2015 OUTLOOK

With four players returning from the team that won three times and qualified for the NCAA championship last season, expectations remain very high for the Virginia Tech golf team in the coming year. Head Coach Jay Hardwick's task has been to build on the team's successful history by continuing to develop his players, all toward the ultimate goal of once again competing for the national championship.

The Hokies began the season with one of the most prestigious events in college golf; the Olympia Fields/Fighting Illini Invitational at Olympia Fields Country Club, site of the 2003 US Open, just outside Chicago. As a testament to how difficult the golf course and conditions were on the opening day, Virginia Tech's first round of 11-over-par, 291, led a field comprised of nine teams ranked in the top 25, including the two-time defending national champion and No. 1-ranked Alabama. Despite finishing the tournament in eighth place, it was a great experience for the Hokies and they built on that performance throughout the rest of the fall. The team successfully defended its title at its next event, the Janney VCU Shootout in Richmond. The three-peat was capped off by a final round two-under par 286, which was good enough for a six shot victory over Iowa State. Three Hokies finished in the top seven individually, including junior Maclain Huge's runner-up performance. The following event was contested at Primland Resort in Meadows of Dan, Va., for the inaugural Primland Collegiate Invitational. Although the exclusive field was limited to nine teams, there was certainly no letdown in the level of competition, which predominantly included teams from the ACC and SEC. Tech played consistently well throughout the two days with rounds of 285-276-278 to finish in fourth at 25-under-par for the tournament, as host Wake Forest and Auburn both ran away from the field with 38-under-par and 37-under-par performances, respectively. The Hokies then returned to the Bank of Tennessee Intercollegiate at The Blackthorn Club, a venue where they have enjoyed a great deal of success in the past. Tech finished in fourth place this time, as the event was marred by weather delays and eventually shortened to just 36 holes. The fall season once again concluded at the UNCG Bridgestone Collegiate at Grandover Resort in Greensboro, N.C. The Hokies played very well at times, but a slow start in the final round let a hot North Carolina team separate itself from the field and Tech came in second, led by senior Scott

Vincent's runner-up individual finish. Overall, the team ended the fall season ranked 26th in the country with a 46-14 won/loss record and having posted eight of 14 rounds at par-or-better.

This year's squad consists of two seniors, one junior, three sophomores and two freshmen. The two seniors and returning All-Americans, Trevor Cone and Scott Vincent, were voted the "Best 1-2 Punch in Men's College Golf" by Golfweek in the fall and have continued to set the bar for the team this season. Cone finished 12th or better in all five events, including third place performances at the VCU Shootout and Bridgestone Collegiate. He led the team with a 70.64 scoring average, 11 of 14 rounds at par-or-better, 70.40 final round scoring average, and the low individual round of 65 (seven-under-par) at the Primland Collegiate. Cone remains second in all-time scoring at Virginia Tech with a 72.25 average, trailing only Vincent, who remains in first place on that list with a 71.82 career average after the fall season. This year's team captain, Vincent has also continued to play at a very high level, with three Top 10 finishes. His runner-up performance at the Bridgestone Collegiate included opening with a six-under-par 66, which was the low score for the field in the first round by an impressive three shots. He posted a 71.50 scoring average and had eight rounds at par-or-better for the fall. Both Cone and Vincent also participated in the exclusive Western Refining All-America Golf Classic in November, which is held annually in El Paso, Texas. The invitees included only returning All-Americans from last season and Cone and Vincent finished 15th and 18th in the event, respectively. Both are on track to graduate in May and will look to end their outstanding careers on a high note this spring before likely joining the professional ranks later this year.

The team's lone junior this season, Maclain Huge, narrowly missed a putt on his final hole at the VCU Shootout to tie for individual honors. His 72.79 scoring average was third on the team and included six rounds at par-or-better. Huge currently sits in 10th place on the all-time scoring list with a 73.92 average. All three sophomores competed at least once in the lineup for the team this fall. Joey Lane started all five events and posted a 74.71 average. His best finish was at the Primland Collegiate, where he shot a first round 70 en route to a 34th place finish. Drew Johnson played steadily throughout the fall and had two Top 25 finishes, at the VCU Shootout and Bridgestone Collegiate. His 73.82 average was fourth on the team and included three rounds at par-or-better. Ryan Mondy competed for the team at Olympia Fields and also played as an individual at the VCU Shootout and Bank of Tennessee Intercollegiate.

Both freshmen have quickly adapted to the demands of being a student-athlete at Virginia Tech and gained valuable experience while competing twice during the fall. Ian Hildebrand aided in the team's victory at the VCU Shootout and played as an individual at the Bridgestone Intercollegiate, where he finished in 64th place. Dan Woodbury posted a 22nd-place finish as an individual at the Bridgestone Intercollegiate, which included an opening round of 70, his low round for the fall.

Under the guidance of Hall of Fame Head Coach Jay Hardwick and 2009 NCAA Assistant Coach of the Year Brian Sharp, this talented group is determined to continue its success in the always-demanding ACC. The spring season will once again begin in Puerto Rico, and, with the number of outstanding tournaments that will follow, the Hokies will certainly be well prepared for the ACC Championship and a return to NCAA postseason play.

What Is a Hokie?

The answer leads all the way back to 1896 when Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute. With the change came the necessity for writing a new cheer, and a contest for such a purpose was held by the student body.

Senior O.M. Stull won first prize for his “Hokie” yell, which is still used today. Later, when asked if “Hokie” had any special meaning, Stull explained the word was solely the product of his imagination and was used only as an attention-getter for his yell. It soon became a nickname for all Tech teams and for those people loyal to Tech athletics.

HEAD COACH JAY HARDWICK

PGA Professional and Head Coach Jay Hardwick is in his 32nd season at Virginia Tech. During this time, Hardwick has developed the Hokie golf program into one that not only wins, but also does so the right way. Academic integrity, solid fundamentals and a sense of right are trademarks of this program. The Hokies don't just win, they achieve.

With his attention to detail and the support of an outstanding group of boosters, Hardwick has brought Virginia Tech golf into national prominence. A look at his accomplishments the past 31 years shows just how successful he and his Hokies have been. His teams have finished in the top 10 of 271 tournaments and have won 38 tournaments, including a nation's best six titles during the 2000-01 season. Under Hardwick's direction, the Hokies have appeared in the past eight NCAA Division I Golf Regionals, and most recently qualified for the 2014 NCAA Golf Championship at Prairie Dunes Country Club in Hutchinson, Kan. Virginia Tech also had consecutive trips to the regionals from 2001 to 2004, advancing to the NCAA championship two of those years and finishing eighth in 2001. In total, Hardwick's players have been to 14 NCAA regionals and advanced to the NCAA finals seven times.

