highest score ever (977).

Fifty-five percent of Tech’s student-athletes recorded a grade-point average of 3.0 or better during the 2014 spring semester, and the average GPA per team for the 2013-14 academic year was a 3.0.

As the leader at Cincinnati, Babcock focused on those same things – athletics success and academic excellence. He implemented numerous changes in the academic area aimed at enhancing the student-athlete experience, reinstated and enhanced scholarship funding to Olympic sports, added men’s indoor track and field as the department’s 19th sport and streamlined his executive team to ensure better lines of communications across the department and university community.

The 2012-13 season turned out to be one of the best ever for UC under Babcock’s leadership. The football team won its fourth conference championship in five seasons and the men’s basketball squad earned a spot in the NCAA Tournament for the third straight year. David Tepe won the BIG EAST Men’s Golf Individual Championship, and the Bearcats had three track All-Americans.

Babcock’s first year at UC was also certainly full of notable highlights, both on the field and in the classroom. The football team won the BIG EAST Conference title and defeated Vanderbilt University in the Liberty Bowl. The men’s basketball team reached the title game of the BIG EAST Tournament and advanced to the NCAA Sweet 16. Those and other successes led to UC’s highest finish in the Learfield Sports Directors’ Cup standings.

The Bearcats also accomplished a lot in the classroom in Babcock’s tenure. During his last year there, 11 of 17 teams achieved a GPA of 3.0 or higher.

Before embarking on a career in athletics administration, Babcock lettered four seasons in baseball at James Madison University and served as team captain his senior year. He earned his bachelor’s degree from JMU in 1992. In 1996, he received his master’s in sports management from West Virginia University.

He and his wife, Kelly, have three sons: Andrew, Brett and Eli.

A native Virginian and someone who has been to Virginia Tech’s campus numerous times over the years, Whit Babcock returned to his home state and landed his dream job when Virginia Tech named him its director of athletics. Babcock was officially announced as Tech’s AD on Jan. 25, 2014.

Babcock, who went to high school in Harrisonburg, Va., and is a former college baseball player at James Madison University, joined the Hokies following two years at the University of Cincinnati, where he served as the director of athletics, and five years at the University of Missouri, where he served as the executive associate director of athletics. Prior to his time at Missouri, Babcock’s 20-year career path included stops at West Virginia University, Auburn University and James Madison University.

Babcock’s background in fundraising, marketing, promotions, ticket sales, licensing and multimedia partnerships were key attributes in support of his hiring. In his introductory press conference, he cited three guiding principles for his vision for the athletics department’s future: commitment to comprehensive excellence, centering the department’s focus on the student-athlete experience, and engaging the community.

Babcock hasn’t wasted any time in putting his fingerprints on the Tech athletics department. He made a change in leadership of the men’s basketball program, hiring successful Marquette coach Buzz Williams, who guided Marquette to five NCAA Tournament appearances in six years, as the head coach, and he continued previous plans to build a new indoor practice facility. Construction on that project started in May.

Babcock inherited a quality athletics department from predecessor Jim Weaver and has steered the department along that same path since taking over. The Hokies were on track to record their highest finish ever in the Learfield Sports Directors’ Cup standing this past spring, which would surpass their 35th-place finish in 2012.

Academically, the Hokies are performing better than ever. Two teams – golf and women’s soccer – recorded perfect 1,000 scores in the NCAA’s

VIRGINIA TECH IMG SPORTS MARKETING

IMG College, a national leader in the collegiate sports marketing industry, is in its 19th year as the exclusive worldwide multimedia and advertising rights holder for Virginia Tech Athletics through its 2010 acquisition of ISP Sports.

In this partnership with the athletics program, Virginia Tech IMG Sports Marketing develops, produces and sells an extensive range of sports marketing opportunities for Tech. Radio play-by-play and call-in shows, television coaches shows and other related programming, Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum venue signage, video board and promotions, along with print and Internet advertising are available.

During its very successful partnership with Virginia Tech, IMG College has developed the Virginia Tech IMG Sports Network into the largest collegiate sports radio network in Virginia. Broadcast coverage includes the commonwealth of Virginia, as well as portions of Maryland, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Washington, D.C., and West Virginia.