Since 1993, Hardwick has guided the Hokies to eight conference championships, becoming the only coach in NCAA history to have captured conference titles in four different leagues with the same school. His teams won back-to-back championships in the Metro Conference in 1993 and 1994, and again in the Atlantic 10 Conference in 1996 and 1997. Virginia Tech claimed the BIG EAST Conference Championship in 2001, its first season of competition in the league, duplicated the feat in 2002, and made it a three-peat in 2003, staging a dramatic come-from-behind victory over Notre Dame on the Irish's home course, where the team overcame an 11-stroke deficit on the last three holes.

Following his induction into the Golf Coaches Association of America Hall of Fame, Jay Hardwick and his wife, Celia, are pictured with golf legend Arnold Palmer, who received the association's Lifetime Achievement Award.

When the Virginia Tech community was rocked by the tragedy of April 16, 2007, Hardwick mourned with his players and then went about helping the community in the best way he knew how: He and his team of achievers captured one of the most improbable, but well-earned, ACC titles in any sport. His group of players, with tears in their eyes and a strong will, tied Georgia Tech for the 2007 ACC Golf Championship six days after the tragedy.

A tireless worker, Hardwick has taken on even more duties and responsibilities over the past twelve years. In January 2003, he was named Director of Golf Operations at Virginia Tech, a position that not only continues his stewardship over the Virginia Tech Golf Course, but also the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech. Since 2004, when the Hokies joined the Atlantic Coast Conference, Hardwick has overseen a program to improve facilities and continue the quest to remain among the elite programs in collegiate golf. "The River" underwent a major renovation that year by renowned golf course architect Pete Dye. The renovation included a new state-of-the-art practice facility for the golf team and other amenities that afford Hokie golfers one of the finest team-oriented practice complexes in the nation. He has also built a solid financial foundation for the program, receiving 36 endowed scholarships over the past 28 years, which will allow numerous student-athletes to continue their careers at the collegiate level.

Never one to prize individual honors, Hardwick has nonetheless received many accolades that are testament to the mark he has left on collegiate golf and the golf world as a whole. In December 2012, Hardwick was presented with the GCAA Service Award for outstanding service to Virginia Tech and the sport of golf for over 30 years. In 2007 he was inducted into the Golf Coaches Association of America's Hall of Fame. He received the award at the association's annual banquet in Orlando, and sharing the dais with Hardwick and the two other inductees was golf legend Arnold Palmer, who received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the GCAA. Additionally, in 1994 Hardwick received one of his greatest honors when he was selected as the 11th inductee to the Virginia PGA Hall of Fame, making him the youngest member of this elite group.

He was named the inaugural recipient of the Labron Harris Sr., Award in 2005, given by E-Z-GO Textron, in association with the PGA of America. This award is presented to the college or high school coach and PGA Professional whose support of the game through teaching, coaching and involvement in the community has helped ensure the continued growth of the game and represent the finest qualities the game has to offer. He was also named the recipient of the Bill Strausbaugh Award presented by the Middle Atlantic PGA in 2005. This award bestows special recognition on a PGA member who has made significant contributions through mentoring of PGA Professionals and through involvement in community and charitable activities.

Hardwick was named the BIG EAST Conference Coach of the Year in 2001, 2002 and 2003. In 1996 and 1997 he was chosen the Atlantic 10 Conference Coach of the Year, and was also named Metro Conference Coach of the Year in 1992 and 1993. In addition, the coaching members of the Golf Coaches Association of America awarded him the NCAA Golf Coach of the Year for District 3-North for the 1993-94 season. He also received the inaugural Virginia Collegiate Coach of the Year award in 1993 and was selected for the same honor again in 1994, 2001, 2013 and 2014.

In the spirit of Virginia Tech's motto "Ut Prosim" (that I may serve), Hardwick has always believed in giving back to the game and volunteering his time. He is a past vice president of the Virginia chapter of the Middle Atlantic PGA, having also served on the tournament rules and regulations committee, the membership committee, and the employment and club relations committee. He has been a head professional for 41 years and is a Class "A" Member, Quarter Century Club Member and Life Member of the PGA of America. Hardwick's experience is well suited to his former role as a liaison between the GCAA and PGA of America.

Head Coach Jay Hardwick and Associate Head Coach Brian Sharp have teamed up to create a winning program at Virginia Tech.

Hardwick was elected president of the BIG EAST Golf Coaches Association for the 2003-04 season and served on the NCAA Golf District Advisory Committee for three years from 1994 to 1997, becoming chairman of District III-North in his last year on the panel. He also was a member of the GCAA Wilson Coaches Top 25 Poll and the Golf Digest Collegiate Poll and served on the All-Region Committee. Hardwick has twice been selected by the NCAA to serve as an instructor at the Youth Education through Sports (YES) golf clinic, which is held at the site of the NCAA Golf Championship. He conducted a clinic in 1990 at Innsbrook, Fla., and again in 1996 in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hardwick has been an instructor at the Championship Coaches Golf School since 1986. During this time he has taught at 76 golf schools.

In 2001 he was an instructor at the Hall of Fame Teaching and Coaching Seminar at Walt Disney World Golf Resort, one of only six coaches selected to present at the two-day seminar prior to the GCAA annual convention and PGA Merchandise Show. Norwegian Cruise Lines selected Hardwick to serve as the golf coordinator in their 1991 NFL/PGA Instruction Program. He conducted golf clinics on the five southern Caribbean Islands of Barbados, Martinique, St. Maarten, Antigua and St. Thomas.

In the summer of 1992, Hardwick was chosen to coach Team USA at the World Junior Team Championship, held in Izumo City, Japan. It marked the first time the United States had officially sponsored a junior team in international competition. Team USA won the gold medal in the 12-team tournament and four of Team USA's players placed in the top 10, including Justin Roof of Conway, S.C., who captured the individual title.

An excellent teacher of the game, Hardwick has compiled an impressive list of playing accomplishments as well. In the fall of 2009, less than a year after reconstructive shoulder surgery, he achieved perhaps the most impressive feat of his playing career by winning the State Senior Open of Virginia. In 1995 he won the Middle Atlantic PGA Head Professional Championship by one shot after he birdied the last five holes. That year, he also won the Bobby Jones/Homestead Invitational at the Lower and Upper Cascades with rounds of 68-65 for a seven-shot victory. In addition, he was named a member of the PGA Challenge Cup Team for 1995, 1996 and 1997. He qualified for the National PGA Club Professional Championship in 1978, 1988 and 1992 and was selected by the PGA as a member of the Yamaha Cup team in 1988. He won the 1981 Spalding International Professional Championship in Castle Harbour, Bermuda, and was low pro in the Virginia PGA State Open in 1976.

In both 1989 and 1992, Hardwick compiled a 72.5 competitive stroke average and was a member of the 1989 winning team in the PGA/VSGA team matches. Hardwick also holds five course records, two tournament records and has twice shot 29 in competition.

A Narrows, Va., native, Hardwick played collegiate golf for the same team he now coaches. During his four-year playing career at Tech, the Hokies posted a 64-9 match play record and won three straight state intercollegiate championships. Hardwick was a four-year letterman for Tech and captain of the 1971 squad that claimed the state crown.

After graduating in 1971 with a degree in business administration, Hardwick turned pro and played for a year on the Florida winter tour. In 1973 he became the head professional at Giles Country Club in Pearisburg, Va., where he developed an outstanding junior golf program. He held that position for 10 years before returning to his alma mater. Upon his departure, the club members presented him and his family with a lifetime membership.

Hardwick, who officiated high school and college basketball for 25 years, retired from the sport in 1997 after working more than 1,000 games.

He is married to the former Celia Martin of Pembroke, Va. The couple has a son Cris, daughter-in-law Melissa and grandsons Jacob Dylan and Aiden Thomas, who reside in Fredericksburg.

THE HARDWICK YEARS

The Hokies' Individual Honors Since 1984

A proven recruiter who emphasizes the ideal of the student-athlete, Hardwick has built the golf program around players who are standouts in the classroom as well as on the golf course. During his tenure, the graduation rate for golfers who have completed their eligibility at Virginia Tech is 99 percent. In Hardwick's first four seasons of coaching, the Hokies placed different players on consecutive Academic All-America squads; Jake Allison was named to the 1985 Golf Coaches Association Academic All-America team and Mark Teachey earned this distinction in 1986. Carl Wakely received this same prestigious recognition in 2006, now referred to as an All-American Scholar. In 2008, Jurrian van der Vaart and Drew Weaver became the fourth and fifth All-American Scholars in Virginia Tech history and Weaver became the first Tech player to earn this award twice when he was named an All-American Scholar again in 2009. Both van der Vaart and Weaver were named the Virginia Tech ACC Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year in 2008 and 2009, respectively. In 2013, Bryce Chalkley became the sixth player to be named an All-American Scholar for the Hokies and received this honor again in 2014.

In the past 17 seasons, 11 Tech players were named to the A-10 All-Conference team and 10 more earned All-BIG EAST honors. In 2008, Jurrian van der Vaart became the first-ever Hokie to earn ACC all-conference honors, an honor that Drew Weaver earned in 2009. In 2013, both Mikey Moyers and Scott Vincent were named to the All-ACC team. In 2014, Vincent was joined by teammates Bryce Chalkley and Trevor Cone on the All-ACC team. In total, Hardwick's players have been named to the all-state team 55 times, the all-conference team 38 times, the GCAA All-Region team 13 times and named All-America 15 times.

One of the top assistant coaches in collegiate golf, Brian Sharp is in his 12th season at Virginia Tech and in July 2008 was promoted to associate head coach. He graduated from Virginia Tech in 1995 with a degree in finance and received his MBA from the Pamplin College of Business in 2006. During his career with the Hokies, he was a four-year letterwinner on the golf team.

Sharp was named the recipient of the 2009 Jan Strickland Award presented by TaylorMade-Adidas to the Assistant Coach of the Year, as selected by the Golf Coaches Association of America. The Strickland Award is given to the NCAA Division I, II, III or NAIA assistant coach that, among other things, has excelled in working with their student-athletes both on the course and in the classroom. He received the award at the NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championship banquet at the Inverness Club in Toledo, Ohio, where Jack Nicklaus was the keynote speaker.

The Strickland Award recipient is invited to serve as the assistant coach on the following year's Palmer Cup team, and Sharp traveled to Portrush, Ireland and historic Royal Portrush Golf Club for the event in 2010. The United States team defeated Europe 13-11, its first victory on foreign soil since 2002.

Sharp was also named to the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in 2009. During Sharp's playing career at Virginia Tech, he won four collegiate events, including the 1995 Metro Conference Golf Championship as a senior. He left Virginia Tech as the all-time leader in career scoring for the Hokies, with a four-year average of 74.14. He also finished his Tech career with the most rounds played, and started in the number-one position in every tournament during that time. Sharp is the only Tech golfer to be both four-time all-conference and first team all-state. In addition, he was named to the NCAA All-District 3-North team twice. He is one of only three players in the history of the league to be a four-time All-Metro Conference selection. He was also selected as the 1995 Metro Conference student-athlete of the year and won the Medallion Award for the most outstanding male student-athlete at Virginia Tech in 1995.

“Brian has done an excellent job for us in the time he has been with our program,” Hardwick said. “He has the innate ability to recognize potential immediately, which makes him extremely valuable as a recruiter. He has a wonderful work ethic and all of the attributes that make for a successful coach.

“He is not only one of the top players in Tech history, but also one of the most respected. A four-time MVP and three-time Most Dedicated Player award recipient during his career, it is no surprise that he has continued to have the same success as a coach that he had as a collegiate player and as a professional.”

Sharp came to Virginia Tech from the Buy.com Tour (currently the Web.com Tour), where he played in 2002. Sharp turned professional in 1995 and played on various developmental tours before joining the Buy.com Tour. He won his first ever professional event in 1995 on the Powerbilt Tour at the Neuse Golf Club in Raleigh, N.C.

Sharp’s duties with the Hokies include recruiting, the off-season conditioning program, instruction and player academic progress, as well as managing the Virginia Tech Golf Team Complex.

“Brian has an excellent understanding of the mechanics of the golf swing and is a very qualified teacher,” Hardwick said. “He has all the qualities that any coach would like instilled in his own team — time management, academic prowess, social skills, public speaking ability, attention to detail, high moral character and a dedicated work ethic. We are extremely fortunate to have Brian as a member of our staff. He is an outstanding role model for our players.”