The network's television coverage of Tech athletics is centered around Virginia Tech Sports Today, a Sunday morning magazine show aired on a network of affiliates throughout the region, including WDBJ-7 in Roanoke, Comcast SportsNet in the mid-Atlantic region, and FoxSports South in the Southeast. The 30-minute show features an action-packed, magazine-style format. With its superior production, animation and videography, it has the look and feel of a national sports telecast. Virginia Tech Sports Today airs from mid-August until mid-March.

IMG College also offers Hokie Playback, a weekly re-broadcast of Virginia Tech football games.

Other advertising and marketing opportunities managed by Virginia Tech IMG Sports Marketing include the state-of-the-art videoscreens ("HokieVision") in both Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum, venue signage, ribbon board LED advertising and promotion, pre-game hospitality events and a wide array of print and digital opportunities across all sports.

The company provides a wide variety of sponsorship opportunities for Tech supporters at every level, through not only football and basketball but every other Virginia Tech varsity sport as well.

Yopp brings over 14 years of sales, marketing, and management experience to the Virginia Tech IMG team. Prior to joining IMG, he spent the majority of his career with U.S. Cellular in a variety of sales and marketing roles, most recently as a marketing manager overseeing all of U.S. Cellular's corporate sponsorships in the region. Yopp is a native of Christiansburg, Va., and a graduate of Radford University.

• Chris Saccoccia joined Virginia Tech IMG Sports Marketing in November of 2012, after working as an intern for the previous year. Saccoccia is 2012 Virginia Tech graduate and served as the HokieBird during his time as an undergraduate student.

'FROM THE BLUE WATERS OF THE CHESAPEAKE BAY TO THE HILLS OF TENNESSEE, THE VIRGINIA TECH HOKIES ARE ON THE AIR!'

That familiar refrain – delivered by Bill Roth, the Voice of Virginia Tech football – opens every Tech sports broadcast and reflects the network's goal of reaching Hokie fans everywhere. So, whether they're sailing off Virginia's eastern shore, hiking in the Blue Ridge Mountains, or sitting in their homes anywhere throughout the Commonwealth, Tech fans know they're always within range of a Tech network radio station.

With a massive network of radio and television stations throughout the region, the Virginia Tech IMG Sports Network serves as the main communications link between Tech's football program and the Hokies' avid legion of fans.

Roth – who has been named Virginia's Sportscaster of the Year 11 times by the National Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association – is in his 27th season as the Voice of Virginia Tech football and basketball. A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., Roth graduated from Syracuse University in 1987, earning a degree in broadcast journalism. He also won the distinguished Robert Costas Academic Scholarship in 1986.

From Sugar Bowls, to Orange Bowls, to NCAA tournaments, Roth has described some of the greatest moments in Virginia Tech athletics history.

In April of 2013, Roth joined some of the greatest athletes, coaches, and broadcasters in the Commonwealth's history when he was inducted into the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame.

Roth's cries of "TOUCHDOWN TECH!" have become a favorite of Hokie fans of all ages, and his dazzling descriptions of Tech football and basketball have made him one of the most popular figures on the Tech athletic scene.

"Bill Roth is very much a part of what we're all about here," head coach Frank Beamer said. "When you hear his voice, you immediately think Virginia Tech football."

Roth hosts weekly radio and television shows featuring Tech coach Frank Beamer and his column, The Kroger Roth Report, appears on hokiesports.com and in Tech's official monthly news magazine, Inside Hokie Sports.

Former Virginia Tech tight end Mike Burnop is serving his 32nd season in the booth as the network analyst. Burnop, a star for the Hokies in the early 1970s, was inducted into Virginia Tech's Hall of Fame in 2000. He still holds the Virginia Tech record for receptions in a season by a tight end with 46. Burnop owns New River Office Supply, a business operating in Blacksburg, Pearisburg and Salem, Va.

In addition to his role as analyst, Burnop handles all post-game interviews from Tech's locker room. He has shown his versatility as a broadcaster by shining as the analyst on Tech's basketball broadcasts over the years.

Virginia Tech IMG Sports Network Television programming includes Virginia Tech Sports Today, a weekly 30-minute program that is seen every Sunday on a network of TV stations and cable networks throughout the mid-Atlantic and Southeast regions. The program features highlights of every Virginia Tech game, features and interviews with Tech players and coaches.