A native of Winston-Salem, N.C., Sharp was captain of the 1994 and 1995 Hokie golf teams. He is married to the former Margaret Blackburn of Midlothian, Va. The couple resides in Blacksburg with daughter Meredith and son Cameron.

Brian Sharp was the assistant coach for the victorious Team USA in the 2010 Palmer Cup.

ACADEMIC SUPPORT

Finding a balance between academic accomplishments and athletic success is the focus for Coach Jay Hardwick's golf program at Virginia Tech, and Student Athlete Academic Support Services takes a very personal role in the supervision and support of all student-athletes. The advising office continuously engages with other campus agencies to help student-athletes in their continuing pursuit of academic achievement.

Student Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS) provides programming for student-athletes from their freshman year through graduation. This includes a comprehensive orientation to Tech, study hall, mentoring, tutoring, academic monitoring, academic recognition and eligibility education.

The Virginia Tech graduation rate for student-athletes has remained quite high in recent years and was 64 percent in 2014. Additionally, more than 88 percent of Tech's student-athletes who have completed their eligibility have graduated.

In addition to posting impressive graduation figures, Virginia Tech's student-athletes continue to excel in the classroom. For the 2014 calendar year, 550 3.0 GPA's were earned by student-athletes, student trainers, student managers, cheerleaders and HighTechs. These student-athletes and students from support areas are recognized at the Athletic Director's Honors Breakfast each spring.

Bryce Chalkley was named a GCAA All American Scholar in 2013 and 2014.

The SAASS office has been especially beneficial to the golf team, which consistently posts grade point averages among the best of any athletic team at Tech. The past three seasons the team has been recognized by the NCAA for a perfect Academic Progress Rate, and has been named an All-Academic Team by Farmer's Insurance and the Golf Coaches Association of America (GCAA). During Hardwick's years, the graduation rate for golfers who have completed their eligibility at Tech is 99 percent.

The golf team has received many accolades for its work in the classroom in recent years. In 2009, Drew Weaver was selected as the Outstanding Male Student-Athlete at Virginia Tech by the ACC, the second consecutive year this honor went to a member of the golf team, following Jurrian van der Vaart's recognition in 2008. In 2013, Bryce Chalkley became the sixth player in the team's history to be named an All-American Scholar by the GCAA, and received this honor again in 2014. Last season, Chalkley, Maclain Huge and Joey Lane were named to the All-ACC Academic Men's Golf Team. This marked the fourth time Chalkley has been named to the team and the second year Huge has been selected. Trevor Cone and Drew Johnson joined Chalkley, Huge and Lane in being named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll in 2014 as well.

In the summer of 2006, SAASS moved its offices to the new expansion of the West Side of Lane Stadium. Here, student-athletes have access to state-of-the-art technology, quiet study facilities, individualized tutorial rooms, and direct access to the SAASS staff. This complex is the focal point for the Athletics Department, both aesthetically and pragmatically, and provides a centralized place for student athlete services.

The 18,000-square-foot facility features 10 staff offices, 18 private tutor rooms, a state-of-the-art classroom, a 45-station computer lab, three reading/study rooms, a conference room and a reference library.

Together, these spaces provide the student athlete with a variety of study environments conducive to their success. Athletes can use these facilities between classes, after practice or in the evenings, with flexible hours tailored to make the most of a student athlete's limited time.

The Student Athlete Academic Support Services office is comprised of a team of ten professionals directed by Matt Mayotte. Mayotte is in his first year at Virginia Tech, however he previously served as director of Student-Athlete Services at Troy University in Alabama for more than nine years, providing leadership for the academic progress for more than 430 student-athletes. Mayotte works directly with the golf team.

The golf team is leading the way with excellence. With the guidance and support of the SAASS, it is not difficult to see why.

2014-15 Season - Competed twice as an individual in the fall ... Best finish was 22nd at the UNCG Bridgestone Collegiate

Junior Golf/High School - Three year letterwinner at St. John's High School ... Team captain as a senior ... Three-time Worcester Telegram and Gazette All-Star ... Finished fifth at the 2011 Massachusetts Division I State Championship ... St. John's won the Division I State Championship during his sophomore and junior seasons

"I first saw Dan three years ago at the Coaches Championship Academy and was very impressed by his attitude and determination. He improved every year and qualified for the US Junior Championship in 2013. He played in two events in the fall and his first round two-under par 70 and resulting Top 25 finish at the Bridgestone Collegiate is indicative of his potential. One of the most popular players on the team, Dan is the type of person that makes others around him better."

BLACKSBURG, VIRGINIA

College Town, U.S.A. – Home of Virginia Tech

One of America's best college towns, Blacksburg is a perfect setting for a great university like Virginia Tech. Located in Southwest Virginia on a plateau between the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains, Blacksburg combines the laid-back lifestyle of a small town with the amenities one would expect to find around a major center of higher education. The town and university have worked together to create a progressive community that ranks among the nation's elite living environments.

When BusinessWeek released its 2011 rankings, Blacksburg took top honors as "America's best place to raise a family," and Homes.com ranked Blacksburg No. 1 on its "Top 10 cities to raise a family" listing in 2012. Blacksburg gained national and international attention by creating the world's first "electronic village" in 1993. Businesses and industries have been drawn by the potential the town has to offer.

Established in 1798 by John and William Black, the town is surrounded by scenic mountain views that accentuate the area. Since its founding, Blacksburg has grown to become the largest town in Virginia. More than 42,000 residents (including Tech students) enjoy a close proximity to a variety of recreation areas such as the Blue Ridge Parkway, Appalachian Trail, Claytor Lake and the New River. The region features a moderate climate and four distinct seasons. Blacksburg's location is adjacent to major interstate highways and provides convenient access to most points in the southern and eastern parts of the country.

More information on Blacksburg can be found on the town's web site, www.blacksburg.gov.

THIS IS VIRGINIA TECH

Burruss Hall on the beautiful Virginia Tech campus

Outstanding University Has One of the Nation's Best Athletic Complexes

Nestled in the rolling mountains of Southwest Virginia, the campus of Virginia Tech has that rare quality — a major, thriving modern institute of higher learning, living in harmony with its beautiful surroundings.

The keystones of the Hokies' athletic complex are Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum. Lane Stadium/Worsham Field, which seats 65,632 fans, is the home of Tech's nationally ranked football team that has appeared in 22 consecutive bowl games and played in the 2000 Nokia Sugar Bowl for the national championship. The football team utilizes a state-of-the-art locker room, which is adjacent to Lane Stadium and opens to the team's practice fields and new indoor practice facility, scheduled to be completed in 2015. Cassell Coliseum houses a 9,847-seat arena as well as athletic offices, locker rooms and training facilities. The Hahn Hurst Basketball Practice Center to the east of Cassell affords benefits not only to the basketball team, but all student-athletes.

Other facilities include Rector Field House, site of an indoor AstroTurf football field and Mondo track; English Field, the home of the baseball team; the Tech

The Tech baseball team plays at English Field.

Softball Park; the Johnson-Miller Track Complex; the Soccer Stadium and Thompson Field, home of the men's and women's soccer teams; lacrosse practice fields; the Christiansburg Aquatic Center, home of the men's and women's swimming teams; the Virginia Tech Golf Course and the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech, site of the Virginia Tech Golf Team Complex.

Lane Stadium, home of the Hokies' nationally ranked football program, seats 66,233 fans and is known as one of the top venues in collegiate sports.

The Merryman Center is the centerpiece of Virginia Tech's athletic compound.

The Merryman Center is a two-story building on the west side of the Jamerson Athletic Center in the heart of the athletic complex. It is a 40,000-square foot all-purpose facility. The second floor houses an entranceway to the athletic complex, a classroom area and the 130-seat McConnell auditorium. The first floor includes a conditioning and weightlifting complex, a multipurpose gymnasium and an expanded area for sports medicine and training.

Nearby Cochrane Hall houses many of Tech's student-athletes. West End Market is a dining facility located in Cochrane and in 2009 was named the No. 1 dining hall in the nation by the Princeton Review. The university's dining services has been ranked in the top 3 for "Best Campus Food" since 2006, receiving the No. 1 ranking three times, most recently in 2014.

Golfers have access to the new 7,000 square foot W.A. and Mae Street Olympic Sports Athletic Performance Center, located in Cassell Coliseum. Here athletes train with free weights and modern Nautilus equipment while receiving expert instruction under the direction of associate athletics director for athletic performance Mike Gentry.

Also on the Virginia Tech campus are the Burrows-Burleson indoor and outdoor tennis facilities and the War Memorial Gym, which has an Olympic-sized pool and facilities for gymnastics, volleyball, handball, racquetball and basketball.

A student recreational facility, McComas Hall, is located on the Tech campus as well. This facility houses the student health center, an indoor pool, gyms, a jogging track and various other exercise equipment for Tech students.

Virginia Tech's overall athletic complex is, without question, one of the finest in the United States.

Members of the Tech golf team now work out in a state-of-the-art weight room in Cassell Coliseum.

9,847-seat Cassell Coliseum hosts basketball games and other sporting events.

HOKIES IN THE COMMUNITY

The Hokie men's golf team has always been a valuable member of the Virginia Tech community, volunteering its time to help others on several occasions throughout the year. Among other events the past few seasons, the team took a day away from the course to visit the Shriners Hospital for Children in Greenville, S.C.

The visit, arranged through the Virginia Tech Athletics Department's Office of Student-Athlete Development, was an opportunity for the team to "give back" to the community.

The Hokies took posters of the team, Virginia Tech mini-basketball hoops, brochures and Hokie Kids Club T-shirts for every child at the hospital.

They visited each room, spending time with many of the children who come to the hospital for daily treatments. In all, the team members interacted with more than 100 kids, talking and playing games, even using their own putters to teach the kids how to putt.

“Spending time in the hospital is hard, especially when you are a kid,” said Melissa Bayles, Public Relations Specialist for the Shriners Hospitals for Children-Greenville. “When the Virginia Tech Golf Team comes to Shriners Hospitals for Children, they do more than just complete a community service project; they bring smiles and happiness to our patients. Even if just for a few minutes, they help the kids forget about their pain. As an employee, it is touching to see how well the golfers interact with our patients.

They aren’t afraid to get close to the kids, even visiting the ones in isolation. For those patients, the memory of the team’s visit will last a lifetime. We hope the Virginia Tech Golf Team will continue to make their visit to the Greenville Shriners Hospital an annual event.”

The golf team, as do all Virginia Tech athletics teams, spends countless hours enriching the lives of other members of the community, on campus, in Blacksburg and around the region. For more information, please contact the Office of Student-Athlete Development.

PETE DYE RIVER COURSE OF VIRGINIA TECH

Hokies' World-Class Facility Is Ranked in the Top 10 of Golf Week's Best Campus Courses

Renowned golf architect Pete Dye began a renovation of The River Course of Virginia Tech in 2004. With the facility's completion, the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech has become a beautiful reality. Opening in August 2005, the course was selected by Golf Digest as one of the Top 5 "Best Newly Remodeled Courses in America" for 2006. In September 2014, the course was selected ninth on the list of Golfweek's Best Campus Courses.

The Pete Dye River Course continues building its reputation as a championship destination and has already hosted several prestigious events, including the 2011 NCAA Division I Men's Golf East Regional, the 2011 Virginias-Carolinas Women's Team Matches and the 2012 Mid-Atlantic Junior Invitational. Because of the rave reviews the facility has received following these events, it has also been selected to host the 2016 VSGA Amateur Championship.

"This world-class golf course, coupled with our magnificent clubhouse, is an exciting and challenging venue for top golfers at all levels," said Jay Hardwick, director of golf operations at Virginia Tech and head golf coach.

It was included in Golf Digest's "Best Places to Play" for 2008-2009 as a coveted 4-1/2 Star Facility. This rating was the highest awarded in Virginia, Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee and was also shared with The Homestead's Cascades Course, The Meadows Course at the Greenbrier, Kingsmill's River Course, and Pinehurst Resort Courses Nos. 4, 6, 7 & 8. "The River" was also named as one of the "100 Middle Atlantic Must-Play Courses for 2008."

In addition to the renovation, a turf care center was constructed, as well as the Virginia Tech Golf Team Complex, which houses an indoor teaching center that opens to the outside range and is equipped with the latest video swing analysis system. This facility also includes locker rooms, club repair room, players' lounge, a recruit welcome area and team meeting room for the Virginia Tech golf team. A covered tee area, which is enclosed on three sides, is located at the back of the practice range and is equipped with fans, radiant heaters and lights.

These improvements were made possible by support from Bill and Alice Goodwin of Richmond, Va. Mr. Goodwin, a Virginia Tech alumnus, is an avid golfer who wanted to provide the Virginia Tech golf team and the university community an opportunity to play on a world-caliber championship course. The gift covered all costs of design and construction.

World-renowned architect Pete Dye describes the course renovations taking place in 2004 to the Tech golf team.