Hokie Playback is a weekly television re-broadcast of Virginia Tech football games shown each Sunday.

JUST VIRGINIA TECH, PLEASE

While the full name of the school is Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, the school is commonly referred to as "Virginia Tech." Founded in 1872, as Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College, the university changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1896. Fans of the athletics department, as well as media covering the Hokies, shortened the name to VPI, but it eventually became Virginia Tech. The "State University" was added in 1970 to bring the official title to what it is today.

Those covering Hokie athletics are asked to refer to the university as simply "Virginia Tech." Virginia Tech University, VPI and SU, VPI&SU, "Vah Tech," VT or VA Tech are not recognized names and should not be used.

MEDIA INFORMATION

ATHLETICS COMMUNICATIONS

Football media services are coordinated by the Athletics Communications Office, headed by Assistant Athletics Director Dave Smith and Associate Director of Athletics Communications Bryan Johnston. Please direct interview requests for any of the coaches, as well as credential requests, to Smith. All player interview requests should be made to Johnston. For photo requests, please contact photography coordinator Dave Knachel.

The Athletics Communications Office is located on the fourth floor of the Jamerson Athletic Center, which is connected to Cassell Coliseum and the Merryman Athletic Center. The office is next to the Bowman Room.

All media members coming to campus during the week need to stop by the Visitor and Undergraduate Admissions Center at 925 Prices Fork Road to obtain a parking pass.

Media will be responsible for paying any fines they incur while on campus.

THE PRESS BOX

The press box at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field comprises seven levels. Newspaper, radio and television reporters work on the fifth level.

The media area of the press box is accessible via elevators Nos. 4 & 5, which are located on the west side, in the south tower.

Admission to the press box is by credential only. Smoking is not allowed in the stands or in any enclosed area of Lane Stadium, including the press box and rest rooms.

PRESS CREDENTIALS

Virginia Tech issues media credentials under the priorities listed below. These priorities are designed to achieve efficient use of space available for working members of the media at Virginia Tech intercollegiate athletic events.

The Virginia Tech Athletics Communications Office uses an online credentialing system for individual game requests. Email Bryan Johnston at blj@vt.edu for information on how to apply. Requests the week of the game will be honored on a space-available basis and will be left at the Will Call window at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field if they cannot be mailed. Parking passes can not be left at will call.

Spouses, dates, children, equipment carriers and non-workers are restricted from the press box, sidelines and locker rooms. Any abuse of a working credential will result in the media agency losing credential privileges. Credentials will not be issued to any person under the age of 18.

In some instances, due to space limitations, meeting the identified criteria does not guarantee credentials.

Space for the working press, radio and television is allocated by the Virginia Tech Athletics Communications Office, which reserves the right to deny credentials to any outlet.

Virginia Tech does not allow radio stations to broadcast live shows or segments from the 5th level of the press box – before, during or after a game.

REAL-TIME TRANSMISSION

The “real-time” transmission of digital images, audio and data, including live game play-by-play and statistics, of any home game or any Tech-sponsored media event is the exclusive property of Virginia Tech and/or its rights holder(s). “Real-time” is defined as “live continual coverage or description of an event.”

Media members blogging or using Twitter from the press box are subject to all of Virginia Tech’s real-time policies.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has adapted an Internet Real-Time Policy. Virginia Tech adheres to this policy.

MEDIA WILL CALL

In most cases, credentials will be mailed. Credentials may be picked up through Friday of a game week from secretary Donna Smith in the Athletics Communications Office. Credentials not mailed or picked up will be held at the public Will Call window located a few steps from elevator No. 5, outside the press entrance to Lane Stadium/Worsham Field. Parking passes can not be left at will call.

PHOTO CREDENTIALS

The NCAA has established a control policy to keep the field free from congestion. Only photographers on assignment and members of the television media are given photo credentials. Freelance or amateur photographers will not be issued credentials.

All photographers must work outside the 30-yard lines as prescribed by the NCAA. Photographers are not permitted in the bench area. On the front line of the sidelines, as well as in the south end zone, photographers are required to kneel. Those photographers shooting from behind the second line, as well as in the north end zone, are allowed to stand.