The challenging par-five third hole is as intimidating as it is beautiful.

The indoor facility was constructed adjacent to the state-of-the-art golf team practice area, which was made possible through the generosity of long-time golf team supporter and scholarship donor, the late C.M. “Buddy” Neviasser, and his late wife, Doris. This facility provides Tech players with one of the finest total practice complexes in the nation. The facility was officially dedicated in September 2004.

The dedication of a $5.5 million clubhouse at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech took place in October 2010. The Harry S. and Patsy B. Williams Clubhouse was named in honor of the late Harry S., and late Patsy B. Williams, long-time supporters of Virginia Tech athletics and academics. Harry Williams graduated from Virginia Tech in 1955. Construction on the clubhouse was completed in May 2010 and the views of the golf course from the 4,000 square-foot deck surrounding it are breathtaking. The new facility consists of a spacious golf shop, multi-purpose conference room, men’s and ladies’ locker rooms, and the Hackin’ Hokie Grille.

Pete Dye is noted as one of the finest golf course architects in the world. The Indiana native has worked with the Goodwins in the past, most notably on the Ocean Course at Kiawah Island, host of the 1994 Ryder Cup. He has also designed The Tournament Players Club at Sawgrass, Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.; the PGA West Stadium Course in La Quinta, Calif.; Brickyard Crossing Golf Course in Indianapolis, Ind.; Crooked Stick Golf Club in Carmel, Ind.; Harbour Town Golf Links and The Colleton River Dye Course in Hilton Head, S.C.; and the Honors Course in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dye is known for enhancing the existing landscape and working within the natural beauty of the area. He used all of the natural attributes of the previous course, including the New River, with its adjoining rock formations and natural trees and vegetation.

“This is a tremendous benefit for Virginia Tech, our golf program, the membership and the golfing community,” Hardwick said. “We are indeed fortunate to have a Pete Dye signature golf course, named after one of the most renowned and respected golf course architects of all time.”

The project allows for play by all residents of the New River Valley community, as the course is open to the public for daily play. Club members, daily fee golfers, visitors, faculty, staff and students of Virginia Tech and all others are afforded access to one of the finest golf courses in the nation. The nationally ranked layout, which complements the natural beauty of the area and the adjacent New River, allows for future economic growth. The course was designed to become a destination for golfers looking to play on the finest courses and a site for future tournaments and championship events.

The Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech has done for Hokie golf what Lane Stadium/Worsham Field did for Virginia Tech football. It is simply “The Best.”

The picturesque par-three No. 7 is the shortest, but one of the most demanding holes on the course.

The fantastic clubhouse at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech has a full service restaurant, a banquet area and a well-stocked pro shop.

HOKIES' HOME COURSES

In addition to the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech, the Hokie golf team also enjoys the use of the Virginia Tech Golf Course and Blacksburg Country Club.

Blacksburg Country Club, former site of the Virginia State Amateur and Virginia State Open Championships, has also hosted the VSGA Junior Boys Championship in 1986, 1994, 2003, and 2008, as well as the 1988 VSGA Junior Girls Championship.

"We very much appreciate the outstanding support we have received from the staff and members of Blacksburg Country Club in allowing our team the use of their fine golf course," Tech coach Jay Hardwick said.

The nine-hole Virginia Tech Golf Course, known for some of the finest greens in the state, is located on campus. In addition, a short game and wedge area complete with a chipping and putting green has been built and its location is a benefit to the Hokies for playing and practicing.

"The opportunity to have the use of many outstanding golf courses is a great asset to our program," Hardwick said. "All three courses are always in superb condition and are well known for their fine bent grass greens."

Virginia Tech's golfing facilities do not stop with those three outstanding layouts. The Hokies are extended playing privileges at nearby Olde Mill Golf Club in Laurel Fork, Draper Valley Golf Club in Pulaski and Hanging Rock Golf Club in Salem.

The 12th hole at Blacksburg Country Club is rated one of the top holes in Southwest Virginia.

Olde Mill Golf Club at Groundhog Mountain offers golfers a unique challenge of tree-lined mountainous fairways winding through 55 acres of lakes and streams.

The Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech features 2.5 miles of shoreline along the scenic and historic New River.

2013-2014 REVIEW

Hokies extend NCAA streak to eight years

Throughout the season, Virginia Tech remained among the top 25 teams in the nation and was selected to the NCAA Auburn Regional at Auburn University Club in Auburn, Ala. This was the Hokies' eighth straight appearance and the 12th time in the last 14 years that Tech has participated in postseason play. In the regional format, five teams from each site qualify for the NCAA Finals. Entering the last round in fourth place, the Hokies posted a final round 290 to remain in fourth by two strokes over Texas and advance to the NCAA Finals at Prairie Dunes in Hutchinson, Kan. The team finished 28th in its second national championship appearance in three years, and juniors Trevor Cone and Scott Vincent each played well individually, finishing 19th and 35th, respectively.

Virginia Tech played 10 tournaments during the regular season and finished fourth or better in nine events, including victories at the VCU Shootout, Mission Inn Spring Spectacular and Furman Intercollegiate. The team's stroke average improved by almost two shots from the previous season to 286.4, and the players shot par-or-better 79 times in 175 rounds that counted toward team play. The Hokies ended the year ranked inside the Top 20 nationally in almost every statistical category, highlighted by their No. 1 ranking in total short game.

The team captain and lone senior, Bryce Chalkley, truly epitomized the term "student-athlete" throughout his four years and played well all season to end a stellar career with the Hokies. He had his career-best finish with runner-up performances at the VCU Shootout and Mission Inn Spring Spectacular, both times losing only to one of his teammates. He added Top 20 finishes at six additional events and was third on the team in scoring, with a 71.97 average, and rounds at par-or-better, with 19. Chalkley ended his four years in sixth place on the All-Time Career Scoring list with a 73.26 average. As a testament to his fine play throughout the year, he was named to the All-ACC Men's Golf team, the Division I All-East Region team and the Virginia Collegiate All-State second team. Chalkley was once again named an All-America Scholar by the Golf Coaches Association of America, joining Drew Weaver as the only two-time recipients of this award in the program's history.

Vincent became Virginia Tech golf's first-ever member of the PING All-America first team and was also named to the All-Nicklaus Team, which is comprised of the 24 best players from all NCAA Divisions. For the second consecutive season, he was named to the All-ACC team, Division I All-East Region team and the Virginia Collegiate All-State first team. Not surprisingly, Vincent was named the Hokies' Player of the Year and led the team in multiple areas, including a 70.51 scoring average, three tournament victories, and six Top 5 finishes. For the second straight year he was ranked No. 2 in the nation in total short game, and he remained the leader on the team's All-Time Career Scoring list with a 71.87 average.