For those who need to transmit photos electronically, a work room for photographers is available. This room is located in the June Oblinger Shott Media Center, on the ground level beneath the south end zone. A member of the Athletics Communications staff will be on the sidelines to lend assistance during the game.

RIGHTS RESTRICTION

Virginia Tech is and shall be the sole owner of any and all copyrights, intellectual property rights and proprietary rights for images, sounds and data arising from or during Virginia Tech home athletics contests and Tech-sponsored media events.

The use of photographs, video and/or audio for purposes other than traditional news coverage is forbidden. No redistribution is permitted.

ENG CREW RESTRICTIONS

Electronic news gathering (“ENG”) crews acknowledge and agree they shall abide by the following restrictions regarding the use of television footage of home football games of Atlantic Coast Conference (“ACC”) schools. If the ACC football game is telecast by ABC or ESPN (“ABC/ESPN Games”), ENG crews (i) may not use television footage of the ABC/ESPN Game, except for excerpts consistent with ABC’s or ESPN’s, as applicable, news access guidelines, and (ii) may not authorize the use of any such television footage by any third parties. ENG crews acknowledge and agree that ABC and ESPN have the exclusive right to telecast live home football games of ACC schools between 3:30 p.m., and 11 p.m., east coast time (excluding telecasts of games commencing at noon east coast time that extend into overtime or whose start times are delayed by extraordinary circumstances, such as inclement weather).

PARKING

Game day media parking is available on a limited basis in two media-designated areas. Requests for parking credentials should be requested when credentials are requested. If you plan to visit the Tech campus Monday through Friday during work hours (press conference excepted), you must obtain a visitor parking permit.

TELEPHONES

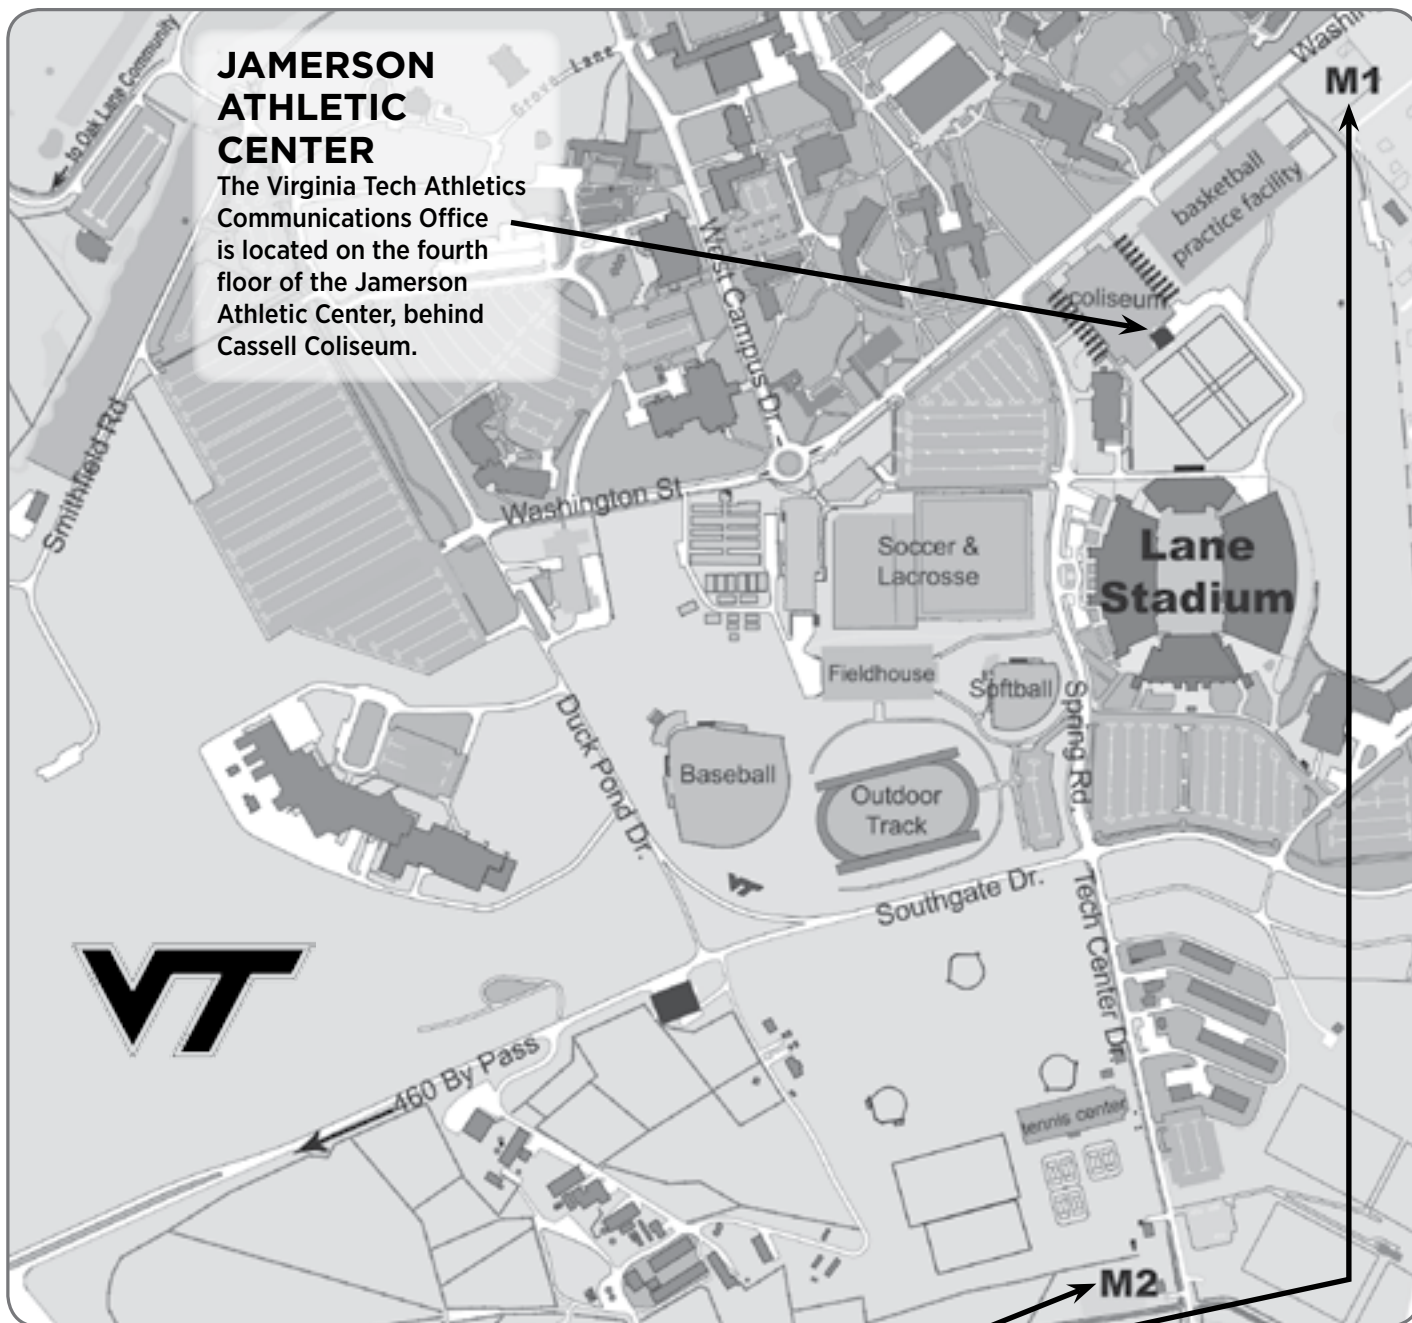

News people desiring their own telephone or ethernet lines should submit requests to Virginia Tech CNS at (540) 231-4350. If you request your own phone, please notify the Athletics Communications Office so we can give the phone company the proper location. The same applies for photographers wishing to activate a phone or ethernet line in the south end zone work room, where two pool phones and one pool ethernet line are provided. Please make all requests well in advance of the game.