Cone had a year to remember as well. He was named to the PING All-America third team, which marks the second time in Virginia Tech history that two Hokies have been named All-Americans in the same season, following Brendon de Jonge and Johnson Wagner in 2002. Cone led the team and was second nationally in "Crunch Time" scoring with a final round average of 69.58. He won back-to-back tournaments at the Mission Inn Spring Spectacular and Furman Intercollegiate and finished outside the Top 20 only one time in 13 events. He was second on the team in scoring with a 70.91 average, posted a team-best 24 rounds at par-or-better, and finished the season in second place on the All-Time Career Scoring list. Cone joined Chalkley and Vincent in being named to the All-ACC Team, Division I All-East Region Team and the Virginia Collegiate All-State first team.

Sophomore Maclain Huge was a mainstay in the Hokies' lineup, and posted five Top 20 finishes while shooting par-or-better 15 times. Huge was named the team's Co-Most Dedicated Player along with Vincent. Each of the three freshmen contributed to team victories throughout the season as well. The team's Rookie of the Year, Drew Johnson, played in seven tournaments and was a member of the winning team at the Mission Inn Spring Spectacular. Joey Lane also played in seven events, including the ACC Championship, the NCAA Auburn Regional, and the NCAA Championship. Ryan Mondy's final round 70 at the VCU Shootout helped propel the team to victory, and he also competed in three additional events.

The Hokies warm up prior to the 2014 NCAA Championship.

THE ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE

Virginia Tech is in its 11th season as a proud member of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Arguably the best conference in collegiate golf, the ACC offers the Hokies a grand platform in their quest to become one of the nation's elite programs. The Hokies won the 2007 ACC Golf Championship, their first since joining the league in 2004.

The Tradition

Consistency is the mark of true excellence in any endeavor. In today's intercollegiate athletics, however, competition has become so balanced and so competitive that it is virtually impossible to maintain a high level of consistency.

Yet the Atlantic Coast Conference has defied the odds. Now in its 62nd year of competition, the ACC has long enjoyed the reputation as one of the strongest and most competitive intercollegiate conferences in the nation. And that is not mere conjecture, the numbers support it. Since the league's inception in 1953, ACC schools have captured 136 national championships, including 71 in women's competition and 65 in men's. In addition, NCAA individual titles have gone to ACC student-athletes 156 times in men's competition and 107 times in women's action.

The Atlantic Coast Conference will hold its annual Men's Golf Championship April 24-26 at the Old North State Club at Uwharrie Point in Baden Lake, N.C. The winner of the event will earn an automatic bid to the NCAA Division I Golf Championship.

Virginia Tech captured the ACC Golf Championship at the Old North State Club on April 22, 2007.

HACKIN' HOKIES

Thirty one years ago, a small group of Virginia Tech supporters traveled to the Metro Conference Championship at Wild Dunes Golf Links on the Isle of Palms, S.C., in a show of support for the Tech golf team. A great friendship developed between this group and the players. As a result, these supporters were affectionately tagged the "Hackin' Hokies."

Today, this group, totaling 104 members, travels annually with the team, and has been the major supporter of the Virginia Tech golf program.

The Virginia Tech golf team wishes to express its sincere appreciation to the "Hackin' Hokies" for their loyal support. As a token of its appreciation, the team recognizes a member of the "Hackin' Hokies" each year with the team's

HOKIE GOLF HISTORY

The history of the Virginia Tech golf team dates to 1932-33. The Techmen have had success since the very beginning, with their first victory coming on April 23, 1933, defeating Roanoke College, 10-2.

The Hokies continued to improve during the early years and made their first NCAA Championship appearance in 1957 at Colorado Springs, Colo. In 1962, Tech returned to the NCAA tournament and placed 26th at Duke University Golf Course in Durham, N.C.

Tech was a more dominant force in 1965, as the team tied for 11th at the NCAA Championship in Knoxville, Tenn. The late Tim Collins finished in seventh place individually in that event, then went on to finish 20th the following year and in fifth place in the 1967 tournament, the best ever individual performance for a Virginia Tech golfer in the NCAA Championship. The Hokies had their best ever team result that year as well, finishing sixth. Collins earned All-America status in 1965 and 1967, and was inducted into the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in 1985. From 1968 to 1971, Tech sent four representatives (one each year) to the NCAA Championship.

Also a standout in the mid-1960s, and a teammate of Collins, was Neff McClary. In 1965, he won the Southern Conference individual championship and helped pace the Hokies to three straight Virginia State Intercollegiate championships in 1965, 1966 and 1967. Between 1960 and 1995, Tech won this prestigious event 17 times. McClary was inducted into the Tech Hall of Fame in 1994 and Connie Sellers, the co-captain of the 1951 team and winner of the Virginia State Amateur that same year, was inducted in 1996. Current associate head coach Brian Sharp, the only Tech golfer to be both a four-time all-conference selection and a four-time first-team all-state honoree, was inducted in 2009. All-American and three-time PGA Tour winner, Johnson Wagner, was inducted in 2013. Fellow All-American Brendon de Jonge, a member of the 2013 President's Cup International Team and Wagner's former teammate at Virginia Tech, was inducted in 2014.

The Hokies have returned to NCAA Championship action numerous times in recent years, beginning in 1994 when they placed eighth in the East Regional and 19th in the NCAA Championship in McKinney, Tex. Sharp received an individual bid the following year to the NCAA East Regional at Curtis Deal and Brian Sharp rank among Tech's all-time scoring leaders.

Members of the 1994 Virginia Tech golf team — David Havens, Matt Martin, Brian Sharp, Curtis Deal and Sean Farrell, all among Tech's all-time scoring leaders — celebrate with Coach Jay Hardwick. The '94 squad won three events, including the Metro Conference Championship, and finished 19th in the NCAA Championship.

The youngest team in Tech history, the 1999 Hokies (freshmen Brendon de Jonge, Chris McKeel and Matt Hollerbach, and sophomores Johnson Wagner and Brian Krusoe) captured the first tournament of the season, the G. Gunby Jordan/Callaway Gardens Invitational.