WIRELESS INTERNET

Virginia Tech offers free wireless Internet to members of the media working the game. To be able to use this feature, you must have a wireless (802.11 compatible) card in your laptop, tested and configured prior to arriving. To register for this service, you are encouraged to sign up prior to arriving on game day, or in the press box or

POSTGAME INTERVIEWS

All postgame interviews take place in the June Oblinger Shott Media Center, located on the ground level of the south end zone. After a short cool-down period, Coach Frank Beamer will address the media on the podium, followed by four top players. When that session is completed, four or five of the remaining top requested players will meet with the news media after each home game. Media members with special player requests need to make those known prior to the fourth quarter.

A separate room, located directly across the hall from the Tech interview room, is available for interviews with the coaches and players from the visiting team. Directions to both interview areas will be available in the press box or through the Athletics Communications Office. Media access to visiting players will be determined by the visiting SID.

THE ACC ON THE WEB

The ACC site on the Internet is available at www.theACC.com. The site contains current information on all facets of the Atlantic Coast Conference. In addition, in-game scores for football contests involving ACC teams will be updated in-progress. Please contact Mike Finn in the ACC media relations department for more information.

ACC MEDIA SITE

CollegePressBox.com is the official media website for ACC football. Access and download weekly game notes, quotes, statistics, media guides and more for the conference and each of its 12 member schools throughout the season. Login information will be distributed to accredited media.

INTERVIEW POLICY

Virginia Tech's coaches and players will be available throughout the season for interviews with members of the news media on Tuesdays and Wednesdays of a normal game week. It is important, however, that all requests for interviews be made through the Athletics Communications Office.

Interviews with players and assistant coaches will be held in a 20-minute session after Tuesday's practice. Media may request up to eight players (four offense; four defense) and any assistant coach on Tuesday.

Offensive coordinator Scot Loeffler and defensive coordinator Bud Foster will only be available after Wednesday's practice.

Players may be requested for features only before meetings on Mondays and Tuesdays if it can be arranged around the player's schedule. All phone interviews must be done before practice.

Sunday's practices are closed to the media. On Tuesdays, the stretching and warm-up sessions, plus the first two periods are open to media and pro scouts. The rest of the week is closed to the media, including Friday's walk-through.

At no time will a player's phone number be given out and media are asked not to call, e-mail or contact the players or coaches through social networking websites (i.e., Facebook, Twitter) or ask for their contact information.

Meeting rooms, the weight room, training room, the coach's hallways and office are off-limits to media unless accompanied by a member of the Athletics Communications staff.

WEEKLY PRESS INTERVIEW SESSION

On Mondays prior to each Tech game, Coach Frank Beamer and selected members of the Tech team will be available to meet accredited media in the Shott Center, located in the south end zone. A light lunch will be served at approximately noon with two or three players available at 12:30 p.m., after the meal is served. Coach Beamer will begin his interview session at 1 p.m. All interviews will be held on the podium in the home interview room.

Media covering the press session may park in lot 4 (softball/track) without having to acquire a visitor parking pass. Media parking anywhere else will need a pass.

A video feed of Beamer, along with the players, is available both live and archived on hokietv.com.

TALKING TO COACH BEAMER

The best ways to reach Coach Frank Beamer are at his weekly press interview session on Mondays, on the ACC teleconference on Wednesdays, or after practice on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Any additional requests should be made through Dave Smith at (540) 231-6726.

ACC TELECONFERENCE

The ACC football coaches will be featured on a weekly teleconference, beginning on Wednesday, Aug. 27. The final teleconference, for the Virginia game, will be on Tuesday, Nov. 25. Each coach will be available for 10 minutes.

The teleconference number will be mailed to media members who cover Virginia Tech football. Members of the media can also secure the number and schedule by contacting the ACC office at (336) 851-6062.

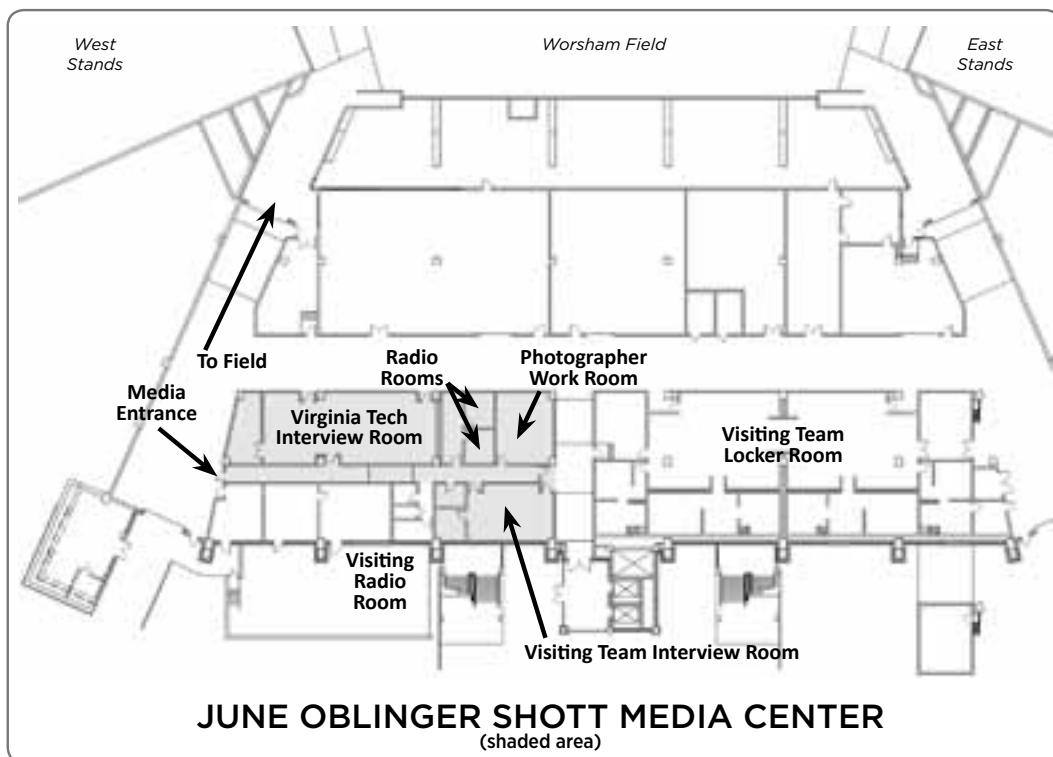

SATELLITE FEED

The ACC provides weekly feeds with highlights, along with coach and player interviews. Information is available through the ACC office.

INJURIES

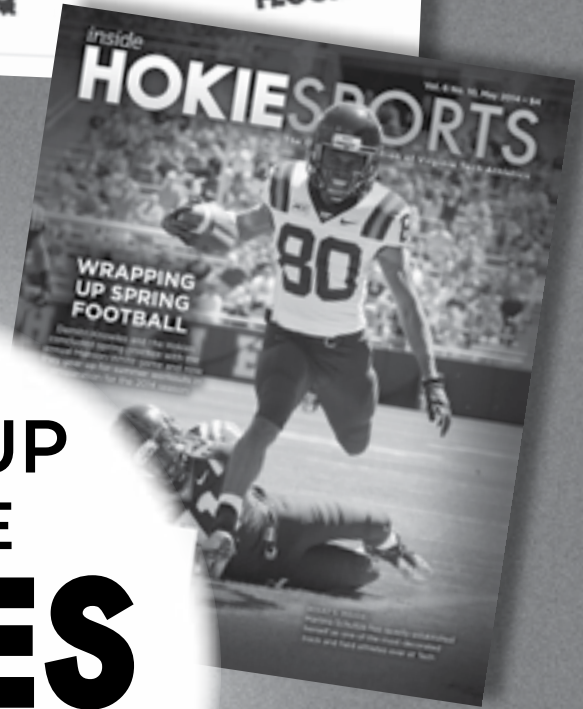

If a player is injured during the course of a game, an announcement will be made in the press box regarding the type of injury and if the player is expected to return to the game. If a significant injury occurs during practice or during the off-season, an email will be sent to media members who cover the Hokies.

The Athletics Communications office will send out an updated injury report on Thursday evenings 90 minutes following the conclusion of practice for conference games only. There will be no other updates on injuries during the week.

Virginia Tech has had 81 players drafted under head coach Frank Beamer, who leads all active FBS coaches with 266 career victories. In 2014, Kyle Fuller was taken in the first round by Chicago, while Logan Thomas (Arizona) and Antone Exum (Minnesota) were also drafted. In all, more than 185 Hokies coached by Beamer have signed with NFL squads.