Yale University Golf Club, finishing in eighth place. The 2001 team, one of the most successful in school history, tied for fifth at the East Regional in Williamsburg, Va., and placed eighth in the NCAA Championship in Durham, N.C. Tech followed up that season with an eighth place finish at the 2002 NCAA Central Regional in Little Rock, Ark., and 20th at the NCAA Championship in Columbus, Ohio. In 2003 the Hokies finished 19th at the East Regional in Auburn, Ala., and in 2004 Ryan Stinnett competed as an individual in the East Regional, also contested at Yale University Golf Club.

Virginia Tech received a bid to the NCAA East Regional in 2007, finishing 2004 BIG EAST champion Ryan Stinnett.

Virginia Tech won a nation's-best six tournaments in 2000-2001 and finished eighth in the NCAA Championship.

12th at the Golf Club of Georgia, located just outside of Atlanta. The following year, the Hokies competed in the East Regional in Chattanooga, Tenn., finishing in 15th place. Jurrian van der Vaart advanced through this regional by virtue of his sixth place individual finish, then went on to place ninth at the NCAA Championship at Purdue. This marked the third-best NCAA Championship finish for an individual in Virginia Tech history, trailing only Collins' performances in the 1960's. In 2009 the team earned a regional bid and finished 12th in the Southwest Regional in Austin, Texas. The Hokies received their fourth consecutive bid in 2010, to the Central Regional in South Bend, Ind. Although the team finished in 10th place, Marshall Bailey finished sixth individually and earned his way into the NCAA Finals by winning a playoff for the lone individual spot.

In 2011 the Hokies were again selected to compete in the East Regional, which they hosted at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech. The team finished sixth, three strokes short of advancing. Virginia Tech competed in the South Central Regional in Bowling Green, Ky., in 2012 and advanced to the NCAA Finals by virtue of its fourth place finish. The Hokies finished 24th in the national championship, contested at historic Riviera Country Club in Pacific Palisades, Calif. In 2013 the team was selected to compete in the Pullman Regional at Palouse Ridge Golf Club in Pullman, Wash., and finished in 10th place. The Hokies were selected to the Auburn Regional in 2014, at Auburn University Club in Auburn, Ala. Virginia Tech finished fourth to advance to the NCAA Finals at Prairie Dunes in Hutchinson, Kan., where it finished 28th in the national championship.

Tech has won its conference title many times over the years. The Hokies won the Southern Conference Tournament in 1961, '62, '63, and '65. The Techmen earned the championship trophy from the Metro Conference in 1993, a feat they repeated in 1994. After entering the Atlantic 10 Conference in 1996, Virginia Tech wasted little time in making its presence felt, winning back-to-back titles in 1996 and 1997. Although its conference affiliation changed again at the beginning of the 2000-01 academic year, the result for the golf team remained the same, as the Hokies won the 2001 BIG EAST Conference Golf Championship. They successfully defended their title in 2002 and 2003. The Hokies also claimed the 2007 ACC Golf Championship, their eighth conference crown in a fourth different league over a 15-year span.

In addition to McClary, the Hokies have had six other individual champions in three conferences since 1995. Sharp won that season's Metro Conference Championship and Brad Hyler won the 1997 Atlantic 10 Championship. Tech golfers dominated during their time in the BIG EAST, producing the champion all four years the school was a member of the conference. Brian Krusoe won the title in 2001, Johnson Wagner in 2002, Brendon de Jonge in 2003 and Ryan Stinnett made it four-for-four in the BIG EAST when he won the 2004 title.

Tech players have received numerous individual postseason honors throughout the years. Most notably, in addition to Collins' All-America seasons, the Hokies had two players named as All-Americans in the same year in 2002, when de Jonge was named to the second team and Wagner was named to the third team. In 2003 de Jonge repeated this honor, and van der Vaart and Drew Weaver were named third-team All-Americans in 2008 and 2009, respectively. Scott Vincent became Virginia Tech golf's first-ever member of the All-America first team in 2014, and Trevor Cone was named to the third team that same year. Ten Virginia Tech players have been named to the All-Region team. Sharp was named to the team in 1994 and 1995, while Curtis Deal received the honor in 1997. Wagner and de Jonge were selected in 2002 and de Jonge was named again in 2003. Van der Vaart earned this honor in 2008 and Weaver was named to the team in 2009. In 2012 Trevor Cone became the first Virginia Tech freshman to receive this distinction, and in 2013 both Mikey Moyers and Scott Vincent were named to the team. Vincent and Cone received this honor again in 2014, and were joined on the team by Bryce Chalkley. Five Hokies have also been recognized as the Virginia Collegiate Player of the Year; de Jonge in 2002 and 2003; Stinnett in 2004; van der Vaart in 2008; Weaver in 2009; and Vincent in 2013.

Another outstanding individual accomplishment for a Virginia Tech golfer came in the summer of 2007, when Weaver won the British Amateur. By virtue of winning this historic championship, he competed in the 2007 British Open and received an invitation to the 2008 Masters Tournament, golf's most prestigious event. Weaver was also a member of the victorious Team USA in the 2009 Walker Cup.

Since the beginning, the Tech squad has had 42 winning seasons and 35 consecutive winning seasons. Winning is the name of the Hokies' game.

Jurrian van der Vaart, a 2008 All-American, finished ninth at the NCAA Championship.

Drew Weaver, the 2007 British Amateur champion, earned All-America honors in 2009.

HOKIES ON THE PGA TOUR

Two of Virginia Tech's all-time scoring leaders and Hall of Fame inductees, All-Americans Brendon de Jonge (right) and Johnson Wagner pose with Coach Jay Hardwick for the cover of the 2001 Virginia Tech Golf Media Guide.

Former Hokies and close friends Johnson Wagner and Brendon de Jonge competed on the PGA Tour once again in 2014. Wagner, a three-time winner on Tour, has earned over $8 million in eight full seasons. His 2014 campaign included two Top 25 finishes, highlighted by a seventh place finish at the John Deere Classic. For the year, he made 11 cuts in 24 events and finished 150th in the FedExCup standings. Wagner is conditionally exempt on the PGA Tour in 2015.

A member of the International Team for the 2013 President's Cup, de Jonge had another solid PGA Tour season last year, making the cut at The Masters, US Open and PGA Championship. He made 24 cuts in 31 events, earning nearly $1.2 million to rank 87th on the money list and has now earned over $10 million in his career. De Jonge will once again be fully exempt on Tour in 2015 and got off to a great start for the 2014-15 wrap-around season, finishing tied for first in the McGladrey Classic in Sea Island, Ga.
